Look to the Mechanical Details

WHEN one purchases a motor car, it is the mechanical construction that one buys. Is the engineering of such design as to operate over a long period of time with little or no repairs? This is a moot question that the careful and thrifty purchaser will do well to consider. The body design, the shape of the hood and contour of the bonnet are all secondary and should be an afterthought.

When Paige engineers, after years of experiment, were satisfied to offer the new six cylinder Paige-Jewett to the motor owner, they knew they built right from the beginning, and the beautiful straight line body with its special finish and genuine leather upholstery is only a beautiful covering of a chassis construction, every part of which is accurate in its minutest detail.

The Paige-Jewett works—a company with years of experience in building fine cars—is back of every one.

There are Paige-Jewett dealers distributed throughout the British Isles. Let us put you in communication with the one nearest you.

POT-POURRI AND PERFUMES.

JUNE, the month of the roses, is also the month for making pot-pourri. This delightfully fragrant concoction is very easily made at home, and quite inexpensive. Roses or any sweet-smelling flowers can be used.

For rose pot-pourri you just gather a quantity of full-blown roses. Strip the petals off and spread them on a tray; leave the tray in the sun till the petals are dry and brownish. Then put them into a large earthenware bowl, cover with ¼lb. orris root; to every 2lbs. of this mixture add 2ozs. bruised cloves, 2ozs. cinamon, 2ozs. allspice, 2ozs. salt. Allow to stand for two weeks, stirring the mixture every day with your hands. Then it is ready for use, and is best kept in wide-mouthed jars. The rose pourri can also be put into small bags and placed amongst clothes.

In making a mixed flower pourri use any nice-smelling flower or herb; the best are clove carnations, verbena, sweetpea, stock, mignonette, lavender, thyme, rosemary. The flowers and herbs should be gathered in full bloom and dry. Pinch the heads off the small flowers, and pluck the heads off the larger ones. Put them all into a jar in layers, and between each layer of blossoms put a thick sprinkling of the following mixture:—2ozs. each bay salt, common salt, powdered cloves; 1oz. each of cinnamon and orris root, ½oz. allspice. Keep in a warm, dry place, and stir the mixture several times a day while the flowers are fresh. It should be ready for use in about a fortnight, or less.

For liquid perfume procure all kinds of fresh-scented flowers; tease out some cotton wool, which dip in Florence or Lucca oil; sprinkle a small quantity of fine salt on the flowers, and lay them alternately, a layer of wool and a layer of flowers, until an earthenware bowl or wide-mouthed glass bottle is full. Tie the mouth close with parchment paper (same as used for covering jam). Place bottle in a southern aspect to the heat of the sun, and in fifteen days, when uncovered, a fragrant oil may be pressed from the mass. This oil, if diluted with rectified spirits, equals the best perfumes purchased in shops.

A good dry home-made scent, which is also a sure preventive against moths, is made of the following ingredients:—Take 1oz. each of cloves, carroway seeds, nutmeg, mace, cinnamon, and Tonquin beans; add 6ozs. orris root. Grind into a powder and put it into little bags or sachets to place among your clothes. It will give them a delicious, clinging perfume.

HOUSE-WORK FOR HUSBANDS.

"NOBODY looks sillier than Joe Jorrocks when he puts on his wife's apron and helps her to start things going in the mornings. He needn't rise until 8 a.m, but the poor beggar struggles out at seven and works like a nigger for a solid hour. Stupid, I call it."

So said my friend. But his view was one-sided, for Jorrocks—"the poor beggar"—finds housework rather a change from being something in the city, and whistles merrily as he carries in the coals and polishes the family shoes. Besides, Mrs. Jorrocks' hands are not nearly so rough or her face so wizened as my friend's spouse—who has to do everything herself, while her lord and master lies in bed until the last moment, or plays billiards until midnight at his club.

Nothing puts grit in the matrimonial machinery so quickly as the way some wives are expected to take the entire burden of domestic business upon their shoulders and order all arrangements to suit the convenience of their husbands.

A man's home is his castle; but it is too often taken for granted that it is solely a woman's task to keep that castle clean. Nowadays it is only in a minority of homes that paid servants do all the housework.

Some men are reasonable in all other matters. They would protect their wives in the face of peril, hand over generous sums of money to them for the asking, present them with expensive gifts on all the little anniversaries; but in this one particular the same men are rather mean, unreasonable, and selfish.

The fact is, of course, that so many of the male sex simply hate to do odd jobs about a house.

But it is not true that women enjoy household tasks, or that only women are fitted for them. There is no need for men to learn the mystery of cutting out pants for little Willie, or to acquire the happy knack of dusting and arranging the drawingroom, or to acquaint themselves with the soothing art of ironing; but it is surely not any wife's duty always to light the fires, polish the grates, shake the mats, and clean the brasses.

How can a husband expect his wife to shine in society if he requires her to spend her time shining pots, pans, silver and everything with a metal surface at home?

There are husbands inexperienced enough in the ways of womankind as to expect verbal thanks and praise for every little task done. If they do not receive it, there are sulks and black looks and misunderstandings. The truth is, all women are more or less perverse in this respect. But if she has wisdom, a wife will take pains to show that her partner's unselfishness is appreciated—a word of praise or, better still, a little sign of love blended with the spoken commendation will go a long way on the path of happiness.

Sharing the home burden will give a husband a deep understanding of his wife's life, and will make even the drudgery of housework something jolly for both of them.

STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. GANLY, SONS AND CO.

The numbers of cattle sent forward for this week's sale were on a rather smaller scale than last week, and consisted principally of well-bred animals consigned direct from a number of principal feeders in the Midland and Southern Counties. Trade was again good for aged cattle in forward condition, and practically all changed hands, but at lower rates per cwt. than recently. For plain cattle the trade was rather quiet, and some few lots of this description failed to get placed. Horned bullocks made from £20 5/- to £25 10/-; best polly bullocks from £22 to £26 5/-; shorthorn heifers from £18 10/- to £22; Hereford cross bullocks from £21 10/- to £24 7/6; some choice Aberdeen Angus crosses made top live weight quotation, 58/- per cwt.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.

There was a seasonable supply at above firm's sale on Thursday last. Good cattle made fully last week's rates, ranging from 48/- to 56/6 per cwt., demand being keen, particularly for nice quality pollies. Heifers, which preponderated, sold well, making up to £20 10/-. Rougher and lighter sorts were, on the whole, easier to dispose of, and a good clearance was effected.

Vice-Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey will present the prizes to boys of the Arethusa training ship at Greenhithe on Tuesday, July 10, at 3 p.m.

The English-speaking Union will entertain Mr. James M. Beck, Solicitor-General of the United States, to luncheon at the Hyde Park Hotel next Friday. Mr. Winston Churchill will preside.

CHAPELIZOD FETE.

THE OPENING CEREMONY.

Splendid weather favoured the opening of the Chapelizod Garden Fête yesterday. Not often has a fête been held in such charming surroundings as the grounds of Culmore (Chapelizod), and the promoters were fortunate in securing them. There are many attractions, and those who are desirous of spending an enjoyable afternoon or evening can scarcely do better than pay a visit to the Carnival to-day. Dancing, boating, games, stalls, teas and suppers are provided.

The fête, which is in aid of parish funds, was opened at three o'clock yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Percy W. Coster, M.A., rector of St. Jude's. He was introduced by the Rev. K. M. Dunlop, M.A., rector of Chapelizod, and paid tribute to the untiring efforts of those connected with the organisation of the fête. Financial support for the parish funds was asked. The fête was then declared open.

During the afternoon a pleasant programme of music was given by the band of the Legion of Irish Ex-Service Men.

To-day the fête will be opened by the Dean of Christ Church at 2.30 p.m.

Stalls and stall-holders at the fête are :—Refreshments—Mrs. Dockery, Mrs. Percy Hay, Mrs. Dunlop, Mrs. Miller. Work—Mrs. E. Palmer, Miss Meeke, Misses Gillman. Sweets, etc.—Mrs. Dunlop, Mrs. Pomeroy, Mrs. Rose. Country Produce—Mrs. Spendlove, Mrs. Lawrence. Mothers' Union—Mrs. Coldwell, Mrs. Gillman, Mrs. Collins. White Elephant—Mrs. Crawshaw, Mrs. McConnell. Girl Guides—The Guiders. Advertisements—Mr. W. H. English. Amusements are in charge of Mr. E. B. Crawshaw.

YOU

can reap a handsome profit in a few years by investing now in IRISH FREE STATE

SAVINGS CERTIFICATES

YOU may now invest any sum from £20 3s. to £387 10s. (provided it is a multiple of 15/6) in Irish Free State Savings Certificates. Being guaranteed by all the resources of the nation, this is the safest possible form of investment. And it yields a liberal return. These examples show how your money will grow :

£20 3s. will become £26 in five years
£23 5s. will become £30 in five years
£31 0s. will become £40 in five years
£38 15s. will become £50 in five years
£77 10s. will become £100 in five years
£155 0s. will become £200 in five years
£232 10s. will become £300 in five years
£310 0s. will become £400 in five years
£387 10s. will become £500 in five years

Ask at any Money Order Post Office or at your Bank for a leaflet giving full particulars of the scheme.

Note these 3 big advantages :

1.—If at any time you need your money you can withdraw it with interest at the prescribed rate.
2.—You pay no income tax on the interest.
3.—There is no element of risk in the investment. The Irish nation is your security.

BECAUSE the Government is determined that Ireland shall not be a debtor nation, whatever funds the nation may require will be sought for from within. The interest will not be paid abroad. It will go into the pockets of the Irish people.

¶ Certificates for £1 (price 15s. 6d.), £10 (price £7 15s.), and £25 (price £19 7s. 6d.) are not yet available, but will be obtainable at Money Order Post Offices and most Banks at an early date. See later announcement.

"We go to build up the Nation from within, and we deny the right of any but our own countrymen to shape its course."

ROWING.

TRINITY AT HENLEY.

The week's rowing at Henley has done the Boat Club crew a lot of good. Hard at work since Monday last, two outings per day, under the coaching of Mr. R. Nelson (Eton and Third Trinity) has brought about a big change. The crew is now much steadier forward and the finish is firmer and smoother. As a result the pace of the boat has improved.

Prior to the draw, which takes place to-day, the club will have to declare for either the Ladies' Plate or the Thames Cup. The latter is likely to be the final choice.

Since they went across there has only been one change in the crew, when C. M. O'Brien was brought in at 3, displacing K. Watson, who had rowed at this thwart at both Island Bridge and Drogheda Regattas.

During the week the crew has received every possible assistance from the other competitors. Leander placed the club house at their disposal and gave them further help in many ways. Magdalen College have lent a boat that carries them as if it had been built to order, while the Eton Vikings R.C.—who are rowing for the Grand—have afforded them very practical assistance in the way of pacing and advice on the nature of the course.

At the moment this is the subject of some discussion. The change in the course this year leaves the actual start somewhat on the narrow side. The distance between the crews when on their stake boats is 16 feet, and the distance of each crew from the bank is 8 feet. Will this be sufficient? Opinions are divided, but it will certainly call for good steering by the coxswains.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

BRISTOL CITY DIRECTORS' APPEAL DISMISSED.

A Committee appointed by the English Football Association to consider an appeal by the six Bristol City directors, who were suspended recently after an inquiry into the affairs of the club, sat at Birmingham yesterday. After hearing the evidence the Committee announced that the Commission who made the inquiry were justified in their decision upon the evidence obtained by them, and the appeal was, therefore, dismissed, the costs to be paid by the club. Mr. J. Lewis at the close stated that in view of the unfounded rumours prevalent it was only fair to say that the suspended directors had never made any money out of the club, either individually or collectively.

THE NURSING COUNCIL.

COMMISSION ESTABLISHED.

Last night's Iris Oifigiuil contained two orders which have been made by the Executive Council. The first establishes a Board of Commissioners, which will fulfil the functions of the General Nursing Council for Ireland. From now until the "appointed day," which will be fixed by the Minister of Local Government, but must not be later than the 1st January, 1924, the Board will consist of eleven Commissioners. The second order establishes the Central Midwives Board. Until the 1st February, 1924, it will consist of eight Commisioners appointed by the Minister of Local Government, and after that date it will be composed of three persons appointed by the Minister for Local Government, of whom at least one shall be a registered medical practioner; four registered medical practitioners to be elected by the registered medical practitioners resident in Saorstat Eireann; four women (midwives' representatives), to be appointed by the Minister for Local Government after consultation with recognised nursing associations in Saorstat Eireann.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE COMING ELECTION.

A CALL TO ACTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The coming election will decide whether the existing social fabric is to remain or not. The Labour Party, anxious to overturn it, is well organised and active in propaganda. Those who believe that the welfare of the country demand that, whatever modifications may be desirable, there shall be no sudden departure from recognised economic principles, are taking no steps to secure their position. Lulled into a false security by the fact that Labour is impotent in the present Dail, they sit at ease, believing that things will go on somehow or other without any great upset. Like so many of us before 1914, they shut their eyes to facts very plain to see if they would but look. Let me put some of those facts before your readers.

First. Consider the voting power of Labour. At the last election it put forward only eighteen candidates. Those eighteen secured first preference votes equal in number to one-third of all the non-Labour first preferences cast for the Treaty in all the contested constituencies. Again, Labour lost only one seat out of all those it contested—a record unparalleled in Parliamentary history. What would have happened if they had—as they will now—contested every constituency and, in many of them, put up more than one candidate? But even that arresting statement does not put the Labour prospect with more than a fraction of its strength; for the last election was fought on the old restricted register, while the new one will be fought on an adult register, and, in addition, it may be taken for granted that a large proportion of the Republican vote will be cast for Labour candidates.

Second. If any doubt exists as to the policy of Labour, a correspondence with Mr. Johnson, the Labour leader, from which I am at liberty to quote, will remove it. It will be remembered that, in addition to his "parable," in which he claimed that Great Southern debenture-holders had lost any title to be paid their debenture interest—on the ground that they and their predecessors had already been repaid, in interest, more than those predecessors had originally lent to the company—he declared in the Dail debate on the Land Bill that rent-holders who gave no "personal service" in relation to their property were not entitled to compensation when deprived of that property. As this statement was allowed to pass without public notice, I wrote to Mr. Johnson, referring to it, and asking him, "Is there, in your view, or in that of the Labour Party, any essential difference between income derived from landed property (without personal service given) and income derived from industrial or other sources (also without personal service), so far as regards their confiscation?" To this question regarding confiscation Mr. Johnson's reply was explicit:—"There is no essential difference between income derived from landed property which has no relation to personal service, past or present, and income derived from other forms of property which has no relation to personal service, past or present."

My reply to this is important because of the admission it drew from Mr. Johnson. Having noted the words "past or present," I asked if they meant that income which "had relation to" past service of the owner would not be confiscated, even though there was no present service; whether, if two such owners were to exchange their properties, the Labour Party would then confiscate both properties, on the ground that the personal service would not have been in relation to the new property thus acquired; whether such an owner might give away his property without its being thereupon confiscated, instancing the case of a parent providing for his children; and, finally, I wrote, "There is another vital matter: What degree of 'personal service' is required to avoid confiscation? Have you thought out this matter, on which the whole meaning of the Labour Party's view really depends?"

Not having heard from him for some time, I called at his office, and subsequently received the following:—

"A Chara,—Your note is to hand. I am very sorry I have not been able even to think of your further questions, not to speak of writing an answer. I have no objection to your writing to the papers in any way you wish.—Mise, do chara, Thos. Johnson."

Mr. Johnson's sincerity is beyond question, a fact which increases the danger of the proposals which he and the Labour Party support without having thought out their meaning or consequences. I believe that, if Mr. Johnson took time to think them out, he would see that their effect would be the reverse of what he desires.

My present point, however, is that, if those who disagree with those proposals do not now bestir themselves, but let the verdict go by default, they will have themselves alone to blame. They should put forward as candidates able and patriotic men, men who are not out merely to protect the interests of their own class, but men who, while they will insist that economic laws cannot be violated without disaster, will yet recognise that those laws, rightly interpreted, do not ignore the human element. But they should be unsparing in exposing false and injurious claims, such as that of Southern Labour in stating that it disapproves of doles when at the same time it prohibits Dublin bricklayers from laying more than 300 bricks per day, while, for the same or less wages, the Belfast bricklayers lay—as they very easily can—900 per day. Of the Dublin wages two-thirds is a dole for doing nothing, while they might be laying 600 more than they lay, and only one-third is wage for work done.

Will prominent members of any of the great organisations — Chambers of Commerce, Bankers' Institute, Rotary Club, or the like—undertake the work of preparing for the election in the two clear months which now remain? I do not urge that these bodies should act officially; for they would probably say that they were non-political, even though the question at issue is not really a political one in the proper sense. It is prior to all politics, for on the political question, Free State or Republic, they would be practically unanimous. Thus there would be no possibility of weakening the Free State Government by putting forward business candidates. Proportional representation provides against that.—Yours, etc.,

EDWARD P. CULVERWELL.

Trinity College, Dublin,

THE LAND BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—There are few landowners who were not prepared to welcome an equitable Land Bill. The present position is obviously an impossible one, and most people recognise that the operations of the Land Purchase Acts have, on the whole, been for the good of the country. The bill now before the Dail cannot be considered a fair one by any unprejudiced person.

During the war years farmers made a great deal of money. The bank returns from June, 1914, up to December, 1922 (the last available), show extraordinary increases in deposits and in money on current account. This increase has been steady and progressive. The figures are as follow:—

DEPOSITS AND MONEY ON CURRENT ACCOUNT.

MUNSTER AND LEINSTER BANK.
June, 1914	£6,664,202
December, 1922	£30,333,271
NATIONAL BANK.
December, 1914	£15,283,930
December, 1922	£43,472,962

On the other hand, landowners, being unable to raise their rents, actually received during the war years less from their estates than before owing to higher expenses. For the past two years, and in many cases three years, they have received practically nothing and notoriously are in financial difficulties. The present Bill apparently proposes to cancel all arrears due before 1920, and it proposes that the rent accrued since the first gale day of 1920, less 25 per cent., shall be payable to the Land Commission, this reduced rent being known as compounded arrears. These compounded arrears are not to be paid to the unfortunate owners, but to the Land Commission, who apparently can collect same as they think fit, and will repay to the owners the money collected, less income tax and such deductions towards costs of collection as the Land Commission consider reasonable. This seems to be adding insult to injury. It is hard to account for this proposal, but one thing is certain—that it will be very difficult for the owners to recover money which the Land Commission see fit to pay away in income tax, whether properly paid or not.

Under Section 22, tenants whose rents were fixed before 1911 purchase at 13.684 years' purchase, payment being made in Bonds bearing interest at 4½ per cent. Those whose rents were fixed subsequent to 1911 purchase at 14.737. In each case the Government add 10 per cent. to the price to be paid to the owner. Assuming that these Bonds be worth £90 (I have not heard any higher estimate of their value), this means that tenants will actually purchase at a cash value of about 12¼ and 13¼ years' purchase—a poor price certainly when one considers that tenants' interest rarely sells for less than forty years' purchase, and eighty years' purchase even at present is common. I know only one case within the past eight years where a tenant sold his interest for less than fifty years' purchase. In this particular case the rent was £170, and the farm was sold in 1919 subject to this rent for £8,000, which is over 47 years' purchase. Section 37 provides that, in case of both tenanted and untenanted lands where owners spent money on maintenance of drains, etc., there shall be deducted from the purchase price payable to them about 22¼ years' purchase of the average annual cost of such work, and the Land Commission appear to have power to determine absolutely the owners' obligations in this respect.

Mr. Hogan's intention is clearly to benefit the occupiers of land and, as agriculture is the country's main industry, nobody will object to this; but it is not equitable that the property of one class should be confiscated for the benefit of another, nor in the long run is it a good policy either. Confiscation of property will certainly impair the credit of the country, and Ireland cannot afford to lessen her credit. If the Government decide that tenants are to purchase on the terms proposed in the Bill, their plain duty is to give the landowners such a bonus as will give them incomes equivalent to what they would have, assuming that they were permitted to collect their rents.—Yours, etc.,

D. R. O'BRIEN.

MARSH'S LIBRARY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In an article on Narcissus Marsh in this day's issue of the Irish Times I read:—"The salary of the Librarian (of Marsh's Library) was provided for by a charge of £250 a year on Church lands in Meath." This statement is misleading. The total endowment of the Library provided by Archbishop Marsh was £250 Irish currency. The sum now received is £230 9s. sterling. On this income Marsh provided charges for the Assistant Librarian and the purchase and binding of books. Moreover, this is the only source of payment for the maintenance, painting and repairs of an extensive building more than 220 years old.—Yours, etc.,

N. J. D. WHITE, Librarian.

Dublin, June 29th, 1923.

DUBLIN'S REMEDY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Referring to your leader in Wednesday's issue of the Irish Times on the steady growth in Dublin of street trading and other municipal nuisances, my Committee have recommended to Dr. Myles Keogh, President of the Children's Court, that, if his court could obtain power to inflict fines on youthful offenders in this respect, instead of having to send them, as at present, to the Police Courts, the evil of street trading by children would be lessened. As you truly say, the best way to make a street into a slum is to surrender it to street trading; and, surely, we have enough slums in Dublin already.—Yours,

HOWARD H. HELY, Secretary,
Dublin Citizens' Association.

9 Dawson street, Dublin,
June 29th, 1923.

DUBLIN AND THE PROVINCES.

FOLK-DANCING DISPLAY.—National school children will take part in a folk-dancing festival in Lord Iveagh's Grounds, Harcourt street, this afternoon at 3. The children will assemble at the gate of St. Stephen's Green (Grafton street corner), and march to the grounds in procession. Mothers who attend the Babies' Clubs will be given tea, and the winner of the Rhondda Mothercraft Challenge Shield will be announced. An address on "Clean-up Week" will be given, and, during an interval in the folk-dancing, prizes will be awarded to the successful competitors in the National Schools' Essay Competition, "How I can help to keep my city beautiful." Lady Aberdeen will attend.

ALLEGED CARELESS MOTOR-CYCLING.—William Colgan, 87 Lower Leeson street, Dublin, and Clappagh House, Enfield, Co. Kildare, aged 20, a student, was remanded in the Dublin Police Court yesterday on a charge of carelessness and negligence in the management of a motor cycle on Thursday in Upper Leeson street, whereby he knocked down William H. Shiel (60), 24 Elmwood avenue, who sustained a double fracture of the right leg and arm.

VIOLENT BEGGAR.—Joseph Finlay, 52, described as a carrier, of Charlemont street, Dublin, was charged in the Dublin Police Court yesterday with begging. He was sentenced to a month's imprisonment with hard labour. For resisting arrest, refusing to walk to the police station, and using profane language he was sent to prison for a further two months with hard labour.

THEFT OF BACON.—Patrick Birch, aged 50, of Golden lane, and John Carolan, aged 49, Longford street, pleaded guilty in the Dublin Police Court yesterday to stealing bacon, valued at 14s., from a store at 5 Fade street. Birch was sent to prison for six months and Carolan for two months.

LINEN AND COTTON EMBROIDERY TRADE.—The Linen and Cotton Embroidery Trade Board (Irish Free State), recently appointed by the Minister of Industry and Commerce, held their first meeting in Dublin yesterday, and considered the rates at present effective, and the existing position of the trade in the Free State.

SALE OF WORK.—Lady Goulding opened the annual sale of work at St. Bartholomew's, Clyde road, Dublin, yesterday afternoon. The function was held in glorious weather in the charming grounds of the Vicarage, and was a financial success. The programme included a talk by Mr. W. B. Yeats, the poet, a dance, and a concert organised by Mrs. Alicia Keogh.

CONNAUGHT.

BLIND MAN'S FALL.—Patrick Patterson, a blind man, walked out of an open window by mistake at Galway, and fell twenty feet into the road. His fall was broken by electric wires, and he suffered from nothing worse than a shaking.

GALWAY RAIDS.—Two armed men raided Tynagh and Gurtymadden, Co. Galway, Post Offices and stole £18 from the former office and £10 from the latter. At Cappatagle a dance was raided, the proceeds stolen, and a violin and accordion.

LEINSTER.

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL RAIDER.—Maggie Smith, aged 11, and her guardian, Bernard Early, of Creevy, Granard, were charged at Granard with malicious damage to a window, and raiding the house of Joseph Donohoe. Rose McCabe, a domestic servant, said that she saw the girl at the door with her face concealed by a cloth. She demanded admittance, saying that she wanted to get money. The witness did not admit the girl, who broke a window with a stick. The magistrate imposed a fine of £1, with 3s. compensation for the window and 7s. costs, on Bernard Early, the guardian.

TEACHER'S 31 YEARS' SERVICE.—Mr. Peter O'Brien, principal teacher in Stabannon, Co. Louth, school, has retired on pension after thrty-one years' service. To mark appreciation of his services he is being presented with an illuminated address.

CONTRACT CONTRASTS. — Co. Wicklow Board of Health has accepted contracts for the supply of eggs at 1s. 7½d. a dozen, milk at 11d. and 1s. a gallon, Irish bacon at 1s. 1½d. a pound, beef at 6½d. and mutton at 9d. for the County Home; and for the County Hospital, milk at 1s. 2d. (summer) and 1s. 3d. (winter), beef 1s., mutton 1s. 3d., bacon 1s. 2d. per lb., and eggs 1s. 10d. Coal is to be supplied to the County Home, Rathdrum, at 45s. 6d. a ton; County Hospital, Wicklow, 45s.; and Fever Hospital, Shillelagh, 50s. 6d.

INSURANCE ACT PROSECUTION.—For failing to stamp the insurance card of a workman in her employment Mrs. Ellen Begley, of Kilcogy, Granard, was ordered to pay £3, amount of contributions, and fined £1 and costs.

MUNSTER.

DOCTOR'S TRAVELLING EXPENSES.—At a meetng of Borrisokane, Co. Tipperary, Guardians, Dr. L. J. Quigley, Borrisokane, and Dr. E. Murray, Birr No. 2 District, attended as a deputation from the North Tipperary Medical Association to draw attention to the recent refusal of the Board to grant doctors a travelling allowance of £50 a year. After a long discussion, a member handed in a notice of motion that he would move at the next meeting that Dr. F. Quigley and Dr. D. J. Chadwick be granted travelling expenses.

MUNSTER FAIR.—Munster cattle and sheep fair was held in Limerick yesterday. The supply was up to the average, but prices were not so good as a month ago. Best beef realised on an average 44s. a cwt.; three-year-old cattle sold at from £20 to £25 a head, two-year-olds £15 to £18, and yearlings from £10 10s. to £14. Mutton was scarce and realised 1s. 2d. a pound on foot.

OVERLOOKED QUARRY CHARGE.—While a labourer was breaking limestone for road repairs in Fermoy on Thursday afternoon a loud explosion occurred and pieces of stone were thrown some distance. The labourer, Charles Wheeler, Chapel street, Fermoy, was injured in the face, shins, and arm. It is thought that an unexploded quarrying charge was in the stone.

RESTORED POST OFFICE SERVICES.—Telegraph wires at Glin, Co. Limerick, have now been repaired and the usual facilities are available. For seven months the town has been isolated, telegraphically. Money orders can also now be obtained at the local post office, and the payment of pensions will be resumed next week.

LATE LIEUTENANT J. McDONAGH.—Military honours were accorded the remains of Lieutenant John McDonagh, Fermoy aerodrome, who died from injuries received when the aeroplane in which he was acting as observer crashed into a tree outside the town on Monday. He was a general favourite with the officers and men, all of whom marched for a considerable distance with the funeral, which left the Fermoy Hospital at two o'clock for Dublin. The Pipers' band from the 10th Battalion and a firing party with rifles reversed attended. There were a number of beautiful wreaths on the coffin.

WORKHOUSE CLOCK STOLEN.—A few nights ago thieves entered the Borrisokane Guardians' Board Room and stole the clock.

ULSTER.

BALLYSHANNON'S EXCITING DAY.—A vessel arrived at Ballyshannon, Co. Donegal, yesterday, with a cargo of grain. This is the first ship to enter the harbour for ten years, as a sand bar makes navigation difficult. There was great local excitement, says our Correspondent. There are to be regular sailings in future.

"Listening-In" concerts were a feature of a fête held at Monaghan yesterday, in connection with the Monaghan Parish Church.

There was virtually no demand for beef at Ardee Fair on Wednesday, although it was heavily stocked with prime heavy cattle.

NORTHERN IRELAND.

PORTRUSH'S NEW PARK.—Sir Denis Henry, the Lord Chief Justice of Northern Ireland, opened a new public recreation ground at Portrush yesterday. The park, which has cost £9,000, is under municipal control. It is situated at the base of Ramore Head, and has been provided with a bowling green and tennis courts. The Lord Chief Justice, who was presented with a gold key, congratulated the Urban Council on its latest enterprise, and said that he was sure that Portrush, always popular, would become still more so. A large company, representative of many Northern Ireland public bodies and professions, was entertained to luncheon by the contractors.

WELL-FILLED CHARITY CUP.—At the Londonderry Petty Sessions yesterday, James Doherty and William McDaid were summoned for drunkenness and disorderly behaviour shortly before midnight on the 18th inst. One of the defendants said that they were celebrating the Charity Cup final. Arrangements had been made before the closing hour to "fill the cup," and as only four or five of the celebrants were "taking anything," there was too much for those who were. "An argument arose about one team being better than the other," he added, "and it ended up as arguments generally do." It was stated that the defendants, who wanted to fight with each other, were now good friends. They were each fined 5s.

TYRONE SLANDER ACTION—At Omagh Quarter Sessions yesterday, Mrs. Ellen Gilleece, Newtownstewart, brought a slander action against Michael McCanny, farmer, Barnackatall, Drumquin. The plaintiff's case was that when the defendant went to her house to demand possession in March last, he made use of slanderous language towards her. The defendant denied using the language imputed to him, and said that when he went to demand possession the plaintiff dipped a saucepan into a pot of boiling water and said: "I will give you possession with this." The Judge said that he believed that the defendant had used the words complained of, and awarded a decree for £2 2s.

FEELINGS BETRAYED BY DRINK.—Londonderry magistrates sentenced Robert Curry, 24 Moore street, Waterside, to a month's imprisonment, with hard labour, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. A police constable said that he gave the defendant a chance to go home, but instead of doing so, the defendant abused him. A sergeant said that when the defendant had been drinking he attacked the police regularly.

At the conclusion of the Chapter Benediction was given by the Archbishop.

The text of a letter from the Pope to the Superior-General of the Irish Christian Brothers has been published. His Holiness recalls the remarkable growth of the Order, and bestows praise on the teaching methods of the Brothers. Now, that the old rules have been brought up to date, so as to make them more suitable to the altered times and circumstances, they will be diligently observed and guarded. The letter concludes by expressing the hope that the Brothers will, in the discharge of their duties, ever attend to the spiritual side of their work.

"On the initiative of the Vatican, sanctioned by the Italian Government, a series of five postage stamps has," says the New York Herald, "been issued for circulation up to the end of this month to commemorate the third centenary of the Missionary Aid Organisation, known as 'Pro-Propaganda Fide' This is the first time since 1870 that Vatican stamps have been accepted for Italian postage."

The Pope recently received in private audience the Rev. John Gallagher, D.D., a native of Castlederg, Co. Tyrone, and Professor of Moral Theology in the Irish College, Paris. Father Gallagher has just passed his examination for the degree of Doctor of Theology.

COLONIAL AND CONTINENTAL CHURCH SOCIETY.

The Colonial and Continental Church Society celebrates its hundredth anniversary to-day. The aim of the Society has always been the spiritual good of our white brethren overseas. Under its auspices clergy and lay workers have been trained and sent to Newfoundland, Canada, Australia, South and East Africa, etc. Many of these districts are now self-supporting, but the tens of thousands who are pouring from our home shores into the unoccupied regions overseas are in urgent need of spiritual aid. Opportunities of helping to forward this most important work will be given in many of the churches round Dublin to-morrow.

RETREAT FOR TROOPS.

At Collinstown Camp, near Swords, the Rev. F. A. Gleeson, Dublin Command Chaplain, celebrated Mass yesterday morning, and preached to the several hundreds of officers and men assembled in a large hangar, converted into a chapel. General Russell attended, and expressed to the Chaplain his satisfaction at the great success of the retreat which is being conducted this week, and will be continued next week, in order to get into touch with all the troops. The Rev. Father Flinn, S.J., came out on Wednesday to help Father Gleeson in the work. Already 230 of the troops have received confession and Holy Communion.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

The dispute with the employers which resulted in the closing of the Dublin theatres and picture houses a fortnight ago was settled yesterday, and all places of amusement in the city will be re-opened at once.

Mr. de Valera has issued a statement on the coming elections.

GREAT BRITAIN.

When the trial of the eight Irish deportees was resumed in London yesterday Mr. Art O'Brien, one of the defendants, was examined, and stated his reasons for objecting to the Irish Treaty. He was the representative of the Republic in England, but took no part in military matters.

Lady Astor's Bill, which prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquor to persons under 18 years of age, was talked out in the House of Commons yesterday.

The Right Hon. John George Gibson, formerly a judge of the High Court of Justice in Ireland, died on Thursday at Colwyn Bay in his seventy-eighth year.

The honours which the King has conferred on the occasion of his birthday include two Peerages, 10 Baronetcies and 28 Knighthoods. Many Civil Servants and police officers in Northern Ireland have been made Commanders of the Order of the British Empire.

ABROAD

American comment on the House of Lords' discussion on the prohibition issue is to the effect that, unless Congress amends the Prohibition Act, which is unlikely, the law will be strictly carried out.

The Trevessa's second boat reached Mauritius yesterday with 16 survivors of the wreck. Eight men died during the voyage.

SPORTING.

At Sandown Park yesterday Canova won the Sandringham Plate.

The Next Government.

The people of the Free State seem to be curiously apathetic about the general election which is close at hand. It will be—more than most of us take the trouble to realise—a plunge into the unknown. The present Dail consists of 128 members, many of whom have not taken their seats. The next Dail will contain 153 members, elected upon a widely extended franchise. At the last election one vital, but simple, issue was before the people. At the coming elections the issues will be numerous and, in some cases, complex. They will involve not merely the traditional questions of policy, but—as Professor Culverwell says in his letter to-day—fundamental questions of the rights of property. The public's lack of interest may be due in part to a comfortable faith in the star of the present Government. President Cosgrave and his colleagues have put the country under a heavy debt to them. They have grappled manfully with a tremendous task, and theirs will be the whole credit for the fact that the coming elections will be free from the menace of the pistol. In reviving the law, however, they have been forced to do many stern things and, like all Governments, they have made mistakes. Political gratitude is notoriously evanescent. There is no certainty that the Ministerial Party will come back to the Dail in anything like its present strength. The Farmers' Party is well organised and expects to win many new seats. The Labour Party is equally confident and, while it is weakened by internal disputes, it is likely to benefit by the extension of the franchise. Gains by the Farmers' Party and by Labour must be made at the expense of the Ministerial Party. It is not improbable that the outcome of the elections may be a Coalition Government. President Cosgrave and his best Ministers may retain office at the price of co-operation with another party or with other parties. Naturally, they could make no compromise with any party that preaches and practises the policy of sheer confiscation.

The next Dail will control issues that may be fateful for commerce and industry. It may be asked to fix the Free State's fiscal policy; it must consider the raising of large loans, and it will do much to settle our future standard of taxation. If the country's financial and commercial interests are unrepresented, or inadequately represented, in the next Dail, the result is likely to be calamitous for all national interests. Apparently, however, our professional classes, manufacturers and traders are not disturbed by this danger: at any rate, they are doing little to avert it. In the City of Cork, indeed, they have formed a "Progressive Association" which will try "to secure adequate representation for commerce in the Oireachtas and other public bodies"; but, so far as we can learn, Cork stands alone. Nevertheless, the need is urgent and, even if the effort were doomed to failure, it ought to be made. There is no reason in the world, however, why it should be doomed to failure. The elections will be held under the system of proportional representation. There are, apart from the universities, twenty-eight constituencies, none of which will return less than three members. If a business men's candidate is nominated in every constituency, and if the traders, manufacturers and professional classes in all the constituencies will organise themselves in support of such candidates, it is probable that not fewer than ten or a dozen good business men will have seats in the next Dail. The influence of such a party on all policies that involved taxation and expenditure would be invaluable. It is quite possible, indeed, that parties will be so nicely balanced after the election that the good-will of a business group of even ten members would be indispensable to the next Government. Yet the fact remains that at this moment the interests which have most at stake are doing the least—are doing virtually nothing—to assert themselves in the conduct of national affairs.

Dominion Status.

The Canadian Government's resolution to implement the North Pacific "Halibut" Treaty with the United States gave rise to a very interesting debate in the Ottawa Parliament on Wednesday. The "Halibut" Treaty, our readers will remember, deals with fishing rights in the Northern Pacific, and was signed some months ago by a representative of the Canadian Government. Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador to Washington, proposed at first to sign the Treaty on behalf of the British Empire; but, as a result of representations by the Canadian Government to the Colonial Office, instructions were issued that Canada's signature alone would suffice. Hitherto the power to conclude treaties of any kind had been vested theoretically in the King, but really in His Majesty's Ministers in London. The fact that the "Halibut" Treaty was signed solely by a representative of the Canadian Government gives the Dominion, and consequently every Dominion, including the Irish Free State, a status which in practice it never had enjoyed before. In the debate on the resolution in the Canadian Parliament Mr. Meighen, the leader of the Opposition and late Premier of the Dominion, criticised the Government's action very severely. He charged it with an intention "to dissociate ourselves in the eyes of the world from the rest of the Empire." Mr. King, the Prime Minister, in his reply to Mr. Meighen, declared that the Government had insisted on the separate signing of the "Halibut" Treaty simply because it was a matter of purely domestic concern. Both he and the Progressive leader, Mr. Forke, re-affirmed the allegiance of Canada to the Crown, while the Premier went so far as to characterise the Opposition leader's charges as "thoroughly disloyal."

We can understand the anxiety of Mr. Meighen and his Conservative friends; but the unity of His Majesty's Dominions with the Motherland is not a matter of forms and legal documents. Canada is British because her people are children of the British race. The farmer "out West," the lonely trapper among the Northern snows and the bank clerk in his office in Toronto will continue to think as Britons think and to feel as Britons feel. The British Empire is not only a community of nations; it is a community of affection and of loyalty to the ideals which have kept the British flag on high from Agincourt to Ypres and from the ships of Drake to the Trevessa. Canada has come of age; that is all. She claims the right now to sign her own cheques and to exercise her full suffrage. We can sympathise with Mr. Meighen in his opposition to the change, but we cannot share his gloomy forebodings. Canada's greatest temptation to dissociate herself from the British Empire came in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's day, when the United States Government offered her reciprocity. Pessimists declared then that her allegiance was at an end, that in a few years she would become an American province. The war proved the folly of that belief. Canada to-day is more strongly attached to these little islands—for Ireland, too, is a Motherland—than ever she was, and "Halibut" Treaty or no "Halibut" Treaty, there is not the slightest danger of her secession. It is high time, however, that the coming of age of the Dominions shall be recognised in a proper manner. The Imperial Conference, which will be held in a few months' time, will be in the nature of a family gathering to regulate the future relations between its various members.

The Law Decides.

Having pondered the matter with becoming gravity for fifty-one years, a French court has decided that a woman may proceed against her husband for assault. To our effete or progressive minds—here, as in most matters, there is room for both the conservative and the liberal view—the court seems to have devoted a long time to the settlement of so obvious a dispute. A woman in her rôle of a potential victim of assault is infinitely more a subject for the law's regard than in her capacity as a wife. Modern woman adds something to her legal status when she marries, but loses nothing. The sacrifices to which civilised man has been compelled in order to make matrimony attractive to the other sex do not flatter him. The laws of our ancestors and of most early communities clothed man with the undisputed right to beat his wife in moderation. The Anglo-Saxon husband was limited to the use of a stick not thicker than his thumb—a fact which speaks well for the noblesse oblige of our forefathers and the resilience of our foremothers. The responsibility was seldom abused, as the neighbours formed a sort of permanent board of assessors to whom the wife would appeal in doubtful cases. A similar state of things exists to this day among the less intellectual sections of Britain's great industrial community; but, with the general improvement in manners and morals, it is not likely to have a long lease of life. In the meanwhile we must admire the extreme caution with which the French court approached its task of abrogating one of the oldest customs in the world.

Change and Progress.

The statement by Dr. Keith, the eminent surgeon-biologist, that man is on the way to become a very different being from what he is to-day, may be misinterpreted by many persons to whom the condition of their fellow-men is a matter of concern. The idealist may exclaim, "One more step on the long pathway to the stars," and may proceed to contemplate our infinite superiority to the amoeba and other beasts that perish. The cynic may say that man may be different in an æon's time, and that the change is bound to be for the better. Dr. Keith, however, was not discussing the spirit of men, which, a billion years hence, may be just as proud and unsatisfied as it is to-day. He was talking strictly in terms of chromosomes—the authors of physical development—and he meant that another fifty thousand years may deprive us entirely of our small toes or add a couple of inches to an arm or increase the cubic content of the occiput. If we knew more about the rapidly developing micro-organisms that keep the doctors busy, we might be able to foretell what our descendants will be like in the flesh. One thing, however, is certain. Man will continue to achieve and to pursue, and still will be learning to labour and to wait. However superior to ourselves he may have become morally and intellectually, he will still talk of millenniums and will refer to our own as "the good old days."

COURT AND PERSONAL.

Yesterday afternoon the Duke and Duchess of York were present at the garden party which was given by the Secretary of State for Air and Lady Maud Hoare at 18 Cadogan Gardens. There was a large attendance of guests, and the band of the Royal Air Force rendered a programme of music during the afternoon.

The Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, who have been spending a few days at The Hague, are expected in London to-day. The Earl and Countess of Kenmare are staying at their London residence. Lady Nina Knowles and her sister, Lady Caroline Ogilvie-Grant, left London yesterday for North Wales. Lord and Lady Poltimore are at Bath, where the latest arrivals include Lord Glanely, the Hon. Mrs. Gerald Lascelles, Sir Henry and Lady Webb and Sir Gerard and Lady Muntz.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Cambridge spent a week with Princess Alice and the Earl of Athlone at Henry III. Tower, Windsor Castle, and have now returned to Shotton Hall, near Shrewsbury. The Marquis and Marchioness of Worcester returned to London yesterday from Lowther Castle, which had been lent to them for their honeymoon by the Earl of Lonsdale.

The Earl of Dunraven, who has been staying at Adare Manor for the past six weeks, will leave shortly to join his yacht at Cowes and will then start on a cruise to Norway. Sir Richard and Lady Musgrave have let their London house and hope to spend a portion of the summer at Tourin, Cappoquin.

To-day is the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Lord and Lady O'Neill. The former is the second Baron and succeeded his father in 1883, ten years after his marriage with Lady Louisa Cochrane, daughter of the eleventh Earl of Dundonald. The Earldom and Viscounty of O'Neill became extinct in 1855, but the estates passed to a cousin, the Rev. Edward Chichester, who in the same year assumed, by Royal licence, the surname of O'Neill, and was created Baron O'Neill of Shane's Castle in 1868. The heir to the title is Lord O'Neill's eldest grandson, born in February, 1907, son of Captain the Hon. Arthur O'Neill, M.P., Household Cavalry, who was killed in action in 1914.

Viscount Esher, Deputy Constable and Lieutenant-Governor of Windsor Castle, celebrates his seventy-first birthday to-day. In 1899 he succeeded his father, the late Right Hon. Sir William Baliol Brett, who, having filled various important legal posts, was created Baron Esher in 1885 and was advanced to a Viscounty twelve years later. The present peer is Vice-Chairman of the British Red Cross Society and Royal Trustee of the British Museum. He is the author of "The Tragedy of Lord Kitchener" and the joint editor of "Queen Victoria's Letters." He married Mdlle. Eleanor Van de Weyer, daughter of the late Mons. Sylvain Van de Weyer, a former Belgian Minister at the Court of St. James's. The heir is his elder son, the Hon. Oliver Brett, M.B.E., who was attached to the War Office from 1915 to 1919.

Lord Clinton is in a nursing home in London, where he was operated on for appendicitis a few days ago, and is now making satisfactory progress. The latest telegrams from Kenya Colony are more reassuring about Major C. G. Fane, who was seriously mauled by a lioness a fortnight ago, but is now doing well.

A marriage has been arranged, and will take place early in August, between Valentine Irwin, of 13 Appian Way, Dublin, fourth son of the late Colonel Richard Irwin, of Rathmoyle, Co. Roscommon, and Rita, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard, of St. Kevin's, Dartry road, Dublin.

THE ULSTER PLAYERS.

FIRST VISIT TO LONDON.

FROM OUR DRAMATIC CRITIC.

LONDON, Friday.

London play-goers greatly enjoyed the initial visit to London of the Arts League at the Court Theatre last week. They have a further treat in store in the Ulster Players, who entered last night upon their first visit at the new Scala Theatre.

The Ulster Players come to London with a very considerable reputation. For twenty-two years their company has been producing plays of Ulster life by members of their company, and the appreciation shown by the audience at the Scala last night would suggest that their reutation will be maintained during their visit to London.

The two plays presented were "The Drone," a comedy, in three acts, by Rutherford Mayne, who played a principal part in each of the plays, and "Thompson in Tir na nOg," a one-act fantasy, by Gerald MacNamara, who played the part of The Drone in the first play. Of these two "The Drone" was easily the more brilliant.

Among the players the two authors, Muriel Woods, Rose McQuillan, and Walter Kennedy stood out among a very good cast. It is to be hoped that this visit of the Ulster Players will lead to further visits of other less known, but talented, companies of players to the London stage.

ALL SWITZERLAND OPEN TO MOTOR CARS.

SAINT MORITZ, Friday.

A popular vote has resulted in the raising of the prohibition against the circulation of motor cars in the Canton of Grisons, the last of the twenty-two Swiss cantons where this measure remained in force. The opening of the motor car route through Saint Moritz into Italy has been fixed for July 1.—(Reuter.)

A portrait of Seneca by Rubens, recently discovered at Riga, has been acquired by the Antwerp Museum.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES.

Development of Movement in Ireland.

At the concluding meeting of the Library Conference in University College, Dublin, yesterday—Mrs. Kettle, U.D.C., presiding—Mr. John Roy, Secretary and Librarian, Rathmines Public Library, read a paper entitled "Irish Libraries and Librarianship," in which he gave a review of the library movement in this country during the past seventy years.

The first library of which they had any record, said Mr. Roy, was that of Armagh, though, of course, it was known that from the very earliest times the religious houses gathered together collections of books, which were jealously guarded and which were stored in the scriptoria attached to the monasteries. However, it was not until the 18th century that they found any record of a public library as such, with the foundation of Archbishop Narcissus Marsh, which library still exists, housed under the shadow of St. Patrick's Cathedral. The public library of Armagh, founded in 1771; of Cork Cathedral, in 1720; of Derry Cathedral, in 1726, and the libraries of Kilkenny Cathedral and of Raphoe (1737), came under the same category as that of Marsh.

Prior to the 19th century, with the exception of the libraries just named, there was no collection of books in Ireland that could be regarded as a public library. It was not until 1850 that the establishment of public libraries as rate-supported institutions became possible. Dundalk was the first municipality in Ireland to strike a rate for library purposes, and the library which was opened there in 1858 had continued its usefulness down to the present day.

In the early eighties Cork, Dublin, and Belfast decided to put the Libraries Act into operation, but the Dublin and Belfast authorities did nothing until they were compelled by public opinion. In December, 1883, a library committee was appointed by the Dublin Corporation, and in 1884 two municipal libraries were opened. When it was eventually recognised that public libraries were important factors in the intellectual and moral development of the community, it was found that the penny rate was totally inadequate, and the maintenance of libraries in Ireland became a very difficult problem.

Mr. Roy suggested to the Conference that a resolution should be passed calling upon the Government to give extended powers to library authorities to enable County Councils to organise library services. Personally, he looked forward to the future work of public libraries in Ireland with full confidence. He advocated the setting up of commercial reference libraries, and in conclusion said that it was the duty of the present generation to lay a sound foundation on which the young generation might build.

AN IRISH ASSOCIATION.

Mr. J. J. O'Neill, Librarian, University College, Dublin, in the course of a paper on "The Need for an Association of Irish Librarians," briefly referred to Cumann na Leabharlann, which society existed about twenty years ago.

This Cumann was formed in 1904, for the purpose of stimulating the library movement in Ireland generally, and to promote the study of bibliography. The Society had a journal, "An Leabharlann," to which the principal contributors were Mr. Henry Dixon, Mr. E. R. McClintock Dix, "Torna," Sean O Ceallaigh, Mr. John O'Donovan, Mr. James Barry, Mr. Peter White, and the late Mr. Lyster. Both Society and journal, however, had gone out of existence, and nothing had since been done to replace them.

If Ireland had lagged behind in the library movement in the past, one could, however, trust that, under native rule, with Irish ideals in education, science, and art, and a new social and economic system of life, the library would be called upon to play an important part in the life of the people. It might, and could, become in town and village a national adjunct to the school, and prove, indeed, "The Poor Man's University."

It was time that something was done towards forming an association of Irish library workers, an association which would be a common meeting ground for all, whether they worked in the Free State or in Northern Ireland. The Conference should appoint a committee to look into this matter.

Mr. O'Neill then proposed that an association of Irish library workers be inaugurated, with the following policy:—To unite all persons engaged in library work; to promote better administration of libraries; to promote whatever would tend to the improvement of the position and qualifications of librarians; to advance the adoption of the Public Libraries Acts; to promote the establishment and development of reference libraries and lending libraries; to watch legislation affecting libraries; to assist in the promotion of such legislation as might be necessary for the development of libraries, and to hold examinations on librarianship and to issue certificates of efficiency.

Mr. H. Moreland (Bandon) seconded Mr. O'Neill's proposition, which was passed, and a committee of twelve was appointed.

Mr. Lennox Robinson proposed, and Mr. J. Roy seconded, the following resolution, which was adopted.

"That this conference of Irish librarians and persons interested in the education of Ireland urges on the Governments of Southern and Northern Ireland the necessity of amending the law and giving powers to a county authority to levy a rate in support of public libraries, and to extend the powers of the existing library authorities to cover public free libraries and other educational work."

Lieutenant-Colonel Mitchell, a member of the Carnegie Trust, briefly addressed the meeting and congratulated them on the formation of a new Library Association. The organisation and the smoothness and efficiency with which it worked reflected the highest credit on Mr. Lennox Robinson and Mr. McCready. The conference would do a great deal of good, particularly owing to the way in which it was reported in the Dublin Press. He had been reading the report closely every morning, and he had never read better reports. (Applause.)

After Mr. Lennox Robinson had paid a tribute to the work of the other members of the Committee in connection with the conference, a vote of thanks was passed to the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust and its Irish Advisory Committee for the financial assistance rendered, and the conference concluded.

The delegates were then shown over University College Library by Mr. J. J. O'Neill, Librarian.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—The anti-cyclone, centred a little to the west of Ireland, continues to exert a dominating influence over the weather of the British Isles. Fair, rather warm weather is likely to continue in most districts, but in the extreme North and North-West conditions will be less fair, and slight precipitation is probable.

N.W. Ireland.—Wind westerly or north-westerly, light or moderate; cloudy; slight rain or drizzle at times; some coastal mist; moderate temperature.

N.E., S.E. and S.W. Ireland.—Light winds, mainly from north-west; fair; mist in places; morning and evening rather warm.

South-West Seaboard, Mouth of Channel to South-West Ireland; Irish Sea and St. George's Channel.—Wind mainly north-westerly, light or moderate; fine; visibility good; sea slight.

North-West Seaboard, Northern Ireland to Hebrides.—Wind westerly or north-westerly, light or moderate; cloudy; slight rain or drizzle at times; mist locally; sea slight.

LONDON LETTER.

THE POSITION OF THE LABOUR PARTY.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

Labour members still continue to show a marked disinclination to discuss the wild scenes in the House of Commons on Wednesday evening, but those that will talk admit that they expect trouble at the party meeting next week. If so, it will arise not so much from the attitude taken up by Mr. Ramsay Macdonald as from the determination of Mr. Clynes, Mr. Thomas, and Mr. Sidney Webb that their leader shall not be openly flouted, and that discipline shall be maintained in all circumstances. Mr. Macdonald, it is said, would not hesitate to resign in the event of any large section of the party showing a disposition to support the "Reds." That any large section will do so is most improbable.

In the long run, it would probably be a very good thing for the Labour Party if the "Reds" were to secede and form a group of their own under, say, the leadership of Mr. Newbold, who is now seeking inspiration in Moscow. It is possible that the British electorate may some day give a majority to a Labour Party, consisting of trade unionists, co-operatives, Fabians and ex-Liberals. It is inconceivable that it should ever entrust its destinies to a party dominated by the "wild men" from the Clyde, who in no way represent the average British, or even the Scottish, working man.

The Three-Mile Limit.

It is not surprising that the very uncompromising manner in which Lord Curzon turned down the American proposal for an extension of the territorial limit from three to twelve miles should have created a sensation in the United States. Even in the House of Lords the announcement was received without entire unanimity; for Viscount Grey at once expressed doubt as to its necessity. There would, no doubt, be great hostility not merely here, but in other countries, to the general and permanent adoption of a twelve-mile limit, which would, incidentally turn the Straits of Dover from an international highway into a private road, owned on one side by France and on the other by Britain.

Practical Objections.

The American proposal was, however, for a temporary ad hoc extension, designed to enable the United States officers to deal more faithfully with the rum-running fleet, and to this the objections are practical rather than theoretical. It would be no use for Great Britain to agree to the proposed concession unless other maritime nations did so; for the only result would be that the rum-runners would adopt some other flag and continue their lucrative trade.

An International Conference.

If, however, after an international conference on the subject—such as this country has persistently advocated—other European countries were found to be ready to meet America's wishes in the temporary way proposed, I do not suppose that Britain would be found so uncompromising as Lord Curzon's speech yesterday appeared to suggest; for, as he said, the present state of affairs is extremely unsatisfactory, and ought to be altered.

France and Britain.

The Marquis Curzon received the French Ambassador at the Foreign Office to-day. The fact in diplomatic circles is regarded as being most interesting, in view of the need for new conversations between the British, the French and the Belgians on the Ruhr. It is now suggested that out of these conversations a meeting between M. Poincaré and Mr. Baldwin cannot be much longer delayed. Yet, as far as we know, the Prime Minister has not received any detailed answer from the French Government in reply to his inquiry regarding the Ruhr. Until such a reply has been received, or a satisfactory explanation as to its absence sent, it is not easy to see how a meeting between the two Premiers can take place.

The French Air Force.

The decision of the French Government to increase its air estimates by six times the original figure comes rather as a shock on this side. France already has thousands of air planes on a war footing, and most of them are stationed along the Northern and Western coasts of France. It may, of course, be perfectly correct that Germany is concentrating her efforts on creating an air force; and France, knowing this, would be foolish to go unprotected, but whether France should spend a very large sum on such protection is, of course, France's own business. It does seem strange, however, that a few days after the Prime Minister here finds it necessary to announce that we must gradually increase our air forces, France should also find it desirable to make such further advances.

Kenya Colony.

A political correspondent of the Evening Standard forecasts the manner in which the dispute in Kenya Colony will ultimately be adjusted. At present, it will be remembered, the white settlers are claiming self-government, the Indians demand to be placed on equality with the whites, and the natives plead that their interests should not be placed at the mercy of either whites or browns. The correspondent's belief is that the highlands will be reserved for the white settlers, who will be assured of a permanent majority on the Legislative Council. The Indians will be represented communally on the Council, and there will be a slightly higher property and educational qualification for both white immigrants and Indians. A Commissioner will be appointed to look after the interests of the natives on the Council. Independent information leads me to think that this forecast will turn out to be substantially correct.

Irish Questions.

The Prime Minister will be asked by Captain Wedgwood Benn next Monday whether he can now make a statement as to the inquiry into the regulations made under the Restoration of Order in Ireland Act.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor next Monday will ask Mr. Ormsby-Gore whether he can say on what date the Government will issue an Order in Council extending the provisions of the Colonial Solicitors Act to the Irish Free State, admitting Irish solicitors to practise in England on the same terms as English solicitors are admitted to practise in the Free State.

The Air Force Memorial.

The Royal Air Force Memorial on the Embankment, which is to be unveiled shortly by the Prince of Wales, is already one of the features of the riverside promenade. It is topped by a great golden eagle with outstretched wings, as if prepared for flight across the river. This eagle is perched on a globe surmounting the stonework of the memorial. This and the size of the memorial will make it conspicuous along the sweep of the Embankment.

An Irish Engagement.

Among the engagements announced to-day was that of the Hon. John Mulholland, M.C., youngest son of Lord and Lady Dunleath, and the Hon. Olivia Vernon Harcourt, second daughter of the late Viscount Harcourt.

Senhor C. E. Moitinho d'Almeida, of the Portuguese Board of Trade, has arrived in London with the object of studying British markets, with special reference to Anglo-Portuguese commerce.

DUBLIN SOCIETY

RUHR PROBLEM AGAIN.

EARLY REPLY TO BRITISH QUESTIONS EXPECTED.

SEVEN DEATH SENTENCES.

M. POINCARE REAFFIRMS FRANCE'S DETERMINATION.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Friday.

The solution of the Belgian crisis is the signal for the announcement that the negotiations with England on the Ruhr occupation are to be resumed at once.

M. Theunis's difficulties may not, it is admitted, prove to be over when he meets the Chamber on Tuesday, but it is assumed that he will be able to state that Belgium's relations with France and the Belgian support of the Ruhr policy remain unaffected.

Agreement on the reply to be made to the British questionnaire of June 13, is said, indeed, to have been reached between Paris and Brussels a week ago, and M. de St. Aulaire has for some days been in possession of the views of his Government on all the points raised in that document, and of the French intentions in the Ruhr generally.

Minor points arising out of the situation in Belgium may cause a further delay of a day or two, but it is expected that he will ask to see Lord Curzon early next week.

For the moment there is no great optimism here, and we are still not on the eve of a meeting between Mr. Baldwin and M. Poincaré that would mark a definite prospect of agreement.

I am told that the French Ambassador will not submit written replies to Lord Curzon's questions, and the situation may be judged from that. M. Poincaré still thinks oral exchanges best, and it is explained that to commit the French views to paper at the present stage might make plainer the disaccord that still exists.

NO RELAXATION.

RUHR TO BE HELD TILL GERMANY REPENTS.

PARIS, Friday.

In the course of a discussion in the Senate to-day on the Ruhr credits, M. Poincaré emphasised that the Ruhr expenses were incurred by the three Allies, in the interest of all the Allies, and said: "I desire to explain once more to the spiritual and temporal powers in foreign countries how justified are the measures that we have taken, and that we shall take, if necessary, with regard to the recalcitrant debtor."

After a rapid survey of the reparations question up to the occupation of the Ruhr, M. Poincaré continued:—"If we had political or military aims, we should have occupied the valley of the Maine, in order to cut Germany in two. We only wished to exercise an efficacious economic pressure; that is why we occupied the Ruhr, the strong box of the recalcitrant debtor, and, according to the saying of Mr. Bonar Law, the jugular vein of Germany."

OFFICIAL ENCOURAGEMENT.

M. Poincaré then said that the idea of passive resistance was really instigated by the Berlin Government and the big manufacturers. This was not always understood abroad. France did not intend to renounce her victory, and would oppose her will to that of the conquered nation which would not recognise its defeat.

After paying a tribute to the French railway workers, M. Poincaré explained the French methods for dealing with German sabotage, and said—"We replied by a sort of blockade, affecting only coal and metals, and not in any way affecting the provisioning of the district. Food supplies enter freely, and the troops are not fed on the resources of the country. Germany, in offering passive resistance, desired to deprive France of coal and coke; for the Germans knew better than anyone of the state of the factories of Northern France."

Germany was now distributing money to officials and workers, and was doing nothing to put an end to the deplorable situation. Not a day passed but that some German business man endeavoured to come to terms with French business men or politicians. None of these attempts had ever succeeded. Germany hoped either for the intervention of the Allies or that help might come through the discouragement and lassitude of France; but she was very much mistaken.

TREATY MUST BE ENFORCED.

France was determined upon the execution of the Treaty, and France and Belgium had decided not to examine any proposals until Germany's resistance had ended. M. Poincaré concluded—"We do not want to take possession of the Ruhr; we shall merely keep it until Germany has paid her last debts. Germany's proposals are not serious and do not deserve a reply. If she does not understand, so much the worse for her.

"We shall not abandon such a valuable pledge as the Ruhr until she has paid her debts. If we re-crossed the Rhine before this payment were accomplished, it would appear a humiliation for us, and Germany would appear to be revenged. What would happen then in Germany? What follies would German Nationalists not indulge in?

"The French troops are not only defending the signed Treaties, but also the German Republic herself against the aberrations of Nationalists. The troops will finish their work of justice and peace, and will thus once more deserve well of their country."

THE POPE'S LETTER.

Before the vote was taken on the occupation credits, several senators referred to the Pope's letter. M. Albert remarked that the letter was singularly like the last German proposals, and asked M. Poincaré what was his attitude towards the "White Catholic International."

M. Poincaré—I only know France and the Republic!

Count de Blois (Catholic)—Although I deeply respect the Pope in matters of dogma, I retain my freedom in matters relating to the foreign and domestic politics of my country.—(Reuter.)

EDUCATE THE WORKERS.

PREMIER ON THE WAY TO MEET PROPAGANDA.

Speaking at the annual dinner of the National Unionist Association in London last night, the Prime Minister said there was an inclination on the part of the rising generation to rely more for instruction on the eye than on the mind, and the tendency would be for this enormous young electorate to go to a party which offered an attractive case, and saved them the trouble of thinking.

Workers must be educated to what was meant by the vigorous propaganda carried on in the country. It was no good meeting propaganda about a capital levy by saying that such a levy was a form of robbery. A capital levy was a perfectly legitimate form of taxation. But people should be shown that a capital levy would be stupid. If people saw that a proposition was stupid, they would be more likely to vote against it than they would if they thought it merely unmoral.

LABOUR'S OLD MEN.

Addressing the Glasgow Conservative Club yesterday, Captain Elliot, M.P., Under Secretary of Health for Scotland, said the Unionist Party was adding to its ranks thinkers from other political schools, who realised that conditions were changing. The new Unionists were capturing the youth of the country. In Parliament they had twice as many members under 40 years of age as belonged to the whole of the Opposition.

They did not grudge Mr. Smillie his success. If Labour liked to return old men they could do so, but Unionists would send young men to Parliament and beat them. The Labour Party's old figures, their Sydney Webbs and Robert Smillies, people who were trained in the Victoria era, had not grasped the fact that Socialism had been tried by half-a-dozen countries since first they preached it, and in every case had proved a calamitous failure.

A SHAKESPEARE THEATRE.

PROPOSED SALE OF A LONDON PROPERTY.

A summons to have it decided whether the Earl of Lytton, as trustee of the Shakespeare Memorial Trust, might sell the site in Gower street, London, originally bought for the erection of a national theatre, came before the Chancery Division in London yesterday. The respondents to the summons were the Attorney-General, Sir Israel Gollancz, Adele Lady Meyer, and the Public Trustee.

Counsel for the plaintiff said that the movement for a Shakespeare Memorial was started in 1904, largely by Sir Israel Gollancz. It was originally intended to have a monument. Later it was decided to have a national theatre, and to collect half a million to build and endow it. Sir Carl Meyer [illegible] £70,000, and the site was purchased from the Duke of Beaufort for £[illegible]00, exclusive of the £70,000. In view of the circumstances produced by the war it was impracticable to erect a theatre on the scale originally intended, and it was desired to sell the [illegible] for £52,000 to the Rockefeller Foundation for the establishment of a School of Hygiene to be used largely in connection with University College. There was express provision in the contract of sale that if the consent of the Charity Commissioners were [illegible] the vendors should obtain it. The [illegible] had, however, arisen as to whether the trust constituted a charity which would give the Charity Commissioners jurisdiction to [illegible].

Mr. Justice Lawrence held that the trust was [illegible], but the case was adjourned for [illegible] the point whether the trust was [illegible] jurisdiction of the Charity Com-

LABOUR FALLACIES.

U.S. PRESIDENT COMPARES AMERICA AND RUSSIA.

HELENA, Friday.

President Harding, discussing the Labour situation in an address here to-day, declared that between the two extremes he had tried to hold the scales even. In justification of his policy, he pointed to the present condition of the country.

Its credit, he said, is preserved; its industries are crowded to the point of their capacity and production; its people are employed, and its scale of wages is so high as to be beyond all comparison with any other in the world.

By way of contrast, the President drew a picture of Russia, saying that it had made the experiment, and declaring that if American Radicals had their way there would be less of freedom, much less of reward, and little hope.—(Reuter.)

THE PATRIARCH'S RELEASE.

DESIRES THE CHURCH TO BE NON-POLITICAL.

SPECIAL INTERVIEW.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Friday.

I visited the Patriarch Tikhon in the Donskio Monastery this morning. He looked frail and old, and was evidently tired by the constant stream of visitors.

He said that he felt ill a month ago after eating fish, and was removed to the Lubianka Prison, where he was well cared for.

"I desire the Church," he said, "to be entirely non-political. If I am a counter-revolutionary the State will try me, but I cannot accept the demand that the Living Church should repent before the secular authority.

"The Living Church is at present in a minority, but if there is to be in future Church union it rests with them.

"I approve of the reform of the calendar, but not of other changes. I have no plans, because I do not know what the future may bring forth, though I am free to-day. I shall pray with others if desired, otherwise I shall pray alone."

HELSINGFORS, Friday.

The Patriarch Tikhon was released on Wednesday, but the Moscow tribunal states that the trial will still go on.—(Reuter.)

RIGA, Friday.

To-day the Soviet Government announces that the Patriarch Tikhon has informed a representative of the Rosta (Bolshevik) that the foreign Press reports about torture were pure nonsense, and that he had not suffered during his incarceration, except through his inability to hold services.

He stated that he regarded his unfrocking as invalid, and intended to form a group of prelates, with the object of continuing his clerical duties.—(Reuter.)

FIGHT TO BE CONTINUED IN AFGHANISTAN.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Friday.

Bokhara newspapers reaching here report that Enver Pasha has been buried in the village of Djagatay, in the province of Balhan. The fight against the Bolshevists is to be continued in Eastern Afghanistan by Sulayman Pasha, a former Turkish officer, who was imprisoned by the Russians. Numerous Turkish officers who since the war escaped from Russia are reported to be with him. Their object is to drive the "Reds" from Bokhara and form a Turkish State in Turkestan. Prince Said, of Bokhara, is also said to be aiding Sulayman Pasha.

FIGHT FOR A FORTUNE.

MYSTERY OF PARALYTIC'S ALLEGED WILL.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Friday.

Did Madame Marguerite Prieur, of Paris, really write a will purporting to bequeath 3,000,000 francs to her brother, Mathias Bove, a florist, of Chicago? The question has become one of the most interesting mysteries ever confronting the French Courts, and Professor Locard, the leading criminologist of France, has been called in to testify on behalf of Bove as to the authenticity of the will.

Madame Prieur, who in 1891 was a cook in a restaurant, married Jules Prieur, a young business man who accumulated a fortune which to-day stands at between 20,000,000 and 30,000,000 francs. Madame Prieur in 1904 believed herself dying, and made a will in favour of her husband, as otherwise half of the family fortune would have gone to her relatives at her death.

A few days after her death in 1912 her sisters produced a will dated March 11, 1912, in favour of Mathias Bove and her two sisters; and under which Bove's own share would be at least 3,000,000 francs.

The husband contested the will in Paris in December, 1921, when handwriting experts swore that the will was authentic. Twenty doctors and witnesses swore that the woman could not possibly have written the will, as she was paralysed. The husband won.

Bove appealed, and has now enlisted Professor Locard and secured other new evidence. The case is expected to drag out for several months, so the Court has postponed further hearing until October next.

TURKISH ELECTIONS.

KEMAL'S CANDIDATES WINNING.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Friday.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha has scored a victory at the Turkish polls. Two thousand electors of the second degree elected last week to choose the Constantinople representation on the Grand National Assembly at Angora have unanimously returned the 15 candidates proposed by Mustapha Kemal.

Since the withdrawal of the Union of Progress from the elections a month ago all opposition has been broken. Among the Constantinople deputies proposed by Kemal Pasha was Ismail Djambolat Bey, Chief of the Unionists, who tried some time ago unsuccessfully to bring about a compromise with the Nationalists. The representation of Ismail is a sop to the Unionists.

The Kemalists also carried Smyrna. For the first time in the history of Turkey the votes of the electors of the second degree have been obtained by women—Lafite Hanoum, wife of Kemal Pasha, and Halide Edibe, who secured the vote for Smyrna. The people do not vote directly for the deputies, but for the electors. Lafite Hanoum has wired her thanks to the Smyrna population, asserting that the vote is a symbol of the coming political social freedom of the Turkish women.

In the twenty-five big election districts in Anatolia only one Opposition candidate was elected. The successful candidate is Ali Issan Konia, who, through religious connections, constitutes Kemal Pasha's most dangerous rival.

SUSPENDED M.P.'s.

THE LABOUR PARTY MEETING.

BY OUR LOBBY CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Friday.

Next Tuesday's meeting of the Parliamentary Labour Party is a topic of lively interest in political circles. Contrary to practice, the meeting will not be held at the House of Commons. A suspended M.P. is excluded from the precincts of the House, and, therefore, to enable the suspended members to take part in Tuesday's proceedings the party meeting will be held outside the bounds of St. Stephen's.

It is estimated that eighty per cent. of the members of the Labour Party will unreservedly approve the attitude adopted by Mr. Ramsay Macdonald in deprecating violent interruptions in debate and scenes of disorder. Of the remaining twenty per cent., the majority agree in principle that the party cause is not advanced by unparliamentary methods, but plead justification for individual cases on account of alleged provocation. The general belief in the party is that the meeting will end in confirming, and perhaps strengthening, Mr. Macdonald's leadership.

EARTHQUAKE PROPHECY.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Friday.

Mr. W. Wheeler, of Ealing, whose message to the London Star recently about the earthquake and the arrival of summer, turned out to be correct, has been honoured by special interviews in the French newspapers, as well as by a special article on his prophecies by the director of the Weather Bureau. He has replied by predicting an earthquake for Italy on July 4th.

END OF THEATRE DISPUTE.

MEN ACCEPT PROPOSAL OF EMPLOYERS.

HOUSES TO REOPEN AT ONCE.

Patrons in Dublin of the picture house and the theatre will be glad to learn that the dispute, which resulted in the closing of the majority of places of entertainment in the city, has been settled. Yesterday, at a meeting of the employés in Liberty Hall, the proposals submitted by Alderman Alfred Byrne, Acting Lord Mayor, were accepted.

An official of the Theatre and Cinema Proprietors' Association informed a representative of the Irish Times last evening that most of the picture houses will be re-opened on Sunday, and that all will be showing as usual on Monday. The Theatre Royal will also re-open on Monday, but no definite arrangements had been made last evening with regard to the other theatres, announcements in respect of which will appear in due course.

In our advertising columns this morning the Olympia Theatre, La Scala, Sackville street, and the Pavilion, Kingstown, announce picture programmes for to-morrow. At the Theatre Royal a revue, "Jig-Saw," will be presented twice nightly on Monday and throughout the week.

THE GENERAL ELECTION.

FARMERS ORGANISING.

APPEAL TO ELECTORS IN MEATH.

The first meeting of the farmers of Meath, in connection with the coming general election, was held in Navan yesterday. Representative farmers from all parts of Meath attended, and the pavilion in the Show Grounds, where the meeting was held, was crowded. Mr. Daniel Corry, Chairman of the Meath Farmers' Union, presided.

Mr. D. J. Gorey, a member of Dail Eireann, who was enthusiastically received said that the responsibility thrown on the agricultural element was the greatest responsibility that could be thrown on any section of the community at present. For the last ten months the agricultural interests in this country had been looked after by a small party, and that party had done its business fairly well. They had been able to represent agricultural interests because they were the only party in the Dail that knew anything about agriculture. What could they not do in the future with a strong party. Their policy in the past had been national, constructive, democratic and economic. In the future their policy was going to be national in every sense of the word.

Continuing, he said that it might be stated that it would be a national calamity if the present Government, in its entirety, was not returned to the Dail. He would say that there were men that it would be a national calamity to lose; but how many? About ten. He did not think that it would be a national calamity to lose the rest. He thought that they could be very well replaced from the ranks of the agricultural community. The farmers were told to stand aside twelve months ago. Men wanted them to stand aside now, and if they did they would be asked to do the same in ten or twenty years' time. They replied that there would be no more stand aside. Whatever was going to be done in the next Dail, the agricultural element and the Farmers' Party would have a hand in it. They came there to ask the farmers of Meath to do their duty; the other counties in Ireland would do theirs.

Mr. Baxter, Co. Cavan, said that they wanted the farmers to play their part in the making of the future Irish nation. They could not boast to-day that agriculture was in a prosperous state, and they did not know what the future held out for it, or if things were going to improve. It was for that reason that they should be prepared, and if they allowed agricultural interests in this country to go by default their homes would suffer. It was rumoured that there was going to be another pact, another coalition between the farmers' organisation and the present Government. He did not think that it was true; farmers did not want it.

Answering a delegate, Mr. Gorey said that the result of the deputation that waited on the Ministry was that the military would not be used to assist sheriffs at seizures, and where they had been so used it had been done by the local commanders and without Government authority.

EIGHT HUNDRED IDLE.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE AT PORT OF DUBLIN.

Eight hundred dockers at the Port of Dublin are out of work as a direct result of the seamen's strike.

No change in the situation is reported, except that the ss. Lady Meath, of the British and Irish Steam Packet Company, which arrived from Manchester yesterday, has been added to the list of vessels laid up at the port.

In connection with the strike the Executive of the Dublin Trades' Council passed the following resolution:—

"That we, the members of the Executive of the Dublin Trades Council, protest against the action of the Irish Transport Union in calling a strike to compel the members of any particular union to give up their membership in that union and join another union against their own desires: that such action not only deprives the member of any benefits that he may be entitled to, but takes away from the individual the right of liberty of choice to please himself as to which union is most advantageous to him."

Commenting on the position in the course of a speech at Liberty Hall last night, Mr. James Larkin said that he had been asked over and over again by deputations to take part in the struggle against the ship-owners, but he had declined to interfere.

The dispute on the quays, Mr. Larkin added, was a fight for a principle which affected the economic life of the workers.

A MODERN SQUEERS.

HORRIBLE CONDITIONS IN A BELGIAN SCHOOL.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BRUSSELS, Friday.

A great scandal has been discovered at Ranst, near Antwerp. The police raided a private school, which is stated to be like Squeers' School in "Nicholas Nickleby." It was alleged to be run by a man of loose character, assisted by two so-called "professors," and that the premises were in a filthy condition.

The school had accommodation for only twenty children, but there were over a hundred there, many of them less than six years of age. They slept in a loft where vegetables were rotting, and where the atmosphere was unbearable. The food consisted of dry bread and unpeeled potatoes; meat was never given.

Certain children had been maltreated, among them a little girl of six years. Some children suffered from scabies. Two little English children, named E. and J. Wesby, aged 8 and 10, had had no news of their parents for over two years, and it is said that they had been put to do the most ignoble work.

The fee was 600 francs a year. It is thought that some parents sent their children there to be rid of them.

An inquiry has established the fact that one child died some months ago, and that his body rested a whole night in a bed where two other children were sleeping. The director and the professors have been arrested.—(Reuter.)

WIMBLEDON THRILLS.

EXCITING LAWN TENNIS "FINAL."

MR. RICHARDS BEATEN.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Friday.

I think we saw what was, to all intents and purposes, the final of the Men's Singles at Wimbledon to-day, when W. M. Johnston met his fellow-countryman, Vincent Richards. Johnston won at 6-4, 6-3, 7-5, and who is going to beat him now? The little man from the Pacific Coast ought to "walk" the remaining rounds, and win Gerald L. Patterson's title. There is no rival left in who can be placed in the same class as this little wonder from America.

It is so easy to sit in the stand and criticise, and it is so hard to play against a man of Johnston's class. But, while making that reservation, I think it is permissible to say that Richards would have been well advised to have adopted more daring tactics during the first two sets. He is the prince of volleyers—but it was Johnston who did most of the volleying in this game.

With Johnston leading by two sets to nil, and 5-2 in the third set, Richards did one of the most dramatic things I have ever seen. He threw caution to the four winds, and went all out on a campaign of net play. He followed up his service, and was at the net whenever he could get anywhere near it. He drew up to 3-5, 4-5, and then 5 all, and the crowd, in a frenzy of excitement, rose at him at the end of a wonderful tenth game, when he levelled the set with a dazzling smash from the back of the court.

For a moment it seemed that there was a chance for Richards, for he was playing a game of such glittering brilliance that even Johnston had to give him best.

Then came the sequel. Suddenly all the snap seemed to have gone out of Richards. Johnston was as cool as ice during that all-important game, and he played with a mechanical precision. There was still a chance for Richards, but he could not keep up the pressure. The end was a somewhat unusual one. With Johnston requiring only one point, Richards served a fault, his second service hit the net, and the ball trickled over, and then shot off out of the service court. Richards had served a double fault, and was beaten. For a moment he looked terribly crest-fallen, and then he ran up to the net and shook hands with his conqueror.

It is a true saying that a player does just as well as his opponent allows him to do, and that fact explains why Richards could not produce the splendid form he showed against Brugnon. He was up against something too hot.

I never hope to see finer driving and volleying than came from Johnston while he was gaining a winning grip on the game. He made mistakes, but they did not count when weighed in the balance against the glorious array of winning shots, which left his racket like shots from a gun.

Richards was out-generalled by a man whose brain, eye, and hand were acting in perfect unison. Richards was often out of position, Johnston hardly ever. Richards hovered about far too much in mid-court, where he got balls put to his feet, and could not return them. Johnston never committed that first-class error—he was either right back or right up. But one's last word concerning Vincent Richards must be one of commendation. He gave us the great thrill of the meeting when he sailed in to make that last heroic but unavailing effort to snatch a victory.

It was one of those Wimbledon "moments" which remain photographed on the memory for years.

Before the game commenced both players were presented to the King, who had arrived a few minutes before, accompanied by the Queen and Princess Mary.

Nothing else seemed to matter apart from this grand game. Vintage champagne spoils one for barley water.

There was a centre court surprise when Randolph Lycett was beaten by F. G. Lowe, who won at 6-1, 8-6, 3-6, 6-3. It was a two hours' struggle from the base-line, and Lowe won because of his unfaltering steadiness. Lycett was tired towards the finish, but never gave in.

Mlle. Lenglen, in company with Miss Ryan, made a brief appearance on the centre, and beat Mrs. Perrett and Miss Rimington—6-0, 6-0.

Miss Ryan played extremely well while beating Mrs. Craddock, and the chief factor in her victory was her famous chop stroke, which she played with unerring accuracy.

LAHORE, Friday.

A fracas between Hindus and Mussulmans, resulting in slight injuries to a number of persons on both sides, occurred to-day in a crowded locality of the city, the cause being the pulling down of a wall belonging to a Hindu, to which his Mussulman neighbour objected. TREVESSA'S OTHER BOAT.

REACHES MAURITIUS SAFELY.

SAILS 2,100 MILES IN 25 DAYS.

EIGHT MEN DIE DURING VOYAGE.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

MAURITIUS, Friday.

The final chapter of the great story of the wreck of the Trevessa can now be told.

This morning a ship's boat appeared off Souillac, on the south coast of the island, and those on shore who saw it said "This must be the Trevessa's second lifeboat."

Down to the shore went all who had heard of the arrival of the boat. Those who had at once thought of the Trevassa were right. It was the battered boat which had been so eagerly looked for and searched for so long in vain.

Sixteen exhausted men, one or two of them in a pitiably weak condition, were soon landed. They had been 25 days at sea, during which they must have drifted, rowed, and sailed over 2,100 miles.

They had a tragic story to tell. After the first expressions of sympathy and congratulations on their safe arrival following their sufferings and perils, they told those who surrounded them that eight men died from exhaustion and hunger during their long and stormy voyage in the open boat.

Before the arrival of the second lifeboat the British cruiser Colombo had begun a search for it, scouring the sea in all directions. But like the search for the captain's boat it did not succeed, and the sixteen men, after great suffering heroically borne, steered their own way to safety.

The Colombo left Mauritius on Wednesday for Rodriguez to see if the men had landed, and on learning that they had not been seen at once left for the search.

When Captain Foster landed at Rodriguez he reported that there were 24 men in the second lifeboat. Out of a total crew of 44, therefore, 34 have been saved.

The names of survivors of the second lifeboat, says Reuter, are:—Smith, Hall, Sumner, Bainbridge, Stainton, Wilson, Bell, Sheirjahn, Goddard, Edwards, Burke, Sturt, Brinks, Woolley, Seaborn, and Alchunn.

All are making progress except the last two, who are very weak.

OBITUARY.

MR. JUSTICE GIBSON.

We regret to announce the death of the Right Hon. John George Gibson, P.C., formerly a judge of His Majesty's High Court in Ireland, which occurred at Colwyn Bay on Thursday.

Mr. Justice Gibson, who was in his seventy-eighth year, was the youngest son of the late Mr. William Gibson, of Rockforest, Tipperary, a Taxing Master in Chancery. His mother was a daughter of Mr. Joseph Grant, a member of the Irish Bar. He was born in Dublin on February 13th, 1846, and received his early education at Portora Royal School, Enniskillen, afterwards going to Trinity College, where he had a brilliant career. He was Classical Scholar, double first gold medalist and Vice-Chancellor's prizeman. Like his elder brother, Lord Ashbourne, he was Auditor of the College Historical Society. However, with the exception of reading the customary address, he was not able to take any further part in the meetings of the society, as he went to London to study conveyancing. At the age of twenty-four he was called to the Irish Bar, and in the following year he married a daughter of the Reverend John Hare. Some of the late judge's friends remember that the success which he achieved at the Bar was predicted for him by one who was well able to detect real ability, his cousin, the late Mr. Labarte, formerly, for many years, Librarian to the Honourable Benchers of King's Inns. Mr. Labarte was himself a scholar of much culture, and Mr. Gibson's regular attendance at the Henrietta street Library and his assiduity in reading did not escape his notice.

Among his immediate contemporaries at the Bar were Mr. John Monroe and Mr. Hugh Holmes, afterwards Lord Justice of Appeal. Mr. Gibson, however, in a short time obtained an extensive practice and was soon employed as junior counsel in all cases where his services were available. In ten years he took silk and practsied equity at common law and in the Courts of Probate, Admiralty and Bankruptcy, as well as in the Land Commission Court. Mr. Gibson, who was a member of the Leinster Circuit, was particularly distinguished for his knowledge of case law. As a speaker he had a nervous style of oratory, which however was most effective with juries; but more than any oratorical gifts, his success at the Bar was due to the diligent care which he bestowed on every brief that was sent to him. In 1885 he was appointed Serjeant-at-Law in succession to Mr. Serjeant Armstrong, and in the same year he was returned to Parliament for the Walton Division of Liverpool. Immediately afterwards he became Solicitor-General. Two years later he was advanced to the Attorney-Generalship, and in 1888 was appointed a Judge of the Queen's Bench. At that time he was the youngest judge on the bench in this island, and when he retired in 1921, although not the oldest, he had the longest service.

Unlike his elder brother, the late judge's tastes did not lie in politics. He was by nature a lawyer, and no person who once saw him could have made any mistake as to the profession to which he belonged. Both at the Bar and on the Bench, as well as in private life, Mr. Justice Gibson was held in the highest esteem. As a judge he seemed to have given the same care to the thorough knowledge of every case that came before him as he did when an advocate. His decisions were rarely the subject of appeal, and more rarely still were they reversed. At times there might have been a brusqueness about his manner, which did not arise from any want of sympathy, but was due to a nervousness from which he frequently suffered. Uncommon as is the occurrence of two brothers being on the Bench together, it is not without precedent, for the brothers Pennefather were at the same time judges, one being Lord Chief Justice of Ireland and the other Chief Baron.

THE LATEST FORD STORY.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

VIENNA, Friday.

A rumour that Mr. Henry Ford, the American millionaire motor car manufacturer, was arriving in Vienna to arrange the taking over of the Austrian Arms Factory at Styria, and would produce 40,000 cars annually, caused the shares of the company to skyrocket on the Bourse to-day.

It was discovered later that the prospective arrival was another American named Ford of less world-fame than the motor manufacturer. In the meantime, however, speculators had cleaned up not inconsiderable fortunes.

The Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague has agreed to the intervention of Poland in the case of the British steamer Wimbledon, and has fixed the hearing of the case for July 5.

LIQUOR SEIZING TO CONTINUE.

U.S. UNIMPRESSED BY PEERS' REMARKS.

AMENDMENT OF "DRY" LAW UNLIKELY.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

Lord Curzon's statement in the House of Lords yesterday that Great Britain would in no circumstances agree to the extension of the territorial sea limit from three to twelve miles has created some surprise in official circles here. Unofficially, it is declared that the statement is somewhat premature, as no official reply has yet been received to the American proposals, either from Great Britain or any other Power.

It is said in some quarters that the American State Department will claim the right of search within a twelve-mile limit, in accordance with the decisions of the American Courts.

According to other information, I learn definitely that no programme has yet been formulated for the seizure of ships contravening the law. It has, however, been decided by the health authorities here that malt liquor must on no account be classified as medicine, and all such will hereafter be confiscated.

As to the suggestion that the whole question at issue might be settled by diplomatic methods, the opinion is expressed by high officials that Congress will refuse to amend the prohibition law in such a way as to allow of sealed liquor being brought into and taken out of American ports.

If the twelve-mile limit proposal is rejected, it is almost certain that ships' liquor stores will continue to be seized.

Reuter's Correspondent adds:—With regard to the opinions expressed in the House of Lords' debate, implying that the Supreme Court's decision with regard to liquor in ships gave the United States Government certain discretionary powers in the application of the law, it is explained in administration circles here that these views probably arise from the Court's reference to sovereign power. American officials interpret the term as meaning the people of the United States. The will of the people, it is added, can be declared only by a law enacted by Congress; therefore, Congress alone is the agency which can exercise discretion in dealing with the matter.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

It is authoritatively stated that Great Britain's flat rejection of the 12-mile limit has left the United States Administration no alternative but to await the will of Congress as to the revision of the Prohibition Law, and, meanwhile, to refuse the admittance of ships' liquor stores under penalty of seizure.

MR. MELLON ARRIVES.

NO OFFICIAL MISSION.

Mr. A. W. Mellon, Secretary to the United States Treasury, was among the passengers arriving at Southampton yesterday evening from New York by the White Star liner Majestic. He said that his visit to England had no official significance whatever. The statement that he had come on an official mission was pure invention.

Asked if there was any truth in the cabled report that the United States Government had decided to seize and confiscate ships which carried alcoholic liquor, he said that that was another invention.

Regarding Prohibition generally, he observed that he would rather not express himself. There was nothing to be said concerning it which had not already been uttered.

He had brought over his family for a two months' holiday, and hoped to return home early in September.

MORE LIQUOR SEIZED.

NEW YORK, Friday.

The Customs authorities to-day seized from the White Star liner Olympic the following liquor stores reserved for the East-bound voyage:—485 bottles of spirits, 819 bottles of wine, 3,336 bottles of ale and stout, and four kegs of beer.

Officials of the French liner Chicago, from which 64 barrels of beer were thrown into the river yesterday, have applied for the return of the barrels, waiving "all right on claim for the beer."—(Reuter.)

DOMESTIC SERVICE.

FINAL SESSION OF LONDON INQUIRY.

At the final session of the Domestic Service inquiry in London yesterday Miss Crossfield, Secretary to the Inquiry, and Mrs. Barton, of the Women's Co-Operative Guild, both deprecated suggestions of domestic service training in the last year of girls' school life, on the ground that it would disable them from skilled callings.

They held that the only remedy to ensure an increased supply of domestics was better conditions of service and a more dignified status.

Another witness accusing the Labour Exchanges of apathy on the question, the Chairman observed that, unless there was concrete evidence as to the alleged abuse of the dole, the Committee could not make any recommendation on the matter.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH OUTBREAK.

Foot-and-mouth disease has spread to another farm at Skeffling, Yorkshire, amongst sheep in a field about a mile from the place where the first outbreak occurred. All the sheep on the farm, numbering 57 ewes and 112 lambs are to be slaughtered. It is stated that an Order will be issued to-day reducing the prohibited area to a radius of five miles from Skeffling, the remaining area previously prohibited being made a controlled area, in which licences may be issued for the removal of the animals for feeding purposes, etc.

TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

THE LURE OF LAWN TENNIS.

PLAY AT WIMBLEDON.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

Twice in the last two days the King and Queen have driven down to Wimbledon Park to watch some of the play in the lawn tennis championships. Their interest in the greatest of lawn games is a significant tribute to the strength of the growing attraction which it has for all who care for good, clean sport. Each year the lure of the famous centre court grows more potent, and the queue at the gates longer and longer. Each year more and more players cross the seas to fight against our British players on our English turf. Too often in recent years they have come not only to fight, but to conquer. Last June the winners of the two chief events of the meeting were a Frenchwoman and an Australian. This summer—for summer has really come at last—it looks extremely likely that the new champions will be a Frenchwoman and an American. By general consent, the winner of the match which the King and Queen saw yesterday between the two Americans, Mr. W. M. Johnston and Mr. Vincent Richards, was expected to fight his way to the final round of the men's singles, and probably to win outright. The form which both men showed was of the highest class—and that in these days means a great deal.

GERMANY'S PERIL.

DANGERS AHEAD.

The Times Special Correspondent at Cologne states in a message yesterday:—I have had conversations yesterday and to-day with several leading personalities in Rhineland, some of whom are in close touch not only with the great industrialists, but also with the German Government, which places considerable reliance on their knowledge of Rhineland matters. I found these political leaders impressed with the growing seriousness of the situation in the occupied and invaded territories. No attempt is now made to conceal the perils ahead. The cost of living has risen to such a height that no one seems to have the courage to face the necessary adjustment of wages to meet it.

The food situation is alarming from every point of view. Potatoes are almost unobtainable, and such as are on sale are listed at almost prohibitive prices. It must be remembered that potatoes form the staple food of the Rhinelander. The shortage is only due in a secondary sense to French interference with transport services—the bad harvest is a more important factor. It is in this soil that Communist propaganda is thriving, and I believe it is the fear of the Red revolution which has brought about a distinct change in the attitude of Rhineland leaders. There is a desire that the Government should enter into negotiations for an armistice, which did not exist three weeks ago, because the imminence and serious nature of the dangers threatened are now beginning to be realised.

A FRENCH TRIAL.

M. JUDET'S IRISH CORRESPONDENT.

Telegraphing from Paris last night, The Times Correspondent states:—The opening of the charges against M. Ernest Judet was finished to-day. The last stage of the main examination related to letters addressed to M. Judet by a man who styled himself "Waverley," a number of which were seized on October 24, 1915, at Pontarlier, on the Swiss frontier.

M. Judet said that "Waverley," who had died recently at the age of 80, was a remarkable man. He was a grand seigneur of an old and noble Irish family, an ex-officer who had formerly served in France. He knew every country and language. M. Judet said he had engaged him to write articles for L'Eclair, and, in addition to these articles, he sent private letters. What action he had taken at the Vatican, and later in Switzerland, had been taken with "Waverley," and, as he knew that certain persons desired to get possession of these letters, he sent them to a friend in Switzerland for safe keeping. Nobody knew English politics better than "Waverley," and it was through him that M. Judet studied these questions. He was on the side of the Allies, but saw their faults.

THE WHISKEY SEIZURES.

The Daily Chronicle, in a leading article on the question of the seizure in New York of liquor under seal in British ships, says:—Our hope is not in the law, which is clearly against us, but in diplomacy; not in assertion of our rights, which are dubious, and, in any case, unenforceable, but in infecting the Americans with our own spirit of reasonableness. The crux of the whole problem is American resentment at our contraband trade in whiskey with American boot-leggers.

COUNT KAROLYI'S APPEAL.—Reuter's Budapest Correspondent telegraphed yesterday:—At the hearing of the appeal brought by Count Michael Karolyi against the confiscation of his property, which is valued at 25 to 30 milliard crowns, the Court ruled that eight million crowns was to be appropriated for the expenses of the two lawyers representing the Count and four millions for the prosecuting counsel. The Court, in upholding the confiscation, held that Article 76 of the Treaty of Trianon in no way applied to the case, since it only affected persons residing in detached territories. It was declared that the charge of high treason had been fully proved, and that Count Karolyi, after having plunged his [illegible]—(Reuter.)

LABOUR CONFERENCE.

BRITISH MONARCHY UNDER DISCUSSION.

At the concluding session of the Labour Party's annual Conference at Queen's Hall, London, yesterday, Mr. Sidney Webb presiding, the Conference adopted a composite resolution on the housing problem, calling on the Government for the immediate undertaking, to be made obligatory on every local authority, of a three years' programme of house-building sufficient to provide decent, sanitary and adequately commodious houses for every family at a rent within the wage earner's means, with a subsidy towards capital outlay to be provided by national funds, calculated to avoid any charge on the local rates.

The Conference also called upon the Government to take adequate and prompt steps to prevent "profiteering" in housing materials.

Resolutions were passed condemning the Government's education policy and expressing disapproval of several provisions of the Trades Boards Bill now before Parliament.

Mr. Fenner Brockway, for the Independent Labour Party, introduced a motion on world economic organisation, declaring that the British Government should take the initiative in securing the establishment of an impartial and international body to ascertain the facts as to the available supplies and the needs of various countries; to control the distribution of raw materials in cases of shortage or threatened shortage, so that supplies might be distributed in the order of vital need; to investigate the operation of trusts and combines engaged in the production, transport or distribution of indispensable commodities, and to extend the area of Free Trade. The resolution was carried.

LAND SOCIALISATION.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, dealing with a resolution in the name of the Wandsworth Labour Party demanding the socialisation of the land, said that Committees were busily at work on all phases of agrarian and agricultural questions, and a complete Labour policy was being formulated. He added that in a fortnight's time there would be a special Conference of friendly farmers and agriculturists with the Parliamentary leaders to discuss pressing points of agricultural policy. The matter was referred to the Executive.

THE ROYAL FAMILY.

Stockton Labour Party asked the Conference to express the view that the Royal Family was no longer necessary as part of the British Constitution.

Mr. Vipart, moving the resolution, said he was convinced that progress was slow, and that superstition died hard. The Labour Party, they were told, was on the threshold of power, and seeing that its objects were to change the state of society, so that those who were least worthy should no longer enjoy all the fruits of industry, the resolution was surely in order.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. Thirtle, Shoreditch, who declared himself a Republican and said the Monarchy was an anachronism which should be swept away.

Mr. George Lansbury said the Executive discussed the resolution, and in their name he was asked to oppose it. He was a Republican, and had always advocated Republicanism; but even the group of delegates he belonged to were strongly divided on this subject. They should not fool about with a question which was of no earthly importance, and which would be settled whenever the economic conditions were settled.

"I have sat at the same table with a Prince when I was a member of the Social Democratic Federation," Mr. Lansbury proceeded. "I have sat at the table with a Queen, and behind two Princes at a football match, and, you may take my word for it, they are just ordinary common clay like anybody else. (Laughter and cheers.) They eat like you do, they talk like you do—only a little worse occasionally—(laughter)—and do everything just like you."

Mr. Lansbury moved the previous question, which was carried.

CREWS ON BRITISH SHIPS.

Mr. J. Cotter, President of the Amalgamated Marine Workers' Union, moved a resolution demanding that the findings of the Committee set up under the auspices of the Merchant Shipping Advisory Committee with reference to the saving of life at sea be put into operation, and that the Parliamentary Labour Party introduce an amendment to the Merchant Shipping Act providing for payment of wages to any member of a British ship who, by sickness, the foundering of the vessel, or other causes, had his wages stopped when put on shore in a foreign port or by the loss of the ship.

The resolution further protested against the employment of Asiatic Labour in the manning of British ships, and urged the Labour Party to introduce a bill to make such employment illegal on British ships west of the Suez Canal.

The resolution was carried by a large majority, and the Conference thereupon concluded.

The health of M. Masaryk, the President of the Czecho-Slovak Republic, is now quite satisfactory, and he is continuing his journey in Algeria.

DEPORTEES ON TRIAL.

MR. O'BRIEN IN THE WITNESS-BOX.

WHY HE DISAGREED WITH THE TREATY.

When the Irish deportees' trial was resumed at the Old Bailey yesterday, and the case for the prosecution had been concluded, Mr. Justice Swift held that there was no evidence to go to the jury in the case of Patrick Fleming, and he was discharged.

The main line of defence submitted by Mr. Patrick Hastings was that the defendant's actions were purely political. Although they believed that a Republic was the best for Irish peace and happiness, they had not advocated armed fighting or murder. Mr. Art O'Brien then gave evidence, and the trial was adjourned till Monday.

PLAN OF A PRISON.

Inspector Fitch said one of the documents found on Galvin set out the objects of the Irish Self-Determination League as "to band together Irish residents in Great Britain, in order that they should support their compatriots in Ireland and use every means in their power to secure self-determination in Ireland and recognition of the Republic." Galvin also had a plan of Brixton Prison, marked with a cross "where the Governor stands daily, from ten to eleven, for applications." There was a drawing of a warder's hat, described as "soft, with hard brim." Another sketch was of the prison van, with an accompanying description of the route taken by it.

Inspector Fitch said that he also found a Smith and Wesson six-chambered revolver at Galvin's house. He agreed that the plan and descriptions relating to Brixton Prison were not in Galvin's writing.

Sergeant Wilson, of South Shields, said that he arrested Flynn. He told Flynn that he was going to search his room, and Flynn said: "You will find nothing here." The witness found a report book, "Number 3 area," signed by Flynn as "Acting Battalion Quartermaster." This contained entries relating to the purchase and despatch of arms and ammunition, and the following:—

> "Received from Miss Brannan, £100, February Q. 1923, from Bails.—M.F., O.C., Britain."

The witness also produced Flynn's diary for 1923, and Mr. Blanco White suggesting it was "just a record of social life," read the following item from it:—"Received a third letter marked 'final,' promising my early demise. Now I shall have to walk about very proudly like the song, 'Their chests expanding for the ball.'" (Laughter.)

Under the date February 6, Mr. Travers Humphreys read another entry throwing further light on the matter. It was as follows:—"Received a letter from a friend, and also one from an enemy, or should I say a fool. He hides under the nom-de-plume of 'K.K.,' and left me to pay threepence postage. He warns me 'to give up my position in the I.N.T. or find myself in prison.' He also says, 'I watch.' He had better, for I know who sent it, and as soon as I am able to stand on my feet I will knock four or five kinds of hell out of him."

A WARNING DOCUMENT.

Sergeant Coghlan, of the Liverpool Police, said that when he arrested the Flemings at Garston he found a document issuing a warning against a "runner." It gave a description of the man, stated that he was in possession of facts which made him very unsafe, and suggested "any steps thought necessary to prevent him doing harm."

The case for the prosecution was concluded.

Before opening the case for the defence Mr. Patrick Hastings, K.C., submitted that there was no evidence of criminal intent on the part of O'Mahoney to incite persons to act seditiously.

Mr. Blanco White made a similar submission in regard to Patrick Fleming, the only evidence against him being that he lived in the same house as his brother.

Mr. Justice Swife held that there was evidence to go to the jury in the case of O'Mahoney, but not in that of Patrick Fleming. His lordship directed a verdict of "not guilty" to be returned against Patrick Fleming.

Fleming was discharged, and as he left the dock a number of his friends shook hands with him and congratulated him on his acquittal.

THE DEFENCE OPENED.

Mr. Hastings opened the defence of O'Brien, McGrath, and O'Mahoney, and announced that he was calling the defendants. Anything that they had done, he said, was simply political. They had never advocated armed fighting or resistance or murder, but it was inevitable, if sympathy were a crime, that their sympathies, if they had the choice, would be with those who were fighting for what they thought was right rather than what the Attorney-General called the "commissioned forces." Sympathy and belief, whether political or religious, declared Mr. Hastings, is no crime in this country. The three men I represent have their own belief that the only chance of peace and happiness in Ireland is that there should be an Irish Republic. It is not for us to consider whether they are right or wrong. In 1918 O'Brien was the friend of Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith, and he took them to the then Prime Minister in order, if possible, to bring peace to Ireland.

Dealing with the speeches, Mr. Hastings said that they were made by men who knew that the police were present. One of the police officers, perhaps to conceal his identity, had even contributed to the fund of the Irish Self-Determination League. The evidence of money being sent to Ireland by O'Brien was not devoid of humour. He was a man to whom the funds of the League had been entrusted for years past. When the Treaty was signed his supporters declared that the money belonged to them. O'Brien took the opinion of Sir John Simon, which was that the Irish Free State had no right to get the money. The result was that it remained in England, and was used for the support of widows and children of those killed in Ireland.

MR. O'BRIEN CALLED.

At the conclusion of counsel's speech Mr. Art O'Brien went into the witness-box, and was examined by Mr. Eustace Fulton. He said that he was born in England, and had lived here most of his life. He practised as an engineer up to February, 1919. He had always advocated the complete independence of Ireland. This did not appear practical until the rebellion of 1916, when a Republic was formed. He had nothing to do with the fighting on that occasion. His colleagues then were Arthur Griffith, Michael Collins, and most of the members of the present Free State Government then in favour of a Republic. Diplomatic appointments were made by the Republic in 1919, and he was appointed by President de Valera as representative in this country. His duties chiefly were in connection with propaganda work in favour of the Republic and looking after the interests of Irish subjects passing through London.

Mr. Fulton—Were you ever concerned with military matters? No.

The witness went on to say that at this time the Republic was in a state of war with this country. In July, 1921, there was a truce, and de Valera came to this country. It was the first time that de Valera had been to this country excepting as a prisoner, and the witness met him, took him to Downing street, and introduced him to Mr. Lloyd George. When the negotiations looked like breaking down he suggested the terms of a reply to de Valera's last letter. He later introduced the Irish delegates to Mr. Lloyd George, and on December 6 a formal treaty was signed.

DISAGREED WITH THE TREATY.

Counsel—Did you agree with the course the delegates had taken?

Mr. O'Brien—I did not. Towards the end of the negotiations our relationship was a little bit strained, because I thought they were heading for a course full of danger both for Ireland and England. I had some serious words with Mr. Griffith and Mr. Collins in reference to it.

The witness went on to give his reasons for his objections to the Treaty. For the first time in Irish history it gave away the sovereignty and unity of the nation. It was not really regarded as a treaty, but only as an agreement for a treaty. He considered that it would bring terrible dissension in Ireland, and that it would never bring peace between Ireland and England. "The Treaty itself," said Mr. O'Brien, "was carried by fraud. Two of the Irish delegates were forced to sign that supposed voluntary Treaty."

The Judge had said that he did not wish to shut out any evidence which Mr. Hastings desired to be given, but at this stage counsel himself intervened and stopped the witness.

Coming to the Irish Self-Determination League, the witness denied that it had any military character. He knew that its meetings were attended by the police. None of its funds had been sent to Ireland since the Treaty.

The trial was adjourned until Monday.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

FARMERS' DAY IN THE COMMONS.

LADY ASTOR'S BILL TALKED OUT.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

WESTMINSTER, Friday.

It was an agricultural afternoon, in which farmers and those interested in land welfare had matters pretty much their own way. Very few members of the Labour Party thought it necessary to put in an appearance, and those who were present either from lack of interest or lack of knowledge did not consider it necessary to intervene in the debate. The bill under discussion, the Agricultural Credits Bill, which embodies part of the Government's general policy by authorising advances of money and grants of credit to necessitous farmers, had come up for report and third reading. This was a matter which appealed strongly to Mr. Acland, the successor of Mr. Sparkes in the Tiverton Division, and indeed, he stated that he had lately been giving a good deal of his time to the consideration of the measure, though he had met very few farmers who were willing to admit that they were in need of financial assistance. This reluctance, however, remarked Mr. Acland, did not remove his belief that farmers needed money, and needed it quickly. What did concern him most was the rate of interest which the farmers had to pay. Unless the interest was reasonable the sooner the scheme was scrapped the better.

This point was also strongly emphasised by Sir Leslie Scott and other members. Some attempt was made from the Opposition benches to limit the liability of the State to five million pounds, a sum which Mr. Noel Buxton considered would be sufficient to meet all the hard cases. The Minister of Agriculture was unable to agree to this. The sum mentioned might cover all the cases, but in case it did not the Public Works Loan Commission would be placed in the difficult position of having to pick and choose. The bill was read a third time without a division.

It was then a quarter to four o'clock, which left fifteen minutes for the remaining stages of Lady Astor's Intoxicating Liquor Bill, which prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquor to persons under 18 years of age. All the afternoon the noble lady had been exhibiting signs of great impatience. Member after member who rose to speak on the Agricultural Bill were greeted with cries of "Oh," and when finally Sir Frederick Banbury rose to move the first of a series of amendments to the Liquor Bill, Lady Astor's patience quite gave out.

She essayed to stop the flow of eloquence by pulling at Sir Frederick's coat-tails, but this method of procedure proving ineffective, she, after the right hon. Bart. had been on his feet for some five minutes, rose and moved that the question be now put. The Speaker naturally declined to accept the motion, and Sir Frederick pursued his argument, which was to the effect that people over 16 who were considered old enough to fight were quite old enough to be allowed to drink beer without any hampering restrictions. A more gross infringement of the liberty of the subject he could not conceive, and he went on to elaborate his theme by picturing a thirst-consumed young man who had been indulging in violent exercise being unable to obtain a drink. He really wondered whether the noble lady knew what violent exercise was.

Sir Frederick was still in possession when, at 4 o'clock, time was called, and the debate was adjourned, with Lady Astor shaking both fists at the right hon. member, amidst the loud laughter of the rest of the House.

LONDON AND DUBLIN.

MR. WALSH'S ANALOGY.

We have received the following statement from the Postmaster-General of the Irish Free State:—

"With reference to recent criticism concerning the cessation of evening deliveries in Dublin and other places, the following question and answer in the British House of Commons on the 25th June, 1923, are illuminating:—

'Mr. Middleton asked the Postmaster-General whether it is proposed to abolish the 5.30 p.m. delivery in the City of London; whether he is aware that the city post offices do not make a clear disposal of the evening work in the present circumstances, and that the proposed suspension of the 5.30 p.m. delivery would make the position worse; and whether, having regard to the effect upon the correspondence of important newspapers and upon the business interests of many foreign agencies, he will call for a report upon this suggested further reduction of public facilities, with a view to the proposal being reviewed?

'Sir L. Worthington-Evans—It is proposed to abolish this delivery, which does not appear to serve any very useful purpose. At the same time, as a result of the relief which will be afforded in the sorting offices, it is hoped to accelerate the earlier deliveries which are made during business hours, and to facilitate the despatch of the night mails. Most of the letters included in the delivery reach business houses after closing time. Inconvenience to particular agencies or firms can be met by the use of the private box system.'

"Is the British Post Office copying the Free State postal policy?"

DUBLIN AND LONDON?

The British Postmaster-General has issued a statement giving details of the reduced telephone charges which come into force in Great Britain to-morrow. They are:—

Ten shillings less a year rental for each and all exchange lines. The London subscriber will pay £2 per quarter for a business connection, and £1 12s. 6d. for a private house connection.

	Free Radius. 1½ mile.
	Business.	Private.
Generally outside London	£1 15 0	£1 7 6
Birmingham, Glasgow, Liverpool, and Manchester	£1 17 6	£1 10 0

With farmer party lines the reduction will apply when there are two subscribers only to the mile—the charge will be uniformly £1 a quarter for two or more subscribers to the mile.

Extension charges will be reduced per quarter as follows:—

	From	To
Without intercommunication	7s. 6d.	6s. 0d.
With intercommunication	11s. 3d.	9s. 0d.

The public call-box fee will be 2d. from July 1.

AIRSHIP TRANSPORT.

SHORTENING THE JOURNEY TO AUSTRALIA.

In a paper on airship transport at the International Air Congress yesterday, Major G. H. Scott, who made the journey to America and back in R.34, said that it would appear reasonable to assume that the steamship on the Australian routes had nearly reached its economic limit, and that for any considerable reduction in the time of the passage the only quicker form of transport was an airship.

A ship with an air displacement of 150 tons would have a speed of 80 miles per hour, and could carry 200 passengers and 11 tons of mails and freight on a non-stop flight of 2,500 miles, England to Egypt or Egypt to Bombay. Dividing the journey up into stages of this length, the times of transit compared with the present-day steamship would show an average saving of 66 per cent.

CO. WATERFORD FIRE.

LARGE BUILDING BURNED.

FARMERS' PROPERTY DESTROYED.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

WATERFORD, Friday.

The most serious burning that has occurred since the Waterford agricultural strike commenced was reported early this morning. The fine country residence at Ballindud, two miles from Waterford City, which is owned by Mr. Cornelius Lynch, an extensive cattle dealer, was set on fire, and burned to the ground. It was formerly in the occupation of Captain Carew, who in the European War was a Commander in the Royal Navy. The damage is estimated at £3,500, which is said to be covered by insurance.

Mr. Lynch resides at the Glen, Waterford, and Ballindud House has been for some time unoccupied. It was in charge of a caretaker, who resided at some distance away. It was the intention of the owner to take up residence there in the near future, and a considerable quantity of furniture was stored there. At half-past seven o'clock this morning the fire was seen by a neighbour named McCarthy, and he summoned the caretaker. All efforts to save the place proved unavailing, and the fire burned itself out.

The origin of the outbreak is not known. Mr. Lynch, the owner, is not a member of the Farmers' Union, nor was he known to be in any way connected with the strike of labourers.

At the headquarters of the Transport Union to-day I was informed that Mr. Lynch was one of the first to sign the Transport agreement to pay the labourers the old rate of wages. Transport officials also allege that since the commencement of the strike Mr. Lynch refused to buy cattle from farmers residing in the affected areas.

The Farmers' Union flout the suggestion that anyone connected with their Union had anything to do with the fire, and point out that Mr. Lynch, being a cattle dealer, was not a member of their Union.

Other outrages reported to-day are the burning last night of a quantity of hay and a barn belonging to Mr. James Dwyer, Corragavoe, near Waterford, and the destruction by fire of a farmhouse the property of Mr. Michael Kirwan, Brownstown. Mr. Patrick Kennedy, Knockneen, reports that on Tuesday night the following articles owned by him were smashed:—A chill plough, a drill plough and a turnip sower. It is stated that agricultural implements belonging to Messrs. O'Brien and Spencer, Brownstown, have also been destroyed.

MR. W. B. YEATS'S SECRETS.

HOW HIS POEMS WERE INSPIRED.

In the library of St. Bartholomew's Vicarage, Clyde road, Dublin, yesterday afternoon, Mr. W. B. Yeats talked for an hour about his own poetry. The occasion was the holding of the annual sale of work in connection with the parish, and Mr. Yeats came on the invitation of the Vicar, the Rev. Walter Simpson. Yeats the lecturer had all that subtle charm wherein lies the appeal of Yeats the poet. His reading of some of his best-known poems was something which every member of the large audience will remember with pleasure.

Mr. J. G. Swift MacNeill, who presided, said that it was but rarely that one heard from the lips of a great poet how he came to write poetry. Mr. Yeats was enjoying the satisfaction of recognition in his own lifetime, with the knowledge that his genius would be appreciated by posterity, and that his name would be revered in every age and in every land where there were lovers of literature and true learning.

Mr. Yeats said that he became a poet because of the place where he lived as a child and a very young man. He lived in the town of Sligo with his grandparents, and whenever he looked from the window of their house out on Belbulben Mountain there came to his mind the verse written by William Allingham—

Up the heathery mountain,
Down the rushy glen,
I dared not go a-hunting
For fear of little men.

He early made up his mind that he would try to do in verse for Sligo what Allingham had done for Ballyshannon. He took for his motto the lines, "A little town, where little folk go up and down." His first poems were inspired by the town of Sligo.

After a time he went to London, and was very home-sick for Sligo. One day in the Strand he saw a jet of water playing in a shop window as an advertisement. It reminded him of home, and there and then he wrote "Innisfree," which, he believed, was the only poem of his that was known to the greater number of poetry readers. His boyish ramblings around the Rock of Dooney, a little way from Innisfree, were the inspiration of "The Fiddler of Dooney."

In the neighbourhood of Sligo and Ballysodare he came in the course of time to gather stories from the country folk in their homes. Gradually he got to feel that, as he stepped over the threshold of a cottage door, he was passing into another continent. He came to take a delight in the minds of the country people because of the quality of those minds. The old man of 70 might have the secret of the ages, but he observed nothing. He (Mr. Yeats) was not an observer of Nature himself, and neither was primitive man. That old man, however, told him why the cats were a people in themselves. In the beginning of the world every cat had ninepence. He gave threepence to be able to see in the dark, threepence to have nine lives, and the last threepence to have a plate of milk every day. Hence no gratitude might be expected from a cat. They were merely carrying out a contract. The only thing that that old man had ever observed was an apparition, a beautiful girl who at once vanished into the ground. And so mournfully he would repeat, "Never again, never again." From that old man's life-long grief at never again beholding the beautiful vision came "Wandering Angus."

That poem really meant nothing but what it seemed to mean. One of the Dublin papers, however, offered a prize to anyone who could point out its meaning. The prize was won by a person who interpreted the poem as a political allegory. The prize was a volume of Tennyson.

The most marked characteristic of the old Irish romantic literature was that it was overshadowed by the thought of the remote world, the country far away. That romance ran through the cottage stories of the West twenty years ago. The old woman who was servant to his uncle in Sligo told him of an apparition she had seen. Her description of the woman of her vision was sheer heroic beauty. It was that vision of the old servant that gave him "The Host." The romance of the distant world was the foundation of "The Happy Townland." "As I came over Windy Gap" was suggested by a story in "The Lives of the Saints."

Mr. Yeats dealt with the poetic inspiration of Irish patriotism, the emotion inspired by "Tir na nOg." In "Hanrahan's Song about Ireland" he put this emotion into the mouth of the most disreputable man singing to the most disreputable people he could collect in mediæval Sligo. There was another patriotism, the patriotism of Protestant Ireland, with less of certainty than that of Catholic and Gaelic Ireland. Protestant patriotism was a hesitating thing, but it had its own nobility, its own heroism. His "Irish Airman Foresees his End" was written to express that patriotism.

BANKRUPTCY ANNULLED.

In the Bankruptcy Division of the Belfast High Court yesterday, in the matter of the bankruptcy of James McClelland, draper, 51 Mill street, Ballymena, Mr. S. Henry, for the bankrupt, offered a composition whereby the creditors agreed that the estate should be signed over to a trustee to allow the bankrupt to carry on business, and to pay a composition of 10s. in the £, with all costs. The judge annulled the bankruptcy, and allowed McClelland to trade.

A BRIGHTER DUBLIN.

"CLEAN-UP" WEEK BEGINS TO-DAY.

"Clean-Up Week" in Dublin begins to-day. In placards which are posted all over the city this morning the public are asked to co-operate in the movement. Thus one poster says:—"Please remember 'Clean-Up Week,' and do your part"; and another—"During 'Clean-Up Week' please brighten the house, the factory, the store, the workshop, every place."

The idea of the "Clean-Up Week" is not new in Dublin. As far back as 1915 we had the first "Clean-Up Week" in this city. In England it has been an institution for some years longer; but it is in American cities that it has been carried to its highest point of success. There, every man, woman, and child feels it a duty to do something towards brightening-up their own particular town. The Brighter London movement, which is at present very active, is a development of the same idea.

The promoters of the movement in Dublin, while welcoming everything that is done with the object of brightening the city, wish it also to be made an occasion for the examination of the civic conscience. Every citizen should ask himself various questions as to whether he is discharging to the full all his duties as a citizen.

During the past few weeks the movement has induced a number of people to do work of decoration, and general cleaning-up. Painters and others have been busy in various parts of the city, both in private concerns and in public institutions. It was noticed yesterday that the railings in Nassau street surrounding Trinity College Park were receiving a new coat of paint. Butt Bridge has also been renovated, and in many other directions very commendable activity has been noticed.

In this connection it has been suggested, now that a better feeling prevails, that some effort should be made to remove the inscriptions which were painted on the walls throughout the city during the past year. In addition to disfiguring many handsome buildings, these ugly inscriptions are reminders of a period that most people are anxious to forget.

The Chairman of the Executive Committee of "Clean-up Week" (Alderman Hubbard Clarke), has offered prizes to school children for the best essays on the subject, "How I can help to brighten my city." The response from the schools has been very large, and the prizes for the best essays will be distributed at a folk-dancing fête to be held in the Iveagh Grounds to-day at 3 o'clock.

"MOTOR MORALITY."

STRAKER SQUIRE, LTD., AND DUKE OF LEINSTER.

The trial of the Duke of Leinster, James Fraser, and Thomas Henry Webb was resumed before the Recorder, Sir Ernest Wild, K.C., at the Old Bailey, London, yesterday, the defendants being charged with obtaining a motor car from Messrs. Straker Squire, Ltd., by conspiring to obtain credit by false pretences or by other fraudulent means.

Mr. James W. Beeby, managing director of Messrs. Straker Squire, Ltd., said that they never gave their agents any authority to give credit without referring the matter to the company. They made inquiries before giving credit to anyone. He knew nothing about the financial position of the Duke, and did not know that he was an undischarged bankrupt. When the bills given by the Duke for the cars were presented for payment they were dishonoured.

Witness further stated that he first discovered that the Duke was an undischarged bankrupt on November 4, 1922, when the sales manager gave him a newspaper cutting recording the fact. Witness said that he decided to hold up delivery of the second car until after the bills became due. He did not see his way to comply with Webb's request to cancel the order for the car and to return the bills.

Cross-examined by Sir Edward Marshall Hall, K.C., who appeared for the Duke, he said that he did not look upon Wood, the last witness, as liable to pay for either of the cars. This he modified by stating that he held Wood morally responsible.

Sir Edward—I do not understand motor morality. I suggest that the firm of Straker Squire made delivery of one car and took the order for the second upon bills, not caring what the Duke's finances were, in order to get two things—first, the order, and, second, the advertisement.

Witness—Nothing of the kind.

In reply to the Recorder, witness said that the reason he parted with the car was that he thought the Duke would keep his word. There was nothing else in it at all.

The Court adjourned until Monday.

THRILLING AIR PAGEANT.

TO-DAY'S DISPLAY AT HENDON.

VARIED PROGRAMME BY ROYAL AIR FORCE.

(BY MAJOR W. T. BLAKE.)

LONDON, Friday.

The greatest aerial pageant ever witnessed will take place at Hendon to-morrow, when the best pilots and most modern machines of the Royal Air Force will give a display, which will emphatically contradict those who say our small Air Force is not ready for any emergency.

Financially the success of the pageant is already assured, for by mid-day between 30,000 and 40,000 enclosure tickets had been sold. Accommodation has, however, been provided for 100,000 people, so that visitors need not fear that they will be crowded out.

The chief event will show the evacuation of a besieged bridgehead, when troop-carrying aeroplanes will rescue the beleaguered garrison while scouts shoot down the attackers. The bridge itself—a most realistic structure built by the Stoll Film Company—will be blown up, while the machines withdraw in safety.

In addition there will be a photographic competition, several races, a landing contest, a realistic fight between a twin-engined Boulton and Paul "Bowger" and two Newport "Nighthawks," stunting, crazy flying, when an Avro will do all the things in the air which it is not meant to do, under the pilotage of Flight-Lieutenant Langham, bombing a tank, artificial cloud screens, and, last but not least, a taxi-past and flight round the aerodrome by 13 of our most up-to-date and secret-type military machines.

INCENTIVE TO THRIFT.

THE FREE STATE SAVINGS CERTIFICATES.

The following statement was made last evening by President Cosgrave to Press representatives at the Government Buildings, Upper Merrion street:—

"Certificate money, having regard to the fact that it is repayable at call, is not cheap money to the State; but the subsidiary advantages of this form of borrowing far outweigh all the drawbacks.

"The most important gain from the issue of Savings Certificates is that they encourage habits of thrift and economy in the community at large, which eventually means a prosperous and powerful State. All the money spent in the purchase of Certificates represent real savings. If the people invest their savings in these Government securities they are preventing the creation of credit and inflation of the currency, with consequent rise of prices. Every Certificate bought represents a real benefit to the purchaser and to the country. Wasteful expenditure is checked and general consumption is reduced, and prices will gradually tend towards the normal. The purchaser will, therefore, get the benefit of buying Certificates in depressed currency, and has the prospect of getting repaid his money, with interest, at the end of five years in money that will have considerably more purchasing power.

"He will thus have ample demonstration of the advantageous workings of thrift and economy both in the life of the individual and the nation, and every holder of a Certificate will be educated in the economic law that a nation is wealthy and prosperous according as its citizens are thrifty and industrious and avoid wasteful and foolish expenditure.

"In addition to the normal and educational benefits the holder receives, the material advantages of this form of investment are many. In the first place, the method of investing is simple. A man with 15s. 6d. saved which he wants to invest has only got to walk into any Post Office, and all he has to do is to fill up a form and the investment is made. He need not worry studying stocks and shares lists to see whether his investment has gone down in value. He has got a guarantee that the capital value of his savings will not depreciate. Then again, in case of necessity, the holder is assured that he can withdraw his savings at short notice. Above all, there is the fact that the small investor receives on his money a rate of interest as high as the largest investor receives. If the certificate is allowed to mature the holder receives at the end of five years his own 15s. 6d. back again together with an additional 4s. 6d., which represents more than 5 per cent. compound interest on his investment, and he has the guarantee that no income tax is payable in respect of the interest. He is put to no expense and no trouble at all in making this magnificent investment.

"In a word, the small investor has ready for him a secure investment that never depreciates, earns good interest, is easily realisable, and involves him in no expense.

"The issue is intended, however, to attract not alone the small investor. Giving as it does a yield of 5¼ per cent. compound interest free of income tax, it affords to those more fortunately circumstanced a highly suitable medium for lightening the burden of income tax, and the investment combines security with substantial yield. Each member of a family can hold certificates up to the limit of £500 value. Even minors can hold, and the certificates offer an easy method of making provision ahead for the education, etc., of children or giving them a start in life.

"At the moment only the higher value certificates for £26 and over are on sale, but the various denominations for £1 and over will be available on the 7th July next.

"If the citizens of Saorstat Eireann lend their money to the State, it will mean that the interest will be kept in the country and be available for its development. The interest will not be going abroad to assist our commercial rivals in competing with our native industries."

TIN CAN BOMB.

FARMER KILLED IN CO. CORK.

A shocking occurrence took place in the Donoughmore district, about twelve miles from Cork, early yesterday morning, as a result of which a man named Dinan was killed and his two sons were very badly injured. They were returning from a "wake" when they picked up what was apparently a harmless tin can. While they were examining it the can exploded, and all three were badly injured. The father, it is learned, died afterwards, and the two sons, whose ages are 23 and 7 years, respectively, were removed to the North Infirmary, Cork. The elder of the two received very dangerous wounds in the abdomen and also in the head, and his condition is critical. The younger boy was not so badly injured. It is suggested that the can was a roughly manufactured bomb.

M. JUDET ON TRIAL.

ALLEGED DISREGARD OF WAR CENSORSHIP.

PARIS, Friday.

To-day's hearing of the charges against M. Judet was devoted to the reading of the letters signed "Waverley," which were discovered in Mme. Hans Bossard's luggage at Contardier. M. Judet contended that the letters were journalistic correspondence, more in the nature of comment than of information, which he was carrying on with Swiss friends.

All the letters, which bristled with references to such people as Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Winston Churchill, M. Sazonoff, and M. Venizelos, were read in court.

Reference was also made to M. Judet's request to M. Albert Thomas, who was then Minister of Munitions, for the return of letters. They could not be found till the year 1920, when they were suddenly produced by the prosecution.

Maitre Lescouve said that M. Thomas would be heard on this point, whereupon M. Judet impatiently exclaimed, to the amusement of those in court—"You are making barrels of lemonade with one lemon."

The next point raised was M. Judet's disregard of the censorship during the war. He declared that the censorship became a political weapon, and quoted M. Clemenceau as an example of others who had disregarded it, the Homme Libre having been suspended as well as his own newspaper, the Eclair.

When the Court adjourned at an early hour M. Judet was showing signs of fatigue.—(Reuter.)

ASTRONOMICAL NOTES FOR JULY.

THE CLOUDS OF JUNE.

FROM OUR ASTRONOMICAL CORRESPONDENT.

THE PLANETS:—Mercury will be a morning star till the 21st. He passes through Superior Conjunction on the 22nd, and is an evening object for the rest of the month. He is never likely to be within range of naked-eye vision in either position, though it is just possible that he might be caught just before 3 a.m. during the first week, when he rises rather more than an hour before the Sun. Venus is also a morning star, rising a little before Mercury during the first week. The two planets will be twice in conjunction with each other in the first four days of July. For this reason the search for Mercury in the bright summer twilight will be less hopeless than it might be, the brilliant and conspicuous Venus forming a guide to her elusive neighbour. Venus is slowly approaching Superior Conjunction, which she will reach on September 10th, and she will be a brilliant evening object during the late autumn and winter, reaching her greatest splendour in April and May, 1924. Mars, being in Conjunction on August 8th, is much too close to the Sun to be visible.

Jupiter sets before midnight after the 14th. Observers must, therefore, look for him as early in the evening as possible. Those who have the advantage of equatorial mounting will find him quite an interesting object in daylight, from a little before sunset onwards. If the sky is at all clear, he can even be seen by the naked eye, after being located with the telescope. It is not generally known that the two bright planets, Jupiter and Venus, can always be seen by a good eye in daylight when favourably placed, if their place can be located. Venus, indeed, is always so visible, wherever placed, if the sky is clear, provided she is not in conjunction with the Sun. She was seen with the naked eye from Armagh on June 24th last, though so close to the Sun that the eye had to be screened by the shutter of the dome to escape the glare.

Saturn sets about forty minutes earlier than Jupiter all the month. Planetary observers will have a blank time after both the great planets have "run into daylight," and must possess their souls in patience until next year, when Venus, in the first half of the year, and an unusually favourable Opposition to Mars in the late summer, will set them all busy again. Jupiter will be of little use to Northern observers for the next two or three years, and Saturn for a much longer time.

THE MOON:—

Last Quarter on July 6th, at 1.56 a.m.
New Moon on July 14th, at 12.45 a.m.
First Quarter on July 21st, at 1.32 a.m.
Full Moon on July 27th, at 10.33 p.m.

Conjunctions of the Moon with the Planets:—

Venus on the 12th, at 4.30 p.m.
Mercury on the 13th, at 4.3 a.m.
Mars on the 14th, at 6.8 p.m.
Jupiter on the 21st, at 8.9 p.m.
Saturn on the 20th, at 3.15 a.m.

There will be an occultation of Saturn visible at places some distance South and West of the British Isles. But here the Moon and planet are below the horizon at the time of occultation.

THE SUN:—Little work could be done on the Sun, or on anything else, during June. The sky remained persistently overcast, particularly by night. Indeed, the cloudiness of the nights must have established a record, for up to the time of writing, June 26th, only two out of the 26 nights have been clear, and they were the 1st and 2nd. There have been, therefore, 24 consecutive cloudy nights, a record which would be hard to beat at mid-winter, and which must be almost unprecedented in June. The extraordinary feature of the weather of this midsummer has been the steady flow of heavy and unbroken masses of vapour from the North and North-West across the British Isles. A further peculiarity of the unusual weather conditions has been the absence of rain in Ireland. England has had more than her share. But in Ireland the clouds, though dense and persistent, have been "clouds without water." However, a few days have been not without clear intervals, in which it was possible to observe the Sun. These have revealed a certain recrudescence of activity. On most of the days of observation the Sun's disc was not without spots, in contrast with the almost totally blank record of March and April. Lately the frequency has shown a tendency to increase, and on June 26th quite a fair group was found to have appeared. This must have broken out on the invisible hemisphere, as no trace of it was visible on the 23rd; while on the 26th it was not far from the central meridian of the Sun. It is yet too soon to say whether this is the beginning of a fresh maximum, or a last dying effort of that one which is past.

THE STARS:—At midnight on July 1st, at 11 p.m. on the 15th, at 10 p.m. on the 30th, conspicuous on the Meridian and appearing to be nearly overhead, though really about 15 degrees south of the Zenith, is Lyra, with the great white star Vega. Nothing else very noticeable is on the Meridian, except the stars of Sagittarius, very low down in the South. Some of them are of the second magnitude, but at their low altitude and in the Summer twilight they may easily escape notice. Later in the year, in the September evenings, on a dark sky this region is full of interest. Nebulæ, star-clusters and the dense star-clouds of the Milky Way make a region of wonders for either small or great telescopes. The S.W. quarter of the sky contains the interesting group of constellations, Boötes, Corona, Hercules, Ophiuchus and Serpens. Libra and Scorpio are low down on the S.W. horizon.

In the S.E. quarter the other two great white stars, Deneb and Altair, are approaching the Meridian, Altair leading by about half an hour. Altair is the middle star of the conspicuous group of three stars in a line known as the "Three Sisters," or the False Orion's Belt, owing to their resemblance to this midwinter group. Deneb forms the head of the Northern Cross or the tail of the Swan, according as we choose to designate this conspicuously cruciform constellation. That it was ever called a swan, and not a cross, is solely due to the fact that it received its name long before the Christian Era. Below the Cross, and partly between it and Aquila, are two small groups, Delphinus (the Dolphin) and Equuleus (the Foal). Though inconspicuous, they contain some objects of interest to the telescope. Delphinus will be recognised by its resemblance to a child's kite. The star at the point is a well-known and easy double. Capricornus is low on the S.E. horizon; Aquarius, Pisces and Aries are rising. The Great Square of Pegasus is conspicuous in the East.

The Great Bear is descending on the left of the Pole, while Cassiopeia ascends on the opposite side. Below the Pole Capella shines low on the Northern horizon, the only survivor of the vanished hosts of Winter brilliants.

METEORS:—There have been several allusions in the Press lately to the stream of meteors connected with Comet Pons-Winnecke, and the possibility of the Earth's encountering them at the end of June. The comet is far enough away at present, but the meteor-stream might possibly be near enough for the Earth to catch a few of its components in her atmosphere. However, between the smallness of the meteors composing the system and the bright mid-summer twilight, it is not to be expected that any remarkable display, even should the present gloomy skies relent, will be seen.

There have been some remarkable meteors of the flashing and exploding type during the past few weeks. On one night in June, of which I have not been able to ascertain the exact date, about midnight, an alarm was caused by a long flash of light, followed, after an interval, by a series of heavy reports like distant gun-fire. In some places the Special Constabulary scoured the country, looking for the source of the explosions. The search was vain, for the noise was due to no human agency, but to the descent and explosion of a large meteorite.

Before July is over early meteors of the Perseid stream may be observed. The shower does not reach its maximum till August 9th; but it is always worth while to keep a watch on every clear night from about July 20th on. The Perseids are large, bright meteors, with long, slow paths, leaving luminous streaks, and a good display of them is strikingly beautiful.

MAN DROWNED AT LEIXLIP.

While four young men were bathing in the canal near Leixlip at about 4.30 yesterday evening, one of them got out of his depth, and, although efforts were made to rescue him, he was drowned. His name is Philip Waters (20), farm labourer, of Leixlip. The body was subsequently recovered from the canal by the Civic Guard.

CHICAGO, Friday.

WHEAT opened easy, ⅛c. to ¼c. lower, and declined all day owing to favourable weather, bearish Liverpool cables, commission house selling, disappointing export demand, larger interior receipts, and liquidation. TRAMP NOT A MURDERER.

In connection with the statement by a tramp to the Aberystwyth police that he shot a watchman at Farington, Lancs, about thirty years ago, a report from the Lancashire police received at Aberystwyth shows that such an occurrence took place about the time stated. A farm servant was in the habit of visiting a night watchman named Ephraim Livesey, aged 31, at Farington, Lancs. On April 18, 1892, which happened to be payday, Livesey was visited by the man and, falling asleep, was shot with a revolver. He recovered from the injury and died a natural death in 1913. All the material witnesses are now dead.

A regular air service between Helsingfors and Reval was opened on Wednesday. Aeroplanes will be run three times a week.

REPUBLICANS AND ELECTIONS.

A CANDIDATE FOR EVERY SEAT.

STATEMENT BY MR. DE VALERA.

Mr. de Valera, in reply to queries from a number of journalists, has issued the following statement:—

"I do not expect that the coming elections will be free. I am, in fact, sure that they will not be free, but still I hope that the Sinn Fein organisation will overcome all the obstacles put in its way and put forward one Republican candidate in each constituency. These candidates, if elected, would, of course, not enter an oath-bound partition Parliament or associate themselves in any way with a Government subordinate to England's; but their candidature would give to the people an opportunity to put on record by their first preference votes their detestation of allegiance to a foreign King, their repudiation of partition, and their desire for a Government which would really be obedient to their own will and not an instrument of British domination.

"England pretends that the Irish people are free to choose as they please. If my advice were accepted, England would be taken at her word; but it is important, in any case, that it be shown to all who are likely to misunderstand that this 'Treaty' has not been, and never will be, freely accepted by the Irish people. The Irish people have not abandoned the ideal of independence, and their determination to achieve it is as strong as ever.

"Republicanism is the outward expression and embodiment of that determination. The aim of Republicans is to secure the supremacy of the will of the people of Ireland in fact as well as in name. The cry of the 'will of the people' is raised by the pro-Treaty Party only to hide the fact that they are really engaged in defeating that will and subjecting it to the will of England. We are striving to make the people of Ireland truly masters of their own house. Our opponents, by the 'Treaty' and the Free State, are establishing the British Government as the master and degrading the Irish people to the condition of being his consenting tenants-at-will. The freedom of the Free State is no more than the freedom of the prisoner in the internment camp or the freedom of the convict on ticket-of-leave. It is a freedom circumscribed by the barbed wire fences and by the bayonets of the conditions which England has imposed.

"The status and character of a State is revealed in its Constitution. The Constitution of the 'Free State' shows that its status would be described more accurately by the word servile than free. A National Constitution should be the sovereign expression of the political ideals of the people. The Free State Constitution is but a subordinate instrument dictated by a foreign Government and proclaiming in every essential article the lordship of England.

"Unfortunately, our people have not yet come to realise the humiliation of it all or the material consequences involved. But they soon will. The fate of the North-East boundary clause and the amount of Ireland's share of the Imperial burden will be determined some time. When it is, and the boundary clause has been waived, or some new ignominious bargain has been struck to evade it, and when, in addition, the full weight of an Imperial contribution of some ten to fifteen millions annually is felt pressing upon their shoulders, the people will surely wake up, become conscious of the full extent of the deception that has been practised upon them, and learn what it is that those who gave their lives to prevent the consummation of this 'Treaty' hoped to save them from.

"This day a year ago, by England's orders and with English guns, the men who stood for the unqualified independence of Ireland were attacked. The military campaign is now at an end. The foremost of these champions have fallen, but, as the patriotic Bishop of Limerick said of the men of 1916, as long as grass grows and water runs their memory will be revered and the cause which they died for will be cherished and defended."

BAZAAR IN ARMAGH.

OPENED BY LADY DIXON.

Lady Dixon, D.B.E., performed the opening ceremony at a bazaar yesterday in Armagh, in aid of the Maintenance Fund of the Royal School.

The Primate, who presided, said that the school was one of the most historic in Ireland. It was founded by Charles I., and that for Irish schools was very fine antiquity. The King endowed it with considerable landed estates, which, at the beginning of the nineteenth century, brought a revenue of over £1,400 yearly. A great many changes had taken place since then, and the value of the endowments have decreased to a large extent. It was desirable that the present debt on the school should be cleared and that certain necessary improvements should be carried out, so as to make the school fitted for its purpose. The Primate paid a tribute to Lady Dixon's family, who for a long time had taken a leading part in the affairs of Northern Ireland, much to Northern Ireland's advantage.

Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, formerly President of the Republic of Brazil, accompanied by his wife and two daughters, has arrived in Brussels. He is the guest of King Albert at the Royal Palace for a few days.

RAHEENLEIGH GULLERY.

A Bird's Paradise.

(BY ST. J. W.)

QUEEN'S County is a land of far distances, sweeping in gentle undulations into the melting greys and blues of faint horizons. A land of marshes and brown bogs, covered with scrubby heather and small birches. Here and there the bogs are flanked by sombre pines or the lighter green of feathery larches. Nowhere does the pine come into its own as it does when topping some rich brown turf bank. Its blue green heavy colouring, its stately glowing trunk, imprisoning the glow of a thousand sunsets, the strange cry of the wind that murmurs perpetually in its branches, all lend an aloof dignity to this lord of a lonely land, where no human being dwells, and where the wide spaces still belong to the wild creatures which have forsaken more civilised haunts.

Bog country is, indeed, a paradise for wild birds, for in the swamps not even a wandering cow or grazing ass ventures into their kingdom to disturb them. Their enemies are of their own kind, and if they can guard against the kestrel or sparrowhawk, which quarters the rushy dykes with searching eye, and avoid the vigilance of the heron or occasional marsh harrier, they have not much to fear. In some parts of the country many acres are covered with water reeds, intersected by miniature canals, linking up small lakelets which lie completely hidden from the view of the casual wanderer outside the swamp. Here in winter time the wildfowler has many a good day among the duck who frequent the rushy wilderness in great numbers. At this time of year it is very silent, and the outskirts are fretted with majestic spikes of crimson marsh orchis, carpeted with the azure blue of innumerable speedwells.

An Ideal Site.

Sometimes these strange marshes come and go with circumstance. Thirty years ago or more the slow-flowing River Goul, not very far from Durrow, became choked with mud and weeds. The natural channel being blocked, the waters overflowed their banks, and the low-lying land of Raheenleigh became partially submerged. The ground was soft and oozy, and as the quiet waters wound about it they carved multitudes of little channels, till the whole place was cut up into tiny islets, mere little tufts of coarse grass, all within a long step or jump of each other. Round these the waters crept, while, where the land lay lower still, they spread out into wide flashes or lakes, till they finally made their way back into their own channel further on.

Then the black-headed gulls suddenly discovered this ideal breeding site, and arrived in hundreds. Nests were built and birds hatched. Every year more and more gulls came, till Raheenleigh became a famous gull colony. A couple of years ago the powers that be thought fit to clean out the old bed of the river, and once more the waters were diverted to their old course and receded from the marsh, leaving the tussocks standing eighteen inches or more above the old water channels, and reducing the lakes to a few shallow pools. Hundreds of he gulls departed, but many hundreds still remain, faithful to their old haunt.

When, by courtesy of Lord Castletown, I visited Raheenleigh a week or so ago, there was a grey and silver sky hanging above a wide tract of country, stretching away to the faint grey blue line of the Sleive Bloom Mountains. The crying of innumerable birds filled all the air, and as I and my guide approached, hundreds of black-headed gulls rose with a flashing of grey and silver wings, wheeling and turning in great circles above their nests, and protesting against our unwarrantable intrusion into their sacred haunts. The air was literally full of wings, yet no bird impeded another's flight.

Black or Brown.

A few linger about the coasts all the year round, and in the dusk of summer evenings about eleven or twelve at night, they will rise like wraiths from the meadows near the sea and flit after the ghost moths, disappearing silently into the night shadows.

Black-headed they can only be truly called in the breeding season (brown-headed it should be according to Lord Lilford), for they begin to lose their hoods about August, and during the autumn and early winter their heads are white, except for a few little black specks like little ears. In December or January they gradually begin to darken till the full hood is resumed.

In February the majority leave for such inland breeding places as Raheenleigh, and all arrive within a few days of each other, when they select their nesting sites amidst much anxious clamour. Nearly every tussock was crowned with a nest, a shallow cavity lined with withered grass, and containing from two to four eggs in various shades of olive green splashed with brown, which, by the way, are frequently sold by hundreds in the market as "plovers' eggs."

It was no easy matter to get them, for though the water has receded, the channels are filled with black boggy mud, starred with kingcups, in which I would have met with frequent and untimely disaster but for my kindly guide, who picked a safe path with unerring skill among the treacherous quagmires which surround the tussocks.

As we left the gullery the place seemed like a Whistler study in grey monotones. The grey water reflected the grey heavens in a frame of grey green rushes. The west wind lifted the grey-lined willow leaves, and silver ran tremulously across them. Above, the silver grey of myriads of gulls' wings, like living shuttles, wove some such strange fabric as we might make in dreams about the heads of little children, for Raheenleigh is a place of mystery and mother-love.

A LONG TIME AGO.

(BY M.)

THE two old men sat in their big armchairs, near to the fire, in the lounge of an Irish hotel. A stick lay on the carpet beside each of them, without the aid of which they could not manage to go very far. In one case it was sciatica that was responsible for the drawn look of suffering on the old man's face, and the other was a martyr to rheumatism and lumbago, and walked painfully with bent, stiff back. Yet, as they talked, people listened and marvelled, for the burden of the years rolled back, and the shadow of suffering was forgotten. Life-long friends they were, these two, and had ever been sportsmen of the finest type in a land of fine sportsmen. And, as they talked, their minds travelled back across the years, leaving the stiff, crippled bodies in the deep armchairs; while they spoke of the things of youth, forgetting [illegible] age and ignoring pain, like the fine old sportsmen they were. "Do you remember?" was the way in which they always began, and the close of each memory was marked by the words, "That's a long time ago now." "Do you remember, Jim," said one to the other, "the hunt we rode across the Tubbervalty country at the end of the season? That was a great run." "It was, Jack," said the other, "and we rode it to the finish. That was a good horse you were on, the black with the white star; and I rode that liver chestnut I sold afterwards to old Major Armstrong." "I remember the chestnut well," said his friend: "she was a great lepper." Gazing into the fire, they seemed to hear the music of hounds faint in the distance, and once more to feel a gallant horse beneath them. "That's a long time ago now," they said.

"Do you remember," one asked again, "the day you hooked the big pike, and he nearly pulled you in?" "I do, indeed," was the answer, "and only for you I'd have lost him, for he had me tired out: he was the biggest brute I ever saw in my life." "Those were great days, Jack," said the friend of his youth, as in memory they stood once more at the edge of that deep lake where the giant fish fought for his life, "but it's a long time ago now."

"We had a very good cricket eleven in the old days," said the other, "when you consider how small the town was. Do you remember the match we played against the swell team one summer, and Dan Kilroy made his first century and they could not get him out? Dan was a very sticky bat, but once he got set there was no chance of bowling him. That was a great day, and they thought they would wipe the ground with us." There was a proud smile on each of the lined faces, and the fire burned very low.

The two old sportsmen groped for their sticks and rose painfully to their feet. "It's a long time ago now," they said.

THE BANK OF IRELAND TO-DAY.

MANY important events are recorded in the annals of Dublin for the year 1783, but none of vaster and more far-reaching consequences than the establishment of the Bank of Ireland. For a considerable time much uneasiness respecting financial affairs was exercising an adverse influence on both cash and credit transactions in Dublin and throughout the country, and the failure of three city banks in 1755 had brought home to the commercial world the great risk of allowing the banking business of the nation to be retained in private hands. Exception was always made, however, in connection with the bank established by David Digges La Touche, a notable Huguenot, who settled in Dublin, and might well be dubbed the Father of Irish Banking business.

His financial genius and ability were inherited by his son, and when the agitation towards the end of 1782 resulted in obtaining an Act of Parliament to establish a national bank, he was selected as its first Governor, a proof, were one needed, of the acumen and wisdom of Dublin financiers.

According to the Charter, the new bank was founded with a capital of £1,500,000, and became known later as the Bank of Ireland. It was not, however, till June 25th, 1783, that the bank was formally opened in a house in St. Mary's Abbey, off Capel street, then a more frequented locality than in later years.

The house selected, though imposing in its appearance, was just sufficiently commodious for banking purposes, and there still exist various relics, including the first ledger opened, which show the steady and increasing business which rewarded the founders' enterprise. In less than a decade it became obvious that larger premises were required, and ceaseless efforts were made during the last five or six years of the century to secure suitable accommodation.

It was not, however, till after the Union that the golden opportunity presented itself. The Parliament House, the stately pile in College Green, was no longer needed, and was at the disposal of the Government, and various suggestions and offers were put forward, one being that the premises should be granted to Dublin University to be converted into lecture halls, which were to be connected with the College by an underground tunnel.

In the meantime the Government gave permission for exhibitions of paintings being held in the Parliament House in 1801 and 1802, and in the month of June, in the latter year, an Act was passed enabling the Lord High Treasurer or Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury in Ireland, "to sell, lease, convey, or dispose of the Parliament House in the City of Dublin, and all the premises and appurtenances thereunto belonging to the Governors and Company of the Bank of Ireland." A sum of £40,000, less than half the original cost, was the price agreed upon, together with a ground rent of £240 per annum.

On the completion of the purchase the directors of the Bank offered premiums for the best sets of plans for the adaptation of the Parliament House to its new requirements. Many interesting designs were submitted, and eventually the first prize was awarded to Henry Aaron Baker, Master of the Royal Dublin Society's Architectural School. On March 8th, 1804, the first stone of the new works and alterations was laid by the Lord Lieutenant, the Earl of Hardwicke, in the presence of a great concourse of spectators.

Extensive alterations were necessary, a considerable portion of the interior was removed, including the House of Commons and the Court of Requests, part of the latter now forming the cash office of the Bank. These and other building operations took a good deal of time, and it was not until the 6th of June, 1808, that the edifice was first opened as the Bank of Ireland, and celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its foundation on the 25th of the same month.

Of its subsequent successful progress the annals of international banking affairs give interesting details, especially of its extension up to the present time, since its early years in St. Mary's Abbey, in the premises which are still the property of the Bank. Besides the headquarters in College Green, there are three agencies in the city, one in Rathmines, one in the Dublin Cattle Market (open on Thursdays only), and one hundred and twenty agencies throughout Ireland. It is a fine record, and one of which the country may be justly proud.

BOMBAY.

(BY "DERVISH.")

BOMBAY, principal port and gateway of the Indian Empire, presents to the traveller a mixed aspect of East and West. With its magnificent stone buildings, its fashionable shops, electric tramcars, and the constant stream of Europeans passing and repassing along its business thoroughfares, one might easily imagine oneself in a great European city.

Commercialism is stamped all over it. The huge cotton warehouses, the traffic to and from the wharfes, the ships in the harbour, the almost American bustle which seems to inflict itself upon even the usually slow-moving native, is more reminiscent of the West than of the East, and still the glamour of the East is there, the multi-coloured clothing of the native, the peculiar aroma, which invades the atmosphere at Aden and remains until one re-enters the Suez, the heat, the blueness of the sky, the brightness of the reflected rays of the sun, all speak of the gorgeous East.

Thoroughly commercial though it may be, possessing the latest inventions of Western civilisation, Bombay still retains its picturesque appearance. Leave the business thoroughfares for the native bazaar and you will forget that tramcars and telephones exist.

One of the largest cities of the Empire, Bombay has an enormous native population, composed of almost every caste and class, from the Brahmin priest to the Hindoo coolie, the Parsee and the Mahommedan, the Christian and the Bhuddist. Each lives and has his being in this greatest of Eastern cities.

Populous as the city is, one is not distressed by the sight of the squalor and poverty of our Western cities. The wants of the low caste native are but few, a little rice feeds him, water quenches his thirst, a yard or two of cloth and he is clothed. An anna or penny or two a day keeps him alive; more than this is wealth. He can live and sleep in the open air. At night he unrolls his mat when and where he lists. At dawn, or after, he arises, gives himself a gentle shake to rearrange his drapery, re-rolls his mat, and continues his existence from the point at which he left off the previous day.

Beggars, the halt, the lame, and the blind are not so excessively importunate here as in other Oriental cities. Mendicity is rather the prerogative of the holy, practised by the Fakirs after a course of martyrdom unequalled in severity the world over. Methods of martyrdom differ. Some lie on boards through which are driven pointed nails two or three to the square inch, others have their arms held above their heads for a few years until they wither almost away. Having achieved a satisfactory state of emaciation and deformity they are regarded as very holy, and are supported by contributions of food and money and clothing from their followers.

Parsees, a singular race, not truly Indian, but originating in Persia, make Bombay their stronghold. They may be described as the Jews of the East. One never sees a poor Parsee, and the race is unique in that they possess not one single beggar amongst them. Possessed of features of a European cast, their colour is that of the Asiatic.

The men wear European clothes, with the exception of the hat, which resembles in shape a bishop's mitre. The women dress very artistically in coloured silks, more or less after the fashions of Europe. The religion demands an original mode of burial. The bodies of the dead are placed on a grill on the top of a high tower, known as the "Tower of Silence," and there they remain until the scavenging birds clear the bones, which then fall through a grating into a stream beneath, and are carried out to sea. The "Towers of Silence" are situated on Malabar Hill, alongside the most aristocratic of the European bungalows.

The lot of the woman is hard. She is married as a child; often her widowhood precedes her girlhood. By Brahminical law she may not marry again. In the old days she escaped a desolate outcast life by the custom of "Suttee"—she cast herself upon her husband's pyre and passed into eternity by his side. This custom was prohibited by English law, so that she has now to live on, an outcast, her only hope to accomplish a pilgrimage to eBnares, the "Mecca" of the Hindoo.

Of the men, the Hindoo is able and intelligent, but inclined to mysticism; the Mahommedan lazy, slovenly, and callous to remonstrance, but polite always, and overwhelmingly polite. Untruth and deceitfulness are no vices to the Oriental, and the truthfulness of Europeans regarded as an amiable weakness.

SOME IRISH ARTISTS

XIV.—Mr. Conal O'Riordan

(BY BRUYERE.)

MR. Conal O'Riordan is, probably, better known in London, where for some years he has made his headquarters, and has established for himself a considerable reputation as an author and writer, than he is known in Dublin. He is, however, an Irishman—as, indeed, one might guess from his name. When he first started writing he used the nom de plume of "Norrys Connell" for his plays and books, but he has since discarded it, and now writes everything under his own name. Like more than one other distinguished dramatist, he was at one time manager of the Abbey Theatre—as far back, in his case, as 1909. He was an excellent producer of plays: an actor at the Abbey Theatre once told me that he was amazing in his methods, and that his energy appeared to be without bounds. When he was over in Dublin in 1920 he supervised the production of his own play, "The Piper," and whenever his directions were not completely understood he would leap up on to the stage and, regardless of any possible damage to his person, hurl himself in all directions to make clear his wishes. Three of Mr. O'Riordan's plays so far have been produced at the Abbey Theatre, all of them one-act pieces. Of these, the best is, perhaps, "The Piper," a '98 play. "The Piper" was first played in Dublin a great many years ago, and it was an immediate success. At every reproduction, too, it has proved to be equally popular. In this short play Mr. O'Riordan has managed to cram a great deal of good "stuff"; the principal characters are in admirable contrast to each other. There is "Black Mike"—I was about twelve years old when I first saw the play, and the impression of this powerful character is as vivid to me as ever—who is the man of action, the man of few words, the man who is ready to look facts in the face; there is the man who can do nothing else but talk, the idiotic optimist; there is the English, matter-of-fact, captain; and there is the Piper himself, the idealist.

The two other plays by Mr. O'Riordan which have been performed at the Abbey are "Time" and "An Imaginary Conversation." It is a long while since "Time" has been played; not, I think, since the author, who took a part in it himself, was in Dublin. It is, however, a slight piece in comparison with his other work. "An Imaginary Conversation," which is performed quite frequently, is a charming and delicate little comedy. There are three people in it—Emmet, Moore, and Sarah Curran. Mr. O'Riordan has written another interesting play, which was published shortly before the war. This play, "Rope Enough," is a sociological study in three acts. As yet it has not been produced in Dublin, but it is to be hoped that soon it will be seen here. Apart from his dramatic work, Mr. Conal O'Riordan is the author of several novels. He published, many years ago, a book of short stories, full of insight and sympathetic feeling, entitled "The Pity of War." Reading these, one could scarcely but feel the futility and the uselessness of fighting; story after story brought home point after point. A couple of years ago he started upon his series of books about "Adam," the first of which was "Adam of Dublin." The criticism of this book is that it did not finish so well as it started: the first half-dozen chapters were excellent, but the interest was not sustained until the end. Among his other work Mr. O'Riordan contributed a series of articles in the New Witness, upon affairs in general, under the heading, "So Far as I Can See." These essays were largely concerned with Irish affairs, and were written by a man who was keenly interested in Ireland; for Mr. O'Riordan, in addition to being a man of letters, is a man who takes the most vivid interest in Irish politics. He is the most sympathetic of men, and he is prepared to put himself to any amount of personal trouble in order to serve his countrymen; in 1913, and again in 1920, he came over to Dublin to do the best that he could for his country.

THREE AUSTRIAN PERSONALITIES.

The Emperor Francis Joseph.—I.

(BY MATUSCHKA.)

IN discussing the difficulties foreigners have in understanding the Austrians, Kürnberger declares that the chief reason of such a difficulty is that Austria is Asiatic in many respects. "Europe," he says, "means respect for facts; Asia means the purely personal." Now, the Government of Austria, as it was under the Hapsburgs, was the most personal Government that could be imagined. Hermann Bahr, a leading Viennese journalist, speaks of the Hapsburgs as "born artists" (presumably people who do not care for facts), and, certainly, the Emperor said once, on hearing of a patriot: "He may be a patriot, but is he a patriot for me?"

Steed, in his "Hapsburg Monarchy," continually reverts to this phrase as a sort of summary and keynote to the Emperor, a summary and keynote to all Austria in his person. For that jumble of many languages, nationalities, and beliefs, that jumble of rivalries and hatreds, held together to form a nation called the Austrian nation, was only held together by the thin thread of a dynastic person.

It is many years since Austrians have said that their Empire would fall to pieces at the death of their Emperor; they had long predicted that at his death Italy would sever herself from the Triple Alliance. These things have come to pass, though not exactly as people expected.

Since the war the term "Kaiser" has popularly come to mean, to English-speaking people, a person who has travestied the Divine Right of Kings into a supreme Right to Bully. But as between two dynasties, the Hapsburg, in point of fact, was the more autocratic in rule than the Hohenzollern. Yet when Francis Joseph drove through the streets of Vienna in an open carriage it would be a puzzle to find the tyrant.

It is certain that in Vienna people were not allowed to discuss the Emperor as English people may discuss the King. The Emperor was very much the Emperor; but whenever was there such a "Long live the Emperor" expressed from the heart as from the mouth of a nondescript lower middle class woman in these words: "When the Emperor dies—perhaps, in twenty or twenty-five years—I will be able to say of the next: 'He is Emperor,' for he was my grandmother's emperor, my mother's emperor, and my own emperor." "Ah," she declared in Viennese dialect, "when he goes, I tell you, all Vienna will cry, will howl with crying."

When he drove through the streets, the "oldest gentleman in Europe," touching his hat in answer to endless salutations, nodding and smiling, there could be no doubt that all Vienna at least was "a patriot for him." There were stories going, highly treasonable stories, and low stories, and history was busy weaving and plotting, as she always is; but Vienna, the true and simple Vienna that since has suffered, almost to the death, was a patriot "for him."

He came to the Throne in 1848; revolution was seething about him—he was an Emperor for sixty years after that. He has been accused of temporising, of cynicism, and at last he was accused of plunging the world into war. He had a long life of sorrow, and his own character is said to have represented the sum of an accumulation of grief.

"Entheorie, entheorie, peut être, mais en pratique il faut avoir été Empereur pour soixante ans," he said once, when a suggestion of some change was made to him.

If he was a cynic, he was a good-humoured cynic, and if sorrow makes men adaptable he should have been adaptable. His wife fell by the hand of an assassin, his son met a terrible, mysterious, and partly disgraceful end, the heir-presumptive was shot dead, together with his wife, by a student. There was more than all this for him to bear. Yet an Englishman who lived many years in Vienna writes of him: "He had a never-flagging sense of duty, a spirit of self-denial, an ever-present feeling that an account of his stewardship would one day be expected of him."

Even that fatal yellow poster bore strange testimony to it on the walls of Vienna on the day that the Austrian Empire declared war on Serbia. "When I am called to account," it said, "for my stewardship for the millions of lives of my peoples that God has entrusted to me. . . . ." Then it began.. And after Serbia, Russia. Hundreds of men whose caps bore the inscription F.J.I., marched beyond the Carpathians to a foreign land, through a bitter Russian winter, ill equipped, having disadvantages unknown to other armies, such as confusion of languages, and of opposing nationalities in their ranks. But though no great vituperations have been poured out on Austria, and no great songs of praise, let it be said that they were brave: "soldiers for him" as much as for the "black and yellow." Soon he, too, was called to account, in the summer of 1915.

INDIRECT SPEECH.

THE drill sergeant is almost the only survivor of those privileged to use the imperative mood; we have become so circumlocutory, so outwardly polite, that the direct command shocks the ear. It is well that we have the direct and personal "Thou shalt not" of the Divine commands to give us pause.

Occasionally the printed or painted word speaks with authority. "Keep off the grass," "Beware of the dog," leave nothing to be desired on the score of distinctness; and advertisers who can speak, as it were, from the shelter of their wares sometimes venture on the monitory tone, "Refuse substitutes," "Insist on having Stickem's toffee."

But in ordinary speech we are very worms, twisting and turning about the simplest phrase, keeping the hearer in suspense, wearing out our own powers of invention: why not eschew the tortuous and come back, not to the harsh, but to the simple? "Please close the door" is quite as civil as "If it is not too much trouble, would you very much mind closing the door?" Indeed, the former, in assuming good-will on the part of the person addressed, is the more truly polite.

In matters such as age, on which our interlocutor may be sensitive, we are occasionally reduced to diplomacy, if not subterfuge. The late G. W. E. Russell's story of the two children who, anxious to ascertain the age of a servant who appeared to them a monument of antiquity, gravely asked her how often she had seen the aloe flower, is a case in point; and in a matter of deportment and personal habits the young frequently respond to a hint when a command in all its baldness would leave them unmoved, perchance resentful.

No one believes the story of the parrot saying, "Time to go to bed" when the clock struck eleven; the trainer of such a bird would have become a millionaire or died of overwork; he would be invaluable, unless—horrid thought!—he had ventured to open his ill-omened beak when I was regaling the company with my latest poem or you with your adventures in the Sahara.

LEST WE FORGET.

THE photograph on the left is of the monumental cross of wood erected on Prospect Hill at Gouey Le Catalet, France. The inscription on the brass plate on the pedestal is as follows:—

> Sacred to the memory of the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the 51st Infantry Brigade, who fell in the capture of Prospect Hill, October 3, 1918.
> 6th Bn. The Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers.
> 1st Bn. The King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry.
> 4th Bn. The King's Royal Rifle Corps.
> 151st Trench Mortar Battery.

The photograph was taken by Rev. William Baillie, whose elder son, a lieutenant in the Inniskilling Fusiliers, was killed in this engagement. The cross is of unpainted wood and showing signs of decay.

The cross on the right is also of wood, and marks the grave of a Dublin officer who fell in the Battle of Guillemont and Guinchy in September 1916. We reproduce the photograph through the courtesy of his sister.

SNAKES.

(BY MARCIA.)

THE snake, or the serpent, from time immemorial has strangely affected the imagination of mankind. The conglomerate impression left by its many attributes on the mind is rather evil than good—putting one in mind sooner of the French decadents, the "Yellow Book," and the artistic work of Aubrey Beardsley than of the sunny virtues of everyday life.

Few people, I imagine, have ever applied to the snake the adjectives innocent, honest, kindly, or warm-hearted. Its very beauty has something of the sinister. Its cold-bloodedness, its silence—or the queerness of the few sounds it does make—its mysterious footless motion, its brilliant lidless eyes with their stony gaze, its frequent deadliness, its sinuosity, its power of casting yearly its skin, with the accompanying rejuvenescence, all these have combined to make the serpent interesting and awe-inspiring to human beings. They have feared it, hated it, and sometimes even loved it.

The Romans kept certain harmless species as pets in their homes, and the Roman ladies would wreath the creatures' cool bodies about their throats on hot days. The Parthians and Scythians carried images of snakes on the top of their spears, when going into battle. The Persians, Syrians, and Arabians used serpents in their religious mysteries. The Hindoos made idols of them, and the Egyptians figured Isis with forehead and temples wreathed round with the deadly asp, and Serapis with a snake attendant on him as a good genius.

The serpent enters freely into the mythologies and folklore of almost all nations. He cuts a sinister figure in early Biblical history, and the symbolism circling round the idea of the serpent is multifarious and varied. The double-headed serpent, the winged serpent, the serpent crowned with spikes, the serpent with a dragon's body, had all their significations. To the present day it is common to find rings in the shape of a snake's body—head joined to tail—as a symbol of eternal love.

Certainly the architypal serpent glides through an atmosphere of romantic imaginations, of immemorial traditions, and innumerable superstitions. The real creature looked at in the hard daylight of the present time is rather disappointing. True, one is still awe-struck by the forked tongue, the cold eye, the strange shape; but not so much as one expected—as long as there's a sheet of glass between! As with almost all creatures, the smaller ones are the slyest, spryest, most malicious and clever. The lordly boa and the regal python have a certain grandeur of muscular strength, menace and power. They are not sly or malicious, and if they are cruel they are honestly so. They don't sting; they only squash you to death, and they do it slowly, straightforwardly, majestically.

That there is beauty among the creatures cannot be denied, nor that they have a wisdom of their own. People who have lived in snake-infested parts of India have paid considerable tribute to their intelligence. "I used to hear their queer hissing talk with one another at night," said a lady who had lived on the borders of the jungle near Delhi. "There was a hollow under the boarded floor of my room, and I could hear the snakes whispering all night long."

There is a hint of some capacity for friendship in this—as if they had discussed ophidian politics without enmity at least; but there is an ugly story as to their cannabalistic proclivities that seems to denegate that. However, it is possible that even a cannibal can have a chum and enjoy a gossip with him, though he make a meal of him afterwards.

MALLOW WATERS.

Mallow was celebrated for centuries for the efficacy of its tepid mineral springs as a powerful restorative to debilitated constitutions, and was found to be peculiarly efficacious in scrofulous and consumptive cases.

In the beginning of the 18th century it began to be widely known, and in the early years of the 19th century it was much frequented as a fashionable resort during the summer months. The beauty if its environment had rendered it a desirable place of residence, and numbers of people came from distant places, as it was the only water of the kind in Ireland.

HOW CATANIA WAS SAVED.

Fighting a Sea of Lava.

(BY G. W. MURRAY.)

THE City of Catania seems to throw a gauntlet in the face of Providence. Phœnix-like, she has emerged, time and again, from earthquakes and fiery baptisms of glowing lava to renew her strength in wider streets and more spacious mansions.

She is one of the most important cities in Sicily, and lies on the southern slopes of Mount Etna.

One wonders what fatal attraction enslaves her to this fiery basilisk; for since classic times, when Pindar and Æschylus immortalised her as the prison of the mighty Typhœus, Etna's history is an almost unbroken series of eruptions every five years.

True, these eruptions have not always been of a deadly, or even remarkable, character; but the chronicles of Catania, and the stories which tradition has handed down, present a record of horror and fear, probably unparalleled by any other city in the world, and one can listen for hours at a time to awe-inspiring tales of "dangers past" told by swarthy Sicilian raconteurs.

Streams of Molten Fire.

The most terrible eruption on record occurred in 1669. The complete details have been preserved, and a very full and accurate account by one Alphonso Borelli, a professor of mathematics, is still extant.

On the night of the 8th March, 1669, a violent hurricane swept along the slopes of Etna, leaving in its wake uprooted trees and roofless and shattered houses. Earthquakes shook the ground, and, to add to the general terror of the scene, a low, thick cloud of opaque and poisonous smoke was hurled from the crater of the volcano, blotting out completely the rays of the rising sun.

It was a "horror of thick darkness," in which panic-striken crowds fled distractedly here and there, stumbling on the shuddering ground, or falling, crushed beneath crashing débris.

Suddenly a fissure, which seemed to seek out the very centre of the earth, was rent in the side of Etna. Along this glowing seam ran a number of volcanic mouths, vomiting, amid a thunderous clamour, clouds of inky smoke and incandescent sand. Soon seven of these mouths coalesced to form a growling abyss, which continued to belch white hot cinders and lava for four months without ceasing.

In the meantime the crater of Etna woke to fury, and hurled a huge cloud of smoke and flames heavenwards. The imprisoned Typhœus rattled his chains within till the whole mountain shook, and the crests of the crater toppled inwards, to be shot up a moment later in glowing fragments.

From deep hollows in the rocky mountain-side streams of lava oozed in glowing streaks, trickling slowly to the plain, and eating up forests and homesteads en route.

Catania Threatened.

Gradually, but with dreadful certainty, these streams began to unite and spread over the country towards Catania.

Villages and towns were wiped out, as in the present eruption, but in addition a whole hill was carried away, and a vineyard was observed floating on a fiery flood for a moment, like an emerald set in burnished copper, and then disappeared into a mass of charcoal.

Between this threatening stream and the great outer wall of Catania lay a valley, which the inhabitants hoped against hope would prove their salvation. Vain hope! In six short hours the valley filled—overflowed—and the lava, in a line a mile long, and eleven yards high, advanced upon the town.

It seemed as though nothing could save Catania; but at the eleventh hour Providence intervened. Another stream of lava, working across the main stream, turned it towards the sea, when it had reached within a hundred yards of the walls.

On the seashore, water and fire met in deadly combat. Now forty feet high, and over a mile and a half long, the lava pressed its way into the tide. Steam and sooty vapour obscured the horizon, and thick clouds drifted inland, bedewing the parched ground with salt-impregnated rain. In the course of a few days the shore had receded nearly quarter of a mile.

The trials of Catania were but in embryo. Each day new tributaries joined the main stream, which, assuming the proportions of a miniature ocean, began to lave the ramparts of the town.

Helplessly and hopelessly, the inhabitants watched it rise hour by hour, till it was level with the top of the walls; under the enormous pressure they crumpled up on a length of about fifty yards, and the molten mass poured in.

The Deluge—and After.

Owing to its thick, treacle-like, consistency, lava advances slowly, so that escape is really not a serious difficulty. But most of the Catanians loved their city too dearly to desert her without a fight, and though its doom seemed inevitable, for it was the higher parts that the lava had invaded, they pluckily set about building walls to divert the stream into certain streets, through which it could be led out of the city. Even women and children joined in the work, and with blistered and bleeding hands, carried stones and bucketfuls of earth to form the banks of this unprecedented canal.

By this means the immediate danger was stayed, but the question was "For how long?" The inspiration of genius coupled with intrepid courage, now stepped in to save the city.

Some men noticed that after the lava had lain for a few days, it formed a hard surface crust, beneath which the main stream still flowed. The idea occurred to them that if they were to break the crust in well-chosen spots above the city, it might be possible to lead away the greater part of the stream elsewhere.

About a hundred brave men picked their way upwards between glowing streams of lava till they reached the higher slopes of the volcano. Here, in several places, they attacked the crust with picks and crow-bars.

Gasping for breath in the stifling, sulphurous atmosphere, and walking on ground which scorched the soles of their feet, till every step was torture. Heedless of burns from lava, and scalds from the steam which burst in clouds from every crevice, these heroes worked on till they had accomplished their purpose.

The success which they deserved attended their efforts. In the city the flood rose no more; and in Catania to-day, there is not a youngster who does not know the whole story by heart, and fervently prays for the repose of the souls of the brave men who saved his city.

POPLARS.

GREY slender spires on either side the river bank, they keep their silent watch all through the year. Coldly grey all winter, till spring's watery sunshine throws a veil of silver mystery about them. In summer their topmost boughs are clothed with feathery delicate green, wherein the sunlight darts and plays.

Bending, but not broken, after winter storms, seared, but not disfigured by scorching suns, they are an inspiring emblem of fortitude. Sometimes the wild North wind takes them in his grip, lashing them with passion, but, although they groan swaying in agony beneath the strain, their spirit is not broken or their calm destroyed. Again in the quiet rainbow hour of the evening, serene and smiling they nod their graceful heads, whispering to each other of eternal verities as compared to life's little fleeting hours of torment.

And yet, with all their loftiness, they do not disdain the trivial affairs of smaller lives. Within their sheltering branches a choir of singing birds build their little homes. They weave fantastic shadows for lovers to thread their way through in the moonlight. Fairies dwell in the gnarled hollows in their boles, and, sometimes at the rising of the crescent moon favoured mortals—perhaps a lover and his lass, perchance a little child—can see the tiny folk dancing on the magic carpet beneath their shade.

At night the darkness wraps them in impenetrable gloom, but they are undismayed. They know 'tis but a step towards a yet more glorious dawn.

Let your "Kodak" tell the story

The best stories are those which need no words. A "Kodak" picture speaks for itself. It tells the whole story of your glorious days on the river, at the seaside, and in the country; it tells you, again and again, the story that is ever new—the story of your children, your home, and your friends. The story is your own—it will never be written unless you write it with a "Kodak." Begin chapter one to-day—you can learn to use a "Kodak" in half-an-hour.

Stop the War on Irish Industries

What Protection does:

1. Protection secures employment for labour.
2. Protection enables manufacturers to pay high wages.
3. Protection does away with the necessity for emigration.
4. Protection aids young industries.
5. Protection does not raise prices to the consumer.
6. Protection lowers prices by increasing home consumption.
7. Protection, by keeping Irish money in Ireland, increases the purchasing power of the consumer and enables the home market to absorb larger quantities of agricultural produce.

EVERY progressive country in the world built up its industries under a policy of Protection. How can Ireland, denuded of industries, afford to do without it?

Leaflets and Pamphlets dealing with the Fiscal Question as it affects this country are in course of preparation, and will shortly be available for distribution.

AN IRISH DERBY SEQUEL.

CANOVA'S SUCCESS AT SANDOWN.

LIGHTHOUSE BADLY BEATEN.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Friday Night.

I regret to have to report that some individual who was at the Curragh races yesterday afternoon, and whose acquisitive instincts seemed to have mastered for the moment his sense of the hospitality due to the stranger within his gates, has created a highly immoral deficit in the finances of Mr. Walter Raphael, the owner of Waygood, who won the Irish Derby on Wednesday. Mr. Raphael was preparing to return to England just before the last race yesterday, and was talking to Mrs. J. T. Rogers, when someone dashed past, as if in a hurry to be on the last winner. When Mr. Raphael recovered his equilibrium his pocket book, containing £30, was gone. This was all the ready money he had on him.

It is true that Waygood had established a credit for him of £4,700 in Mr. Harold Clarke's books, but this was not a liquid asset. Mr. Raphael, who is reputed in the City of London to be a millionaire, found himself stranded in a strange country, without the consolation of even a tossing coin in his pocket. Fortunately, he found a friend who was willing to accommodate him with the temporary loan of a fiver with which to get back to England, and, fingering its remnants in his pocket, he stepped on the platform at Euston Station in the early hours of this morning. The pocket book also contained some memoranda, and it would be a courteous action on the part of the thief to return these to Mr. Raphael.

LIGHTHOUSE'S IGNOMINIOUS DEFEAT.

Blazing weather favoured the Sandown meeting this afternoon, and the heat, coming so suddenly after the long period of cold days, was too oppressive for many people. The racing was hardly of the highest class, and it included the ignominious defeat in the Sandringham Plate of the St. Leger candidate, Lighthouse, who failed to get within six lengths of the winner, Canova—deemed a very moderate sort of horse, but good enough to annex this thousand pound stake.

Lighthouse injured himself slightly in his last race at Kempton Park, and his trainer had not been able to gallop him on the hard ground. Still, he thought he would be able to pull through in the moderate company here.

The market opposition to him was very pronounced, and, whereas he should have been a two or three to one on chance, he was easy to back by laying a shade of odds, and in some places evens was to be had about him.

CANOVA'S FIRST SUCCESS.

There were only four runners, and Portlight at once proceeded to tail himself off. Very soon George Archibald on Canova had established a four or five lengths' lead from Lighthouse, and this, on the Sandown course, where it is very difficult, considering the stiff nature of the run-in, to give away distance. Tornaveen kept with Canova, but a quarter of a mile from home he was done with, and Lighthouse's effort to reach Canova being a very feeble one, the outsider of the party won in a canter.

I must say that Archibald rode a beautiful race on the winner, setting a pace which always had Lighthouse in difficulties. It was the first race ever won by Canova, and his trainer, Willie Waugh, is to be congratulated on getting this nice stake with him.

The Rookery Two-Year-Old Plate went to Lord Durham's Hellespont, a very nice, neat grey filly by Gay Crusader. The offspring of this young sire have not so far been noted for displaying either a great deal of courage or stamina, but this one ran her race out with the greatest determination to get the better of Lord Lonsdale's Tilia, a filly by Roi Herode, out of Tillywhim.

TO-DAY'S CARD.

The British Dominion Two-Year-Old Plate, famous for all time as the race in which Pretty Polly made her début, is the principal event to-morrow at Sandown. The champion swerver, Beresford, who performed such acrobatic feats at Ascot, is a runner here, and should his jockey be able to keep him straight he will probably win. He is one of those colts who are for ever looking back at their jockey out of the corner of the eye, and he might as well be left alone until he displays more aptitude for the serious business of the day. It is probable that the race will be won by ST. GERMANS, a newcomer from Alec Taylor's stable, who is a half-brother to Buchan by Swynford, and of whom a good deal is thought. Mr. R. C. Dawson may win the June Rose Handicap with SPES, while the Robert de Witville Handicap should go to CORTONA.

POLO.

ALL-IRELAND CLUB.

To-day—Practice 4.30 to 6 o'clock.
Lucan v. Dublin, 6 o'clock.

There were seven starters for each of the races at Limerick Junction yesterday, and Grey Point, the winner of the chief event, was numbered seven on the card.

LIMERICK JUNCTION.

GREY POINT WINS CHIEF EVENT.

FAILURE OF STEADY MARQUIS.

The attraction a richly endowed race has for the public was again manifested at Limerick Junction yesterday, the attendance being much the best seen at this course so far this season. It was a capital afternoon's racing, enjoyed under ideal conditions, and the big two-year-old event provided a race well worth going a long distance to see, and well rewarded the management for their enterprise.

Of a moderate lot of horses in the Flying Plate Happy Princess was considered to be the best, though her form up to this had been disappointing, and again she gave a poor account of herself, and the race fell an easy prey to First Fruit, who is owned by Mr. T. W. Price, whose colours had not been seen in front for some considerable time. Grosvenor Light, another of Mr. J. Musker's numerous string, was expected to continue the winning sequence by appropriating the Ballykisteen Plate, but after leading to the straight the favourite's measure was taken by Zara, who won comfortably, and thus went one better than at the Curragh, where she finished second to Shy Man. Land of Sun, with long odds laid on him, had an easy journey in the Stayers' Plate.

Exceptional interest was taken in the Limerick Junction Plate, which is worth 1,000 sovs., as it was the first occasion of testing the real merits of Speedy Marquis, who won his two races at Baldoyle in runaway style. He was a strong favourite, but his chance was not improved by severeal breaks away from the gate prior to the start. This probably affected him, and for once in a way he was not the quickest to begin. Grey Point got into his stride much faster than the others, and as the race was run this probably just enabled him to get the best of a great finish with Lord Aldborough and Speedy Marquis, heads dividing the three passing the judge's box. The winner, who is by Book, out of Athgreany, was one of the outsiders of the party, and while perhaps a bit lucky to win he responded very gamely when challenged by Lord Aldborough. The latter was certainly travelling faster than the winner at the finish, and should be seen in winning form before long. There was another great finish for the Stewards' Plate between Pacifier and Boyne Bridge, and it was in the main due to E. Quirke's fine riding that Pacifier got up in the last couple of strides to win by a short head. No Points easily landed the odds laid on him for the Directors' Plate. Details:—

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

With the June Rose Handicap and British Dominion Two-Year-Old Plate included in the card, the racing should be of a higher order at Sandown to-day. The course is certainly on the firm side, but there can be little to complain of in this direction. East Tor and Bowood are to fight their Ascot battle over again, and in view of the fact that he won so easily at Ascot I fancy that the Manton candidate will again beat His Majesty's colt. Sorrel looks attractive if back to his old form, but I fear he will find the going against him, and I take the danger to East Tor to be Spes, who is nicely handicapped at 8st. 7lb. In view, however, of the fact that Manton is at the flood tide of success and that we know East Tor to be capable of getting the distance, I give him my confident vote. The British Dominion Plate appears to be between Equator, St. Germans, and Beresford. The first-named easily disposed of Whispering Smith, but as it was the latter's first outing this form may not amount to much. I hear excellent accounts of St. Germans; but believing that had Beresford kept a straight course at Ascot he would have about won I give him my vote. Selections:—

Alington Plate—College Green.
June Rose Handicap—East Tor.

GOLF.

SENIOR CUP HOLDERS DEFEATED.

CAPTAIN MARTIN BEATS A. LOWE 5 AND 4.

Royal Portrush met Malone, the holders, in the final of the Ulster section of the Senior Cup competition yesterday at Newcastle, and won a surprising victory by 4 matches to 3.

Captain Martin, who played for Royal Portrush, was again in splendid form, and, although starting badly, picking up on the way to the first hole, he overwhelmed A. Lowe, the Irish Open Champion, winning by 5 and 4.

In the first round of the Barton Shield, Royal Portrush (holders) beat Royal County Down by 12 holes.

NEXT WEEK'S MATCHES AT ROYAL DUBLIN.

During the progress of the Senior Cup and Barton Shield competitions at the Royal Dublin Club the first tee will be kept clear half-an-hour before the start of each competition, and on ladies' days no lady shall start a round after 1.30 p.m. The Senior Cup will start next Monday at 4 o'clock on Tuesday, 3rd, at 4.30, and the final on Wednesday, 4th, at 4.30. The Barton Shield will start on Thursday, 5th, at 4 o'clock; on Friday, 6th, at 4.30, and the final on Saturday, 7th, at 4.30.

SCOTTISH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP.

HOLDER BEATEN.

Mrs. J. B. Watson (Murrayfield), who had won the title on the last three occasions that it was played for, was surprisingly defeated in the final of the Scottish Ladies' Championship at Lossiemouth yesterday, by Mrs. W. H. Nicholson, also of Murrayfield, who won by 2 and 1.

Mrs. Watson opened with a win, and each won a hole immediately afterwards. The fifth Mrs. Nicholson secured owing to the champion being weak on the green, and, as the next five were halved, Mrs. Nicholson turned with a one hole lead. Mrs. Watson squared at the tenth, but the challenger took the lead at the eleventh and retained it to the end. A pulled tee shot cost Mrs. Watson the twelfth, and after a couple of halves Mrs. Nicholson won the short fifteenth to become dormy. The holder took the sixteenth, but Mrs. Nicholson got the necessary half, thanks to an excellent brassie shot at the seventeenth, to win the Championship.

VETERANS' CUP AT PORTMARNOCK.

There was a record entry of 93 for the Veterans' Cup, open to members of the recognised golf clubs who are over fifty years of age, which was played for yesterday at Portmarnock. It resulted in a tie between J. J. Grayson, Co. Louth (9) and J. D. Moore, Portmarnock (15), with 73 each. S. C. Cooke, Royal Dublin (10), was third with 79, and H. M. Cairnes (plus 1) next with 80. The tie may be played off on a day agreeable to the players, the secretary to be notified of the date.

NOTES.

The handicap for the R.A.Y.C. small cruisers' match will not be made known until to-day. Exactly what the distance the course may be—from Kingstown round Lambay (leaving the island on the port hand), and win at Howth Harbour, Ireland's Eye to be left to port—we do not know, but everybody wishes to see the fixture being a success.

One of the early ideas about this race was that small yachts taking part in it must needs be in bona-fide cruising trim; in other words, that they would be ready if necessary to be out all night, and carry, therefore, side lights, etc.—be little cruisers in fact as well as in name. Now most will be satisfied to see a sufficient number of craft start, and the likely competitors to-day appear to be Mercia III., of the Seapoint Class I., and Sheila II., Lil, and Vagrance, of the Howth Club, with the little Tern, of Kingstown, the owners and crews of each boat being necessarily members of the R.A.Y.C.

For this afternoon, at least, the Combined Class of the D.B.S.C. will be really a combined classes match, the 25 and 21 footers sailing in it, the latter receiving 11 mins. initial handicap. As the 21 footers will be sent away ten minutes before the 25 footers the correction of time for handicap purposes at the finish will be one minute only. It is a modification of the handicap start principle, and we have an idea that the handicap start is surely coming.

A possible future form of it will be to leave it optional with the officer of the day, he to enforce it when there is a breeze at the start, or to revert to the present practice when lack of wind would negative its advantages. Such a plan would be very feasible, although it would put a very heavy strain on the starter, and if there were two or three races to be sailed there might be a mess.

Both the Seapoint B.C. matches this afternoon will start from the back of the West Pier. Helmsmen and crews of Class II. should note that they will sail a special course, viz., from the starting line to the mark off Seapoint Tower; then to red barrel; thence to green do.; thence to hauling buoy; thence to green barrel, back to hauling buoy and then finish at line—all marks to starboard.

Owners of small cruisers should note that entries for the Independent Cup series of races will close on Tuesday next with the Hon. Sec., Dublin Bay Sailing Club.

THE CLYDE FORTNIGHT.

The King's cutter Britannia, in yesterday's racing on the Firth of Clyde, won the Mudhook Club's Jubilee Cup, beating Nyria by three minutes fifteen seconds. Terpsichore was out of the race after the first round.

Before bringing their Polish visit to a close on Wednesday, the King and Queen of Rumania laid a wreath on the tomb of Kosciusko, the Polish national hero, at Cracow. They left in the afternoon for Lancot on their way back to Rumania.

ULSTER V. LEINSTER.

Representatives of these provinces met at the Ulster Club's grounds, Belfast, yesterday. At the last moment W. Pollock was unable to play, and his place as captain of the Ulster team was taken by W. Andrews, of the North Down Club. The wicket was favourable to the batsmen, and Ulster had the advantage of taking first innings. An excellent start was made by Finlay Jackson and N. Sproule, who faced the bowling of G. N. Kelly and J. G. Heaslip. The batsmen seemed to get settled down immediately, and hit out with so much vigour and freedom that 50 runs were registered in twenty-five minutes. Soon afterwards a change was made in the bowling, R. H. Lambert, the visiting captain, supplanting Kelly. Sproule drove Lambert's first ball into the pavilion, and for a time the rate of scoring was increased. In one of Heaslip's overs Sproule scored 15, and at the end of half an hour he reached his half century. W. R. King then went on in place of Heaslip, and with his fourth ball he got rid of Sproule, who was caught by Wills. His 55 included two 6's and half a dozen fours. D. R. Taylor joined Jackson, and the score was carried to 117 before Taylor, playing back to King, gave an easy catch. With Coskery and Jackson together, more changes were made in the bowling, L. Bookman and C. Pemberton being tried, but the defence was more than equal to the attack, and when Jackson was dismissed, after contributing 85, the score for three wickets was 201. Anderson was the next batsman, and Coskerry and he raised the total to 217.

When Andrews succeeded Coskery there was a slowing down of the pace, but runs continued to be piled up, and the partnership realised 43. C. Anderson, who played fine cricket, was caught and bowled by Lambert, and A. E. Anderson then came on the scene. The sixth wicket did not fall until 292 runs had been scored, but the seventh fell without any increase, Dearden being caught by Pigot. Bowers began by driving Wiles twice past point in his first over, and 300 was telegraphed at the end of three hours' play. Eleven runs later Andrews was sent back to the pavilion, after having been at the crease for nearly 90 minutes for 27 runs. Blackburn made five, and the innings terminated with the score at 330. Leinster lost one wicket for 23, before stumps were drawn for the day. Score:—

SURREY V. OXFORD UNIVERSITY.

So well did Sadler bowl at the Oval yesterday that Surrey might have beaten Oxford had they fielded up to their usual standard, instead of making so many mistakes that the University got the 211 runs wanted for victory, with three wickets to spare. ROYAL NAVY V. ARMY.

Giving another very inconsistent batting display the Navy, at Lord's yesterday, suffered a heavy defeat by 319 runs. They naturally had little chance of obtaining 421 runs required for victory after the Army had declared at the overnight total, but as the pitch remained in fairly good condition a much better fight was expected. DUBLIN TO DONEGAL AND BACK.

The neighbourhood of Parkgate street was the scene of considerable animation last evening, when the competitors in the Dublin and District Motor Cycle Club's annual Twenty-four Hours' Reliability Trial to Donegal and back were sent away at one minute intervals from 7 o'clock. The all-day ride is properly regarded as the most important event of the Dublin season, and forms a trial of unusual severity. Those who are fortunate enough to complete the trial will have covered 419 miles by the time they return to Dublin this evening. As in former years, the crucial point of the trial will be the ascent of Glengesh Mountain from Ardara, Co. Donegal, the steepest hill to be found on any main road in Ireland. On the present occasion the hill will be climbed twice, a circuit via Carrick and Killybegs to Ardara being made after the first ascent. After an hour's stop at Ardara for breakfast on Saturday morning, the second ascent of the hill will be made. It is a condition of the competition that clean ascents of the hill must be made on both occasions to secure first-class awards, and that a competitor should lose no other marks throughout the competition. Silver medals are offered for those not losing more than ten marks, and bronze medals to those losing not more than twenty. In addition a number of special awards are offered. A silver cup will be given for the best performance on a passenger machine, provided the driver does not lose more than ten marks, and for this cup seven cycle cars and five four-wheelers have entered. A special prize is offered for the best performance on a passenger machine not exceeding 650 c.c., provided the driver finishes within ten minutes of schedule time and loses not more than ten marks. A special cup is offered for the best performance on a machine of under 600 c.c. capacity, the driver not losing more than ten marks, and having the least variation at secret checks. All the solo machines in the trial are eligible for this prize. There are also special prizes for the best performance on a light-weight machine not exceeding 250 c.c., and for the best performance by a novice; while the W. H. Freeman Challenge Cup is offered for the best performance by a team of three riders on machines of the same make. Where the total cubic capacity of the three machines comprising a team exceeds 1,000 c.c. one side-car machine must be included, and when over 1,900 c.c. two side-car machines must be included in the team.

Of the 30 machines which started from Dublin last evening 12 were passenger-carrying vehicles, and 18 solos, the latter comprising five light-weights of under 250 c.c.; six medium-powered machines of under 350 c.c., and seven machines ranging from 500 to 600 c.c. With the exception of the 3 h.p. Raleigh and a 4 h.p. Norton, all the side-cars are of the high-powered type.

The first of the competitors is due to make the first ascent of Glengesh at 6.35 a.m. this morning, and the second ascent at 9.18 a.m. The return journey from Donegal will be made through Killybegs, Ballyshannon, Bundoran, Manorhamilton, Belturbet, Cavan, Virginia, Kells, Navan, and Dunshaughlin, the trial finishing at the Castleknock Gate of the Phœnix Park, where the first of the competitors is due at 9 o'clock this evening.

GAELIC PASTIMES.

NOTES ON COMING MATCHES.

In view of the Athletic Championships at Croke Park, Gaelic competitions in Dublin over the week-end are confined to League, Minor, and Schools' Competitions. Croke Park is at the complete disposal of the N.A.C.A., and rightly so. Athletic Championships have world-wide meaning. This country will be engaged in International competitions on July 14th, and the necessary preparation must be made. Thus all Gaelic ties of serious moment are suspended at headquarters over to-day and Sunday.

At Thurles, however, a huge crowd will gather. The most important fixtures in the Munster programme are listed there. Eight special trains are running. In hurling and football Limerick and Tipperary meet. Both counties have many championships to their credit; Tipperary County has won the Hurling Championship nine times. Political troubles interfered considerably with the country's place in the games recently. Munster matches in April and May point to Tipperary's revival. The team is largely of the old composition, and the best of the old members figure in it. Cork County was beaten readily, and Cork can send a good team in any day. I cannot see this Tipperary team beating Limerick, however. The Garryowen team are a sturdy lot of well-trained, experienced men; and when they appeared in Dublin twice in the spring they made an immense impression. They were strong, aggressive, and prevailing. They meet Tipperary to-morrow at full strength. Many hundreds are making the journey from Dublin; trains are convenient, and the Munster finals have considerable portent with followers of Gaelic pastimes. Winners of the Munster finals can always be trusted to make a bold effort to secure the highest honours. Faughs played so well last week that I think they are in the running for this year's Inter-County and All-Ireland titles. For some time Dublin hurling has not been of Championship calibre, but it is coming back. Faugh's hurling last Sunday was of a high standard; they were well-balanced in every section, hitting balls with skill and finish. The fact that Collegians were outclassed is significant, for Collegians fielded a useful team.

We welcome the development of the Civic Guards' team, now coming along rapidly. The Guards ought to have the best team in Ireland, and I think they have material enough to beat all the cracks. Beaten on several occasions, they have come on again, and their best men will be available for Dublin and All-Ireland Competitions whenever the occasion demands. O'Tooles have again demonstrated their marked ability as a club. Against Leix they won easier than the score would indicate. Dublin junior hurlers had a tougher fight. That team ought to win the Leinster Junior Championship. The senior footballers will have serious opposition. The Kilkenny County fifteen are a weighty proposition; and I should not be surprised to find Kilkenny winning. O'Tooles have a huge reserve of strength, and will not allow their long winning sequence to be easily broken.

IDLE STOCKS.

AN EASY CLOSE.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT AND THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

The week closed in the Stock Markets yesterday with the tone quite good, but with business conditions still on the slack side. In some directions a certain amount of interest was noticeable, and several quotations displayed an improving tendency. With the settlement out of the way, speculative counters returned to favour, but investment stocks were inclined to be dullish. Home Funds maintained a firm front in the early dealings, but with rather less inquiry put through, an easier tendency crept in, and small declines were registered in one or two stocks. Among India Loans the 4½ p.c. and 5½ p.c. were weak, while the new 4½ p.c. moved downwards in sympathy. An exception was provided by the Threes, which recovered their loss of the previous day. Home Rails were rather erratic. Prices were generally better at the commencement, but eased off later to close below the best, although, where changed, quotations were a little higher on balance. There was some inquiry for Pref. Stocks, all of which improved slightly.

LONDON STOCKS CONTINUE QUIET.

SOME SIGNS OF FIRMNESS.

The Stock markets were quiet yesterday, though here and there signs of firmness were evident. The close, however, was flat and uninteresting. In British Funds the only change on the day was a fall of ⅛ to 80⅞ in the Conversion Loan.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES were inactive, but the changes recorded showed improvement. Mexican Fives at 62 and the Sixes at 72 were both 2 points higher. Peruvian Corporation Pref. gained ½ at 28½. Egyptian Unified also rose ⅛ to 71½.

HOME RAILS were almost without change. Districts gained ½ at 53 and Southern Pref. Ord. rose ½ at 87½. London, Midland, and Scottish Ord. fell ¼ to 110¼.

COLONIAL AND FOREIGN RAILS were the best market, for the tone was good, and several advances were recorded. "Canpacs" rose 2 to 163. Argentines again advanced. B.A.G.'s rose ½ to 87, Pacifics 1 to 84, Westerns 1 to 83, and Centrals 1½ to 74½. Leopoldina gained a point at 31. San Paulo Ord. rose 1 to 139 and United Havana 1 to 75. Antofagasta Ord. gained ½ at 84½ x.d. Americans were rather uncertain.

OIL SHARES NEGLECTED.

PRICE MOVEMENTS IRREGULAR.

Business in Oil Shares yesterday centred once more on the leaders, and a few specialities—in fact, interest was confined to about a dozen shares. While in a few cases a moderate demand was experienced, to which prices responded, others were offered and moved down, so that the price movements finally recorded were of an irregular character. Chief interest among the leaders centred on Mexican Eagles, which were freely offered throughout the day, the poor showing made by the report resulting in a steady stream of selling, which, as the price declines, appears to be increasing in volume. Royal Dutch again had an improving tendency, the shares registering a further recovery. At the annual meeting of the Royal Dutch, held yesterday, the report was approved. Shells preserved a steady tone, there being a fair turnover in the shares. Anglo-Persians remained quietly steady, and Burmahs and Anglo-Americans improved. Closing prices:—

RUBBER SHARES DULL.

The Rubber share market was very dull and movments generally were small. Telogoredjo, however, was an exception, falling 2s. 6d. to 40s., while Ledbury gained 1s. 10½d. at 30s. 7½d. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

A rather curious complication has arisen in regard to dealings in Imperial Tobaccos. No renunciation letters were issued with the new bonus shares, and for the present there can be no dealings in those shares. This means that if a shareholder desires to sell his holding, the broker must be careful to deliver the exact number of old and new shares involved. In the case of a bargain done for the account the position is rather interesting, because, where a bull held three shares at 67/6 this week a bear held four shares, which would be good delivery. British-American Tobacco improved to 98 5. Albert Baker fell to 25/6.

With the settlement over without any disclosure of trouble, Stock Exchange markets are taking on a brighter aspect, and things are already beginning to look more cheerful. The end of June account is generally approached with a certain amount of trepidation in market circles. Liquidation by banks anxious to show a strong cash position in their half-yearly, or yearly, as the case may be, balance sheets is not unusual, with the inevitable result of weakening in prices. This year has proved no exception to the rule, and if history further repeats itself we are due for a general recovery in markets with the turn of the half-year.

LONDON MINING MARKET CHEERFUL.

RISES IN LEADING SHARES.

Although there was no great increase in the volume of trading in the Stock Exchange yesterday, no one had expected much liveliness on the closing day of a very dull week. There was a distinctly more cheerful tendency in most departments. Gilt-edged securities held up well, and covering operations over the week-end were partly responsible for a recovery in some of the speculative sections. The low level to which several of the leading Kaffirs have fallen is beginning to attract bargain-hunters, and their purchases helped to put prices better. Also the fact that the financial position in South Africa is now clearer helped to restore confidence. But, after all, dealings were mostly of a professional or semi-professional character, and the improvements in values are not important, having regard to the depreciation which had previously been in progress. It was cheering to find Central Mining, Rand Mines, Modderfontein, and Crown Mines better, and several of the lower-priced shares followed the lead thus given, while the shrinkages on the day numbered less than half a dozen. A rather better feeling was also noticeable in the Rhodesian department, where Chartered continued in favour and again moved up, while Cam and Motor and Tanganyika strengthened. Selukwe maintained their position, and there was a little nibbling at some of the smaller fry, which, however, showed little alteration. Diamonds were as dull as ever, except that Consolidated Diamonds responded to a modest inquiry. A recovery of £1 15s. to £182 15s. per ton in the price of the metal failed to infuse life into the Tin Share market, and changes were few in number and irregular in character. Fanti Consols, in the West African list, were dull, and Australians, where altered, were lower, Associated being somewhat freely offered. In the Copper section, Tintos were again on the up-grade, but Mount Lyell fell back. Elsewhere, Mexico Mines were a good market, and El Oro were inquired for, but San Francisco, after a good start, finished on the wrong side, and Canadians were dullish. Closing prices:—

INDUSTRIALS FIRM.

BUSINESS STILL LIMITED.

The better feeling in evidence in the Miscellaneous and Industrial Markets on the preceding day was still noticeable yesterday, and although the amount of actual business transacted was comparatively small a considerable number of inquiries were reported by people who were anxious to know whether prices had really touched bottom. Most departments maintained a firm appearance, but movements on balance were mostly unimportant. As a result of the statements published concerning the company's position National Bank of South Africa Shares firmed up to 6¼. Standard of South Africas, however, dropped ¼. London and Brazilians lost ½, Bank of Australasia ⅛, and British Bank of West Africa a like amount, while Westminsters fell 1/16. Insurances hardly moved. Very few quotable alterations occurred in the miscellaneous trading list. Salt Unions rose 6d., and Brunner Monds further improved to 39s. 3d., while Magadi Sodas strengthened to 3s. 6d.; Crosse and Blackwells stiffened to 3s. 6d., and Nobel Industries to £1. Oil Cakes remained at 28s. 6d., and Lever 8 per Cent. Prefs. at 22s. 1½d. ex div., though the 7 per Cents. eased to 23s. 1½d. ex div. Cements still ruled at 24s., and British Portlands at 1½. Gamage Prefs. dropped 1s. and Bryant and Mays 9d. Following the meeting De La Rue Debs. hardened to 42. Motors left off practically unchanged, though in the Newspaper and Printing group Associated Def. recovered to 8 1/16 and Daily Mirrors to 7¼. G. Newnes eased to 17s. 6d. ex div. Apart from Millars Timbers, which hardened to 9s. 1½d., Land Shares finished without quotable alteration. Among Trust and Finance descriptions, Investment Def. rose 4. Firmness again characterised the Tobacco section. After being up to 71s. 9d. at one time Imperials were subjected to realisations, and relapsed to 70s. 9d., at which level they closed unchanged on balance, while B.A.T. continued at 101s., after being dealt in at up to 102s. Canadas were wanted, and rose to 24s. 3d., and United Tobacco—South—improved to 57s. 3d. and the Deferred to 56s. 6d.

THE MONEY MARKET.

STRONG DEMAND FOR LOANS.

FALL IN STERLING IN NEW YORK.

As anticipated, there was a strong demand for loans into July, and a very large business was done at the Bank of England in advances for a week and longer. Borrowers had to pay 3-3½ p.c. as a rule for seven-day loans, and in some cases as much as 3¾ p.c. was charged. Short loans, however, were still plentiful at 1¼ to 1½ p.c. In the Discount market interest centred in the Treasury bill tenders, the rate, as expected, being higher at just under 2 1/16. Monday to Friday bills at £99 8s. 4d. get about 3 p.c., above in full, and Saturday bills at £99 8s. 6d., and above in full. Discount rates were adjusted accordingly, 2¼-2⅜ p.c. being quoted for fine three months' bills, while the new Treasuries were nominally 2⅜ p.c.

Bank Rate (Discount) changed July 13, 1922, 3%.

Gold rose 5d. per ounce to 89s. 11d. nominal. Silver was unchanged for both spot and forward delivery at 31⅛d. per ounce and 30 15/16d. respectively.

The Foreign Exchange market was still very depressed, the principal feature being a further sharp fall in sterling to 4.58 11/16 dollars, following the overnight decline in New York. This is the lowest rate touched since December. Continental currencies were slightly better at first, but subsequently reacted, French francs being 75.10 after 74.70, and Belgian francs 88.10 after 87.80. German marks opened at 657,000 to the £, but later on relapsed to 735,000. Italian lires gave way to 103⅛, and Spanish pesetas weakened again to 31.44. The following are closing quotations:—

ARMY UNIFORMS.

GENERAL MULCAHY AND ENGLISH FIRM.

Mr. G. C. King, Secretary of the Irish (Free State) Wholesale Clothing Manufacturers' Association, Dublin, writing with reference to the purchase of National Army equipment in England, by which General Mulcahy recently claimed to have effected a saving of £224,000, says that, except in the times of emergency, now passed, there was, and is, no reason, economical or otherwise, for awarding a contract for Army clothing outside the Free State.

If the large order on which General Mulcahy claims to have effected such sweeping economy had been given to Irish clothing factories, workers here would have been kept fully employed, instead of being idle and dependent on unemployment pay.

Mr. King says that the Irish factories were never asked to tender for the Army clothing order. If an Irish firm had been asked to tender, and allowed to use the cheap English cloth used by the London firm, he is confident that the contract would have been carried out at even a greater saving in money to the authorities than they pride themselves on having achieved by going across the Channel for their uniforms—in this particular, 50,000 tunics and breeches.

GAME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION

A special meeting of the Irish Game Protection Association was held at 110 Grafton street, Dublin, on the 27th inst., when the new Irish Land Bill was fully discussed in its relation to the future of game in this country. It was decided to write to the Minister having charge of the bill, expressing the Committee's views on the subject.

CHEESE—The tightness governing the spot position was relieved this week owing to heavy arrivals from New Zealand. In face of this prices are 8/- per cwt. lower. Respecting other descriptions, the market is featureless while quiet, and prices easier inclined. English, finest farmers' 108/- to 112/-, fine 90/- to 100/-, loaf 104/- to 112/-, factory 75/- to 80/-; Canadian, white, also coloured, 84/- to 86/-; New Zealand, white 82/- to 86/-; coloured Dutch Edam, 40 p.c. 72/- to 76/-, 30 p.c. 62/- to 65/-, 20 p.c. 50/- to 56/-; Gouda, 40 p.c. 80/- to 88/-, 20 p.c. 62/- to 64/-, 10 p.c. 46/- to 54/- per cwt. BACON—Despite supplies being on the short side, requirements of the trade do not extend, and tone is quiet but firm. A continuance of fine weather apparently is needed in order to stimulate affairs. No change was made in quotations. Irish ranges from 102/- to 118/-, Danish 97/- to 108/-, Swedish 101/- to 105/-, Canadian 86/- to 93/-, American Wiltshire cut 68/- to 80/-, Cumberland cut 66/-, Canadian cured American 78/- to 82/- per cwt. HAMS—There was no new feature, actual business being confined to moderate limits, but prices ruled steady. English, as to weight, quoted 170/- to 200/-; Irish, 10/12lbs., 184/-; Canadian long cut green 110/- to 112/-; American long cut 95/- to 104/-, short ditto 84/- to 95/-, picnics 48/- to 58/- per cwt. LARD—Only moderate trade is in force at prices showing no essential change. Irish bladders quoted 74/- to 82/-, Danish 60/- to 64/-, Dutch refined boxes 61/- to 62/-, American pails 67/-, boxes 62/6 to 63/6. EGGS—The market presents quiet features, and, with more than adequate supplies, prices disclose a weaker tendency. Quotations:—English 12/- to 13/-, Irish 11/6 to 12/-; Danish, 18lbs. 12/6 to 12/9, 16lbs 11/3 to 11/9; Styrian blues 9/6, reds 8/-, originals 9/-; Jugo-Slavian 9/6; Serbian 9/6, Hungarian 9/6, Bulgarian 9/6; Dutch, all brown 12/6 to 13/6, mixed 10/6 to 11/-; Italian, 17lbs. 12/- to 12/6, 11/-, 15lbs. 10/6, Southern 9/6; French, all brown 12/6 to 13/-, mixed 10/6 to 11/-; Brittany 9/6, Lithuanian 9/3 to 10/-, Chinese 8/3 to 8/9, Polish 8/6 to 9/- per 120.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—BACON—Irish bacon still scarce and steadily held. Danish continues to be freely offered, and, with heavy killings reported from Denmark during past week, sellers are easier at 108/- to 112/- per cwt. There is a steady feeling for most selections of American bacon, despite easier prices for live hogs and speculative products at Chicago, while bacon arrivals at this port are on a smaller scale. The demand is moderate, chiefly for bellies and Cumberlands, the only quotable change being 1/- decline for American Wiltshire at 72/- to 78/- per cwt. Canadian Wiltshires quiet and easier at 84/- to 90/- per cwt. HAMS steady for short cut, with a moderate demand, but others quiet, and skinned easier at 84/- to 88/- per cwt. Shoulders remain firm for squares and New Yorks, but picnics quiet, and prices reduced to 50/- to 56/- per cwt. LARD on the spot still in only moderate request and, with lower c.i.f. prices, American refined again easier at 61/6 to 63/6 per cwt. CHEESE firm and in better demand, and prices tend against buyers. BUTTER attracts more attention, and holders in some cases firmer. EGGS remain slow of sale; Irish hen quoted 10/6 to 11/6, best selected 11/9 to 12/-, and duck 11/3 to 12/- per 120.

PATRICK KEHOE, LTD., Irish Bacon Curers and Lard Refiners, Importers of American Provisions. (Estd. 100 years.)—103 FRANCIS ST., DUBLIN.—(Advt.)

REFINED LARD "FUTURES," Liverpool, Friday. —Influenced by lower quotations from Chicago and only a moderate inquiry offerings were made more freely, and prices gave way 3d. to 6d. per cwt. July sold at 61/-, September 62/-, October 62/9 to 62/6, with June quoted 60/6 to 61/- per cwt. Afternoon cables were little altered, and this market closed as in the early decline of 3d. to 6d. per cwt., Sept. sold at 62/-, and Oct 62/6, with July quoted 60/9 to 61/- per cwt.

MANCHESTER, Friday.—BUTTER—The market here is steady, and a firm undertone is making itself felt. Danish quoted 150/- to 152/-, Finnish and Swedish 146/- to 148/-, and Irish creameries 140/- to 142/- per cwt. BACON is quietly steady, with a slight scarcity of Irish. LARD is a weaker market, and values are depressed, English refined being quoted at 65/6 per cwt. CHEESE is dull and prices favouring buyers. EGGS—The demand has been disappointing; Irish 10/9 to 11/6 for hen and 12/- to 12/6 for duck, Danish 12/6 to 14/3, and Continentals 9/9 to 10/- per 120.

DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLE, Friday.—The shipping strike interfering considerably with supplies of imported fruit, and with the market rather bare of certain classes trade proved active and firm for what is available. English strawberries, 2/3 to 3/6 per handle; Irish, selected, 2/6 to 4/3 per box and 1/6 to 2/3 per punnet; French cherries, 18/- to 20/- per half bushel; box apples, 17/6 to 20/-; oranges, 22/- to 28/- per case of from 300 to 420 count; lemons (Palermo), 15/- to 18/- per case; Naples and Murcias, 24/- to 26/- and 28/-; English grapes, 3/- to 4/- per lb.; Belgian, 2/- to 2/6; English and Irish tomatoes, 8/- to 12/- per 12lbs.; Guernsey, 9/6 to 10/- and 11/-; gooseberries, 6/9 to 7/9 and 9/- per tray, 6/- to 7/- and 8/6 per strike; peaches, 12/- to 16/- per dozen; melons, 4/- to 8/- and 9/-; French peas, 6/- to 8/- per bag; kidney beans, 10/- to 12/-; Irish kidney beans, 1/6 to 2/- per lb.; peas, 6/- to 7/- per float, etc.; cucumbers, 2/6 to 6/- and 8/- per dozen. Heavy supplies of general run of vegetables offered at sales, which were well supported. Cabbage showed a recovery in price. Good all round clearance. Cauliflowers, 4/6 to 6/3, and selected, 7/- to 7/6 and 8/-; seconds, 1/10 to 3/-; York cabbage, 9/- to 25/- and 30/-; extra loads, 20/- to 40/- and 50/-; rhubarb, 2/- to 3/6, 4/6, and 5/- per dozen bunches; lettuce, 4d. to 6d., and 1/- per dozen; Tripoli onions, 8d. to 10d.; scallions, 6d. to 8d. per bundle; white turnips, 6d. to 8d. and 1/-; carrots, new, 2/- to 2/6 and 3/-; old, 1/6 to 2/-; new potatoes, 1/2 to 1/4 per stone; thyme, 2d. to 4d. and 6d.; parsley, 9d. to 1/6 per float, etc.; mushrooms, 2/- per punnet; celery, 6d. to 1/3 per bundle.

DUBLIN POTATO, Friday.—Supplies of new potatoes continue to increase. Early prices were posted at 14/- for Epicures and 16/- per cwt. for Queens, but on town 14/- proved difficult to beat for anything, while oversized and badly handled tubers rated irregularly, according to circumstances. Old Skerry Blues around 5/- per cwt.

DUBLIN POULTRY, Friday.—Supplies of chickens have become heavy, and again lower, but at current terms the market sells up satisfactorily. Prime live fowl and fat ducks in request at previous rates. Rabbits cheap. Chickens, 1/4 to 1/6 per lb., dead; small chickens average 2/- to 2/6 each; crammed fowl, 1/6 per lb.; prime heavy live hens, 2 6 to 3 6 each; old fowl, alive, 2/6 to 3/-; dead, 2/- to 2/6; inferior, 1/6; prime fat young ducks, 4/6 to 5/-; ... old ducks, 4/-; stores, 2/- to 3/-; old ducks, 1/- to 1/6; Guinea fowl, 3/6; young pigeons, 1/-; rabbits, 6d. to 9d. each; grasers, 1/- to 6/- per bunch.

DUBLIN WHOLESALE EGG AND BUTTER, Friday.—Our farm produce market here continues in a rather uncertain state, with a more or less decided undertone of weakness, especially with regard to eggs, which are perhaps 6d. to 9d. down over the week. Creamery butter continues in free supply and of fairly uniform character, but prices are uneven, as there seems to be some underselling in town. In some hands good standard creams can be purchased from 1/2½ to 1/3 per lb., whilst others say it is a very fine cut to sell at 1/3, and require 1/3½ and 1/3½ as before for choice dairies. The position as reflected from the other side of the water is that Danish is on the firmer side, but with large supplies of New Zealand and other butter on English markets, there is a quiet and easy trend in the trade. The opening for exports of creams from this side, too, is not so encouraging. Farmers' butter, in comparatively limited supply; fine cools make up to 1/2 and 1/1½ per lb, superfine and separators 1/2 per lb., ordinary qualities of farmers' butter around 1/- per lb., course and over-salted classes from 11d. downwards. There is little to feature in factories. With regard to eggs, supplies are pretty liberal and demand fair, but a good deal of stale and unsatisfactory consignments are coming forward, which tends to upset the market, and the selection of suitable large fresh produce from average arrivals is a rather unremunerative job, considering the quantity of wastage and smalls to be contended with. For average consignments of case hen eggs from reputable senders prices go from 10/6 to 11/6 per 120, selected and repacked lots of hen eggs up to 13/- and 13/6 per 120, country chads and ordinary eggs from 8/6 to 10/- per 120; selected duck eggs make 12/6 to 13/-, but others are uncertain to quote.

CORK BUTTER, Friday.—The market continues dull and featureless. Creameries 128/- to 135/- per cwt., choicest mild cured 130/-, farmers' fresh 120/-, do. salted 118/-.

DUBLIN FISH, Friday.—Fair supply of fish on the market, for which trade was poor. Arrivals included 47 packages salmon, 15 chests lobsters, 32 boxes herrings, and 25 of mackerel. Sales averaged:—Salmon, 1/3 to 1/6; selected, live, 1/8 and 1/10; grilse, 9d. to 1/- per lb.; best lobsters, 12/6 to 15/- and 20/- per 13; medium around 10/-; others, 3/6 to 7/6 per 13; turbot, 6d. to 10/-; brill, 6d. to 1/- and 1/6 each; best soles, 20/- to 25/- and 27/6 per 9 pairs; medium 12/6; slips, 2/- to 3/6 per 9 pairs; best plaice, 6/- to 8/- per 4; others, 4/- to 6/- and 8/- per 8; half-boxes plaice, 15/- to 25/ and 30/-; ray, 10/- to 12/6; coarse and stale stuff cheap; herrings, 15/- to 22/6; mackerel 10/- to 17/6.

BILLINGSGATE FISH, Friday.—Supply fair; demand good. Salmon 18d. to 25d., soles (also slips) 16d. to 24d. per lb., live eels 20/- to 30/-, dead 12/- to 20/- per draught, turbot (also brill) 6/- to 8/-, plaice 10/- to 12/-, halibut 9/- to 10/-, lemon soles 8/- to 10/-, witches 7/- to 8/-, cod 4/- to 5/-, whiting 4/- to 8/-, hake 5/-, gurnet 3/-, bream 2/-, haddocks 4/- to 5/- per stone.

DUBLIN MATRIMONIAL SUIT.

At the Law Courts, Dublin Castle, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Dodd, sitting without a jury, the matrimonial suit of Jervois v. Jervois was heard. The plaintiff, Francis Jervois, of 11 Mountainview road, Ranelagh, Co. Dublin, sought a decree of nullity of his marriage with Annie Kathleen Jervois, whose maiden name was Bryan, and to whom he was married on the 8th September, 1921. She separated from him shortly afterwards. She is now living in England.

Mr. Swayne, K.C., and Mr. Moloney (instructed by Messrs. Denroche and Moloney and Son) appeared for the petitioner, and the respondent was not professionally represented, nor did she appear.

Mr. Swayne, K.C., for the petitioner, said that the parties both belonged to well-known families in Co. Wexford and Co. Waterford, and they were married at a registry office, Wellington quay, Dublin. At the time of the marriage each of the parties was aged 22 years. They had been courting for about 18 months prior to the marriage, and they spent their honeymoon to Youghal and other Irish towns. Finally they stayed with friends near Lismore, and it the petitioner would give evidence that during the entire period of their honeymoon she refused him conjugal rights. In October they came to Dublin and went to his flat in Earlsfort terrace. After a short period he went to the King George V. Hospital for treatment for injuries that he had received in the war. The petitioner complained of his wife's treatment, and she wrote a letter at Lismore saying that she intended to leave him, and that she found she had made a mistake in marrying him. She only went to see him once in hospital. In spite of repeated appeals, she refused to return and live with him, and on 11th June his lordship made the order ... the issues, and the lady, through her solicitors, refused to comply with his lordship's order. Counsel read the wife's letter dated the 25th September she wrote to "Frank, my husband," saying:—

"I am miserable. I have tried to be happy, ... am not, but it is no use. Please let me go to America with Tony (her brother). I should never have married you, as I didn't love you enough in the beginning as I didn't love you ... I have always told you. I thought I would learn to love myself your wife, but I was wrong. We will never pull together, I know that. We have got temperaments which clash. The blame is all mine, and I wish to God I had taken others' advice and waited to know both ourselves better before going into marriage as we did." The letter was signed: "Broken-hearted Kathleen." In a letter dated the 23rd June, in reply to one from the petitioner, the respondent again wrote refusing to return to her husband.

Evidence having been given in support of counsel's statement by the petitioner and others,

Mr. Justice Dodd granted a decree of nullity of the marriage.

At Maidstone Assizes, Alfred Waters, 49, and Frederick William Rye, 28, who pleaded "Guilty" to burglary at the house of Charles Eastwood, at Tonbridge, were each sentenced to three years' penal servitude. Both men wore masks, and Waters had a revolver.

LAW REPORTS.

THE RENT ACT.

ACTION FOR POSSESSION FAILS.

Before Mr. Justice Pim, sitting without a jury, the case of Mrs. Ada Carroll, of 20 Crosthwaite Park, South, Kingstown, v. Mrs. Mary Nesbitt, of 8 Crosthwaite Park, South, came on for hearing. It was an action to recover possession of the premises, 8 Crosthwaite Park, South. The matter had come before the late Mr. Justice Gordon, and it was mentioned that it was the last case that he had heard.

The defendant held the premises under an agreement which expired on the 15th March, 1921. A notice under the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Act, increasing the rent by the statutory amount, was served on the 15th February, 1921. The correspondence showed that there was a dispute between the parties as to the amount which the tenant should be allowed in respect of repairs.

On the 27th October, 1921, the plaintiff issued a writ for possession, but on the 12th of that month the defendant had written a letter to the plaintiff's solicitor, sending a cheque for the amount of rent due up to September, 1921, and stating that she was prepared to pay the amount of any increase which would be made by the Recorder on the hearing of the notice. The case was opened before Mr. Justice Gordon, who adjourned the hearing of the action until the Recorder had dealt with the dispute as to the amount of the rent. The Recorder reduced the amount of the claim in the notice of the 15th February, 1921, and the action was subsequently re-entered for trial.

Mr. Overend, K.C., who, with Mr. Murnaghan (instructed by Messrs. Brown and McCann), appeared for the plaintiff, admittted that he could not sustain his action, but suggested that each party should abide her own costs.

Mr. Wood, K.C., with whom was Mr. D. McCarthy Mahony (instructed by Messrs. Molloy, Fayle and Co.), for the defendant, contended that, under the circumstances, his client was entitled to the costs of the action.

Mr. Justice Pim dismissed the action for possession, and gave the defendant her costs against the plaintiff.

HABEAS CORPUS APPEAL.

In the Chancery Division, before the Master of the Rolls, in the case of Mrs. Nora Connolly O'Brien, of Ely place, Dublin, who is detained in the military internment camp, North Dublin Union, in which an application for a writ of habeas corpus on her behalf had recently been refused by his lordship, on the ground that he had no jurisdiction to grant it as a state of war still existed in the country,

Mr. Lynn (instructed by Mr. Sean O hUadhaigh), who appeared for Mrs. O'Brien, now applied to his lordship for permission to appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council from the order which he had made in the case, explaining that it was necessary to get permission.

The Master of the Rolls—According to the ordinary procedure, in any appeal from this Court you must first go to the Court of Appeal in this country.

Mr. Lynn referred his lordship to Section 66 of the Constitution of the Free State, which stated that "nothing in this Constitution shall impair the right of any person to petition His Majesty for special leave to appeal from the Supreme Court to His Majesty in Council or the right of His Majesty to grant such leave." He contended that that must be read in conjunction with Article 1 of the Constitution, and that the special leave referred to in the text meant an appeal where there was no permission granted by the Court appealed from.

The Master of the Rolls, having read the section, said that his Court was a High Court and part of the Supreme Court, and he held that he had no jurisdiction to grant the permission sought. In appealing from decisions of his Court the ordinary procedure was to go to the Court of Appeal in Dublin.

The application was accordingly refused.

INSURANCE OFFICE BONDS.

In the Chancery Division, before the Master of the Rolls, yesterday, in the matter of the Sun Insurance Office,

Mr. Murnaghan (instructed by Messrs. Hoey and Denning) applied on behalf of the Sun Insurance Office for an order directing the Accountant-General to pay to that office the sum of £87 16s. 2d., and also all future dividends to accrue on the sum of £7,805 guaranteed 3 per cent stock, at present in the books of the Bank of Ireland in the name of the Accountant-General. In an affidavit, Mr. Stuart C. Smith, branch manager, stated that by orders dated 17th July and 14th November, 1906, the bonds of the Sun Insurance Office were ordered to be accepted as securities for receivers, guardians and committees in matters pending in courts, it being a condition that the Sun Insurance Office should, as is in such cases usual, lodge in court a sum of £5,000 of trustee securities, and the sum of £5,000 represented by consolidated debenture 4 per cent. Great Northern Railway (Ireland) stock was lodged in court and remained in that state of investment, the Sun Office receiving the dividends down to July, 1920, when it was considered advisable to change the securities. By an order of 7th July, 1920, liberty was given to sell the Great Northern Railway stock, and bring in in lieu of it £7,805 guaranteed 3 per cent stock. That sum was brought in, and was at present in the books of the Bank of Ireland in the name of the Accountant-General of the High Court of Justice, Saorstat Eireann.

In consequence of the destruction of the Four Courts and the documents in it, and the loss of the order of 7th July, 1920, the Accountant-General now states that he cannot pay the dividends on the sum mentioned, as he was not in possession of any documents enabling him to do so.

Mr. Murnaghan, in reply to his lordship, said that there were no copies of the originals.

The Master of the Rolls made the order sought.

DUBLIN POSSESSION CASE.

Before Mr. Justice Dodd, without a jury, the case of O'Callaghan and others v. Moore and others was heard. It was an action brought by the plaintiffs, the trustees of the Irish Union of Distributive Workers and Clerks, against the defendants, Robert Moore-head and T. W. Little (his sub-tenant), to recover possession of a dwelling-house and premises in Cavendish row, Dublin, for non-payment of rent, amounting to £72.

The defendant, Mr. Little, denied holding the premises from the plaintiffs or that the amount of rent mentioned was due. Alternatively he pleaded that he was a yearly tenant of the premises at £52 per annum, payable quarterly, the tenancy having commenced on 29th December, 1921, and that, as the Increase of Rent Act applied to the dwelling-house and premises, the plaintiffs were not entitled to recover under the circumstances.

Mr. Justice Dodd gave judgment in favour of the plaintiffs for possession, with costs.

Mr. Lardner, K.C., and Mr. Devitt (instructed by Mr. J. J. McDonald) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. H. Hughes (instructed by Mr. C. P. O'Neill) for the defendants.

SALE OF BESSBOROUGH ESTATE.

At the Law Courts, Dublin Castle, before Mr. Justice Wylie, sitting as Judicial Commissioner, the purchase money of the estate of the Earl of Bessborough in the County Kilkenny came up for allocation. An objection was lodged on behalf of Captain W. R. Penrose, former agent to the Earl of Bessborough, on the ground that the schedule before the Court did not provide for the payment of a commission fee in connection with the sale of the estate under the Land Act of 1903, and the agent claimed.

Mr. Jellett, K.C., and Mr. Connolly (instructed by Mr. H. D. Keane) appeared for Captain Penrose; and Mr. H. D. Conner, K.C., and Mr. McCarthy (instructed by Messrs. Kenny and Stephenson) appeared for the vendor.

It appeared that the purchase money of the estate amounted to £111,000, and that Captain Penrose's claim for negotiating the sale amounted to over £3,000. The bonus which would be payable under the Land Purchase Aid Fund would be approximately £20,000.

Mr. Justice Wylie directed that the claim should stand over, pending the balance of the purchase money of the Bessborough estate, amounting to about £60,000, being brought to hand for allocation at a later date.
